TO: Federal Communications Commission

Subject: The Proposed Policy to drop current broadcast decency standards that ban explicit profanity and "non-sexual" nudity.

To Whom It May Concern at the FCC:

I am a Father and concerned parent about the proposed changes to the current FCC Indeceny standards that would allow television and radio stations to broadcast expletives and nudity on the public airwaves, even if brief or "fleeting."

I have lived and traveled the world over and been educated by some of the finest academic institutions this fine country has to offer with a BS and a Masters degree and have worked for several fortune five hundred companies. The more experience I gain the more convinced I am that it is the obligation of the institutions of the United States of America to protect children's innocence from nudity and foul language in the media.

If adults chose to expose themselves to such content as nudity and foul language, that is their choice and adults have plenty of options outside of the main stream media for this explicit profanity and nudity. It is my firm belief that the general public and our children should not be randomly exposed to explicit profanity and nudity of any kind.

The Supreme Court has confirmed the FCC's authority to enforce policies regarding expletives and nudity, especially during times when children are likely to be watching or listening.

Relaxing the current policy would not serve the public interest and I urge the FCC to reject all proposals that would allow for the broadcast of expletives and nudity on FCC-licensed stations.

Thank you for your consideration!

Best Regards,

J. C. Conley
