The FM Broadcast facility proposed in the referenced application will not result in human exposure to radiofrequency radiation in excess of the applicable safety standards specified in Section 1.1307(b) of the Commission's rules.

RADIATION PROTECTION: This proposal has been evaluated for compliance with FCC guidelines concerning human exposure to radio-frequency radiation. The standards employed are detailed in OST Bulletin No. 65, October, 1985.

Table 1 of Appendix B was employed for the initial study concerning FM broadcast radiation protection.

For the effective radiated power and type of antenna proposed, the minimum antenna radiation center above ground is specified as about 11 meters. This application proposes an antenna height above ground of at least 438 meters. Therefore, full compliance with the guidelines is attained by the instant application.

In addition to the protection afforded by the proposed antenna height above ground, the facility is properly marked with signs, and entry to the facility is restricted by means of locked gates.

In the event work would be required in proximity to the antenna, or on the tower structure, such that the person or persons working in the area or on the tower would be potentially exposed to fields in excess of the ANSI guidelines, the FM facility will reduce power, or cease operation during the critical period.
