Dear FCC

I want to add my voice to the controversy concerning political candidates using their status to air commercials that are offensive. In the case of Michael Bailey he used his campaign solely to support his position on the abortion issue. If his "ads" had been sponsored by the local "right to life" groups, I am confident that they would not have been allowed using the criteria of local convention.

Let's not allow someone who's name is on a ballot to break the rules. Community standards should prevail.

Thank You,

Mary Kiono

To Whom It May Concern:

Please allow pro-life candidates to use pictures of aborted babies to communicate their message of the casualties of abortion.

Sincerely

Cathy M. Gonzalez
