RE: Public Comments for WC Docket 12-375, Wright Petition

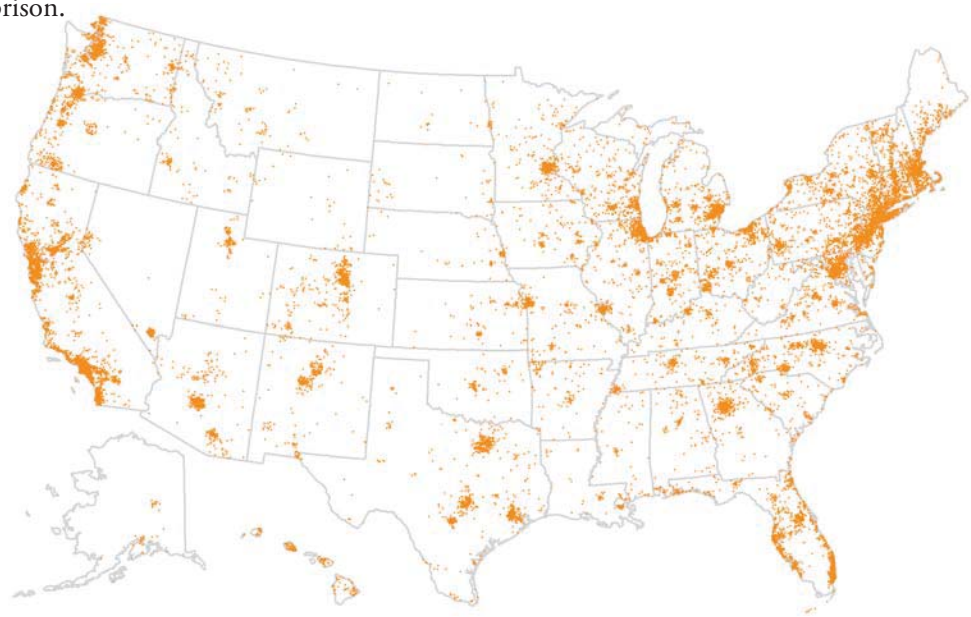
Dear Chairman Wheeler:

Please find enclosed 23,585 public comments supporting Federal Communications Commission regulation of in-state calls placed from prisons and jails. These comments were collected through an online public action campaign organized by the corporate accountability nonprofit SumOfUs and the criminal justice policy nonprofit Prison Policy Initiative. The campaign ran from December 3, 2013 through December 12, 2013, and was collected at http://action.sumofus.org/a/prison-phones-instate/ .

The 23,585 signers of this petition support your efforts to control the charges for interstate calls from prisons and jails, and urge you to take the next step by regulating the cost of in-state calls as well.

1,489 of the comments contain unique statements written by individual signers. We have enlarged and highlighted these unique comments to demonstrate the depth of public support for regulating in-state calls from prisons and jails. These comments contain firsthand accounts from mothers, fathers, spouses, stepparents, godparents, aunts, and children of incarcerated people discussing how the unregulated prison and jail telephone industry strains family ties and presents them with an enormous financial burden. We also received comments from correctional facility employees, police officers, probation officers, teachers, ministers, lawyers, child psychiatrists, and social workers explaining how high phone charges break up families, thus increasing the odds that incarcerated people will commit a new offense in the future and return to prison.

The 23,585 orange dots represent the homes of the SumOfUs members who are urging the FCC to regulate in-state prison and jail phone charges.



The first petition our organizations submitted jointly to the FCC in November 2012[1] illustrated widespread public support for FCC intervention to control the broken prison and jail telephone industry, as the Commissioners noted on the second page of their historic ruling to regulate inter-state call charges. Now, we join the signers of this second petition in respectfully urging the FCC to also regulate in-state prison and jail phone charges to ensure that all families can afford to stay in touch.

We thank you for your time and thoughtful consideration. Please feel free to contact us for further information should you have any additional questions.

Best regards,

Peter Wagner

ALthought prisoners are in prison for the most part of their own doings, they are still human and have family members who are being affected by their absence. Those family members as well as the prisoners deservice to be able to feel loved and have a realtionship with loved ones. This could be the one thing that provide hope for the prisoner (s) and serve as encouragement to want to change their lives. THe prison system is not having to pay for the calls so why allow the phone companies to take advantage of this sitaution. It is wrong, it is like price gouging.

Prison officials say that maintaining contact with family can help individual reintegrate into the community and avoid the revolving door of incarceration, yet allow phone companies to charge rates that are totally unaffordable for most families. Punishing the families, especially children, is unconscionable.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry, not so much for the benefit of the prisoners as for the restricting of a predatory, terrible, sub-human practice. Almost any corporation, it seems, will all-but-murder for any amount of profit. I have seen these phone companies specifically at airports and operating other limited-option phones: they are criminals and thieves and should be put out of business immediately.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. from my personal and family experience i have found these rates to be punishing and pocket lining for no good reason to the phone service suppliers. i can hear their "good reasons" which carry some weight but not at at least a 10 times multiplier to ordinary local service. phone service is now very cheap. let's have this passed on please

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. We, at our home, have always allowed inmates to call collect to our phone until the phone companies got involved and decided we were not allowed to do that anymore. You know, I almost became a Republican but then I realized it was private industry and not the government who changed the use of my phne as I want to use it. So for me it is not just the poor families and inmates, but it gets into my rights and my property. So think again phone companies, do you want your rights messed with??? Rev. Richard Reece

As the daughter of a social worker who worked for several decades with children whose parents were incarcerated, I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. I know from my mother's stories what a huge impact having an incarcerated parent can have on a child's development. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Affordable phone rates could help strengthen relationships between incarcerated parents and their children, which could positively impact such children's well-being, including their school success, self-esteem, and alienation from (or lack thereof) the society in which they live – and perhaps even lessen the likelihood of them becoming incarcerated themselves.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Making the family pay is another way to keep the prisoners isolated. Eventually, the family gives up. I know for sure that the states place a prisoner such a distance from the loved ones, together with strict guidelines for visitation, that the state makes the family pay for the crime, as well. The rate of recidivism might change if the prison policies would change. But, by privatizing the prison systems there is no reason to seek change. We should be a more advanced species by now.

Please implement some limits on the rates charged by phone companies serving prison inmates. There's no justification for the high in-state rates: the phone companies are simply taking advantage of their monopoly.
The main hope for rehabilitiation of prison inmates lies in maintaining solid family relationships. Phone companies should not be allowed to subvert this for the sake of excess profits.

My nephew is in a federal prison and when he was transferred there after his sentencing from a non profit prison contracted by the FPS, HE DISCOVERED THAT THERE IS AN EMAIL SYSTEM WHICH IS FAR LESS COSTLY THAN WHAT EXISTS. OF COURSE IT ISN'T AS PERSONAL AS TELEPHONE BUT IT PROVIDES FOR FREQUENT CONNECTIONS. I don't know if Some of Us had anything to do with this but it is a vast improvement.

People in jail are already being punished for their crimes. Their families should not be punished additionally. Ample studies show that strong family and community connections are the strongest force to reduce recidivism for those who have been incarcerated. Reasonable phone rates preserve family strength and the future of community safety.

The regulation of In-State calls within the prison phone industry is an obvIous and fundamental action that the FCC must, in good conscience, take. Don't let the red herring of the prison distract you from realizing that children love and miss their parents, spouses love and miss one another, parents do not cease to love their children when those children are imprisoned. It is an elementary human need to communicate with those we love. Who are you to allow phone companies to deny this need and to cooperate in making prisoners a bit less human, a bit more estranged, a lot more dangerous.

The people who end up in prisons are disproportionately from struggling families anyway, so please make it as easy as possible for them to at least talk to their families. The kids don't deserve to be unable to speak to their fathers, and high rates would just breed resentment. Thank you.

We may think of them as prisoners, but to their kids they are still "Dad" or "Mom." I've worked with some of those kids, and it means the world to them to stay in touch with their parents while they are away from the family. Often the children are in foster care and a phone call is their only connection to their birth family. Out of compassion for these children, I strongly support robust FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. It's a bit ridiculous policy for prisons to want to support those who get out, but not support those who are still inside.
I suspect if they could the inmates would start a lawsuit to have better and less expensive phone service, but such a suit would end up costing the state more than the phone systems...Dumb. FCC can make a difference here.

I have experience this first hand while my cousin was in prison. He was being threatened and not being listened to by the guards. He had no more phone time left, and if he hadn't reached me with that one call, which led to my calling and expressing serious concern, he would not have been put in isolation to keep him safe from the gang that threatened his life.

I've worked in the jail/prison system. Poverty is often a factor in the individual being imprisoned in the first place and being unable to maintain a tie to children and other family members only increases despair, anger and eventually a return to the system when the family structure is broken.
Please implement regulations to control this situation.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It's a shame the way the poorest people continue to be taken advantage of. It's an epidemic with seemingly no way out. You grow up poor leading to crime to survive then are stripped of all possessions and pride just to hear the voice of your loved ones.
Also the fact that private organizations are allowed to just set up prisons and justice systems is obsurd. Especially when most crimes (drug related) begin with pharmaceutical and or black market drugs, which are provided by our dr's or smuggled in by the people we trust to keep such things out. Such a shame indeed!!

Beyond the obviously horrifying and inhumane implications of privatizing the prison system in America, unregulated markets like this only serve to further hurt those that need help the most. I changed my phone company just so i could speak with my son and then when I paid all their hook-up costs I was unable to talk with him unless I signed up with an affiliate of theirs which was very expensive. I cancel my account and have only a cell which prisons do not allow inmates to make calls to. So many folks only have cells now,maybe the system could get more modern?

The current practice of price-gauging of some of the most disadvantaged Americans is appallingly immoral. Allowing corporations to have a monopoly on prison phone calls and set outrageously high prices is tantamount to Fascism. It is embarrassing that this is happening in America in 2013.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. These companies are making obscene profits off the suffering of people who are already in jeopardy, with their parent or other loved one in prison. Studies have shown the high risks that children of incarcerated parents face, but have also shown that if these kids can stay in touch with their parent, they are less likely to become offenders themselves or have other risky behaviors. These companies are cruel and inhumane. THis must stop.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Given the fact that some people are incarcerated far from their families or far from public transportation to those areas it is important to keep an immediate and personal connection to families and external support. The goal of prison is supposed to be rehabilitation and reintegration in society, allowing affordable phone contact is one small way to further that goal.

I am in Minnesota, I have a son who was picked up and jailed in Kansas. The WHOLE ORDEAL was a travesty of gouging and un-scrupulous price fixing through third-party phone companies. Just to talk to my son initially for a couple minutes cost ME over $25.00, and by the time I had his story and was able to help him it cost almost as much in phone charges as the bond...just to talk to him! I felt totally helpless and abused but didn't have any avenue to protest...nobody cares. I feel strongly about this effort, needless to say.

At this particularly festive time of the year, I find it upsetting that a company would gouge the one thing allowing some families to connect. For that reason I support FCC cost cap for phone calls to prisons. There is enough greed in this world without a phone company working against families simply because they can. There is no reason to charge so much other than to line their pockets with more money. The family as a whole should not be punished for the actions of one member. It's wrong and should be stopped.

It is a complete obscenity for phone companies to be jacking up rates to make more money off of people in prison, mimicking the behavior of the other bloodsuckers who have emerged in this country that make huge profits off of other people's misfortune. Don't tell me that is the "American Way", or is somehow justified by "free market capitalism". It is greedy, unjust, immoral behavior, antithetical to the democracy that we grew up in, which is fast disappearing. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

Last year my teenage son was arrested and placed in jail. When he was finally allowed to call his parents it was a local call. The bill for that call was nearly $15!!! This is an affront to common sense and decency. At that point he was being charged with a crime but not proven guilty of it. Regardless of guilt, those in jail should not be treated any different than any other citizen of the U.S. They should not be further penalized at a time when they are most vulnerable, in need of caring connections, and without financial resources. The price-gouging by phone companies is criminal and must be stopped.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is so important for children to stay in touch with their parents, regardless of where the parent is. My dad was in the military and away from our family for as long as a year or two on four different occasions before I turned twelve. Please give parents a chance to stay in touch with their kids.

I can verify from personal experience that the rates in some penal institutions exceed $5.00 for the first minute and $1.00 for subsequent minutes – in a national market where long-distance calls are billed at a penny or two. This practice is blatant exploitation of the most poor and powerless citizens among us. I strongly support FCC regulation of both in-state and out-of-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at reasonable rates which reflect the actual cost of providing service, not ones which maximize profit to the carriers and those who approve their contracts.

Prisons should not be profit centers for anyone. Period.

You have the power to require utilities to treat everyone fairly. It's time for the FCC to step in and regulate in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. The should not be set any higher than rates for other phone service: if anything, they should be lower or even free to family members and attorneys. After all, aren't we supposed to be rehabbing prisoners? And families, especially kids, are not under sentence.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at fair, non-predatory rates.

For that matter, out of state calls should be kept low too. Families have no control over where prisoners are housed. It's a double penalty for poor families to be beyond commuting range of the prisons where their loved ones are held: charge them high rates too? We've become an ugly society.

I support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at equitable, and affordable rates.
These extortionate fees on the most vulnerable must stop! It is cruel and medieval to punish the innocent family members of those incarcerated by making them pay, in effect, a fine that applies to no other phone users, in order to speak to their loved ones. This is bad for families and bad for our communities. Please stop the gouging of these suffering families.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I realize there are those who believe that prisoners have no rights and shouldn't be pampered, but allowing inmates the option of talking to their loved-ones should be considered a basic right.
The incarcerated have received their punishment in court, please, stop piling on with abusive charges for maintaining contact with their families, because those contacts help stabilize the prison population and prove to be rehabilitative.
During this holiday season, let's show some compassion and allow prisoners the right to civilized telephone charges for talking to their families.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Research has shown how developmentally important it is for the children of prison inmates to have contact with their parents. Most families with an incarcerated family member come from the poorest socio-economic segment of society, the segment that is least able to afford the high fees charged by the telecommunications monopolies serving prisons. I demand FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Extortionate pricing of these calls, charged to those least able to afford it, contributes to the destruction of family ties that are necessary for the well being of the family members and the eventual reintroduction of the released prisoners into productive society. I am a criminal defense attorney with clients who are incarcerated. The prison phone industry is running a racket. The employees will tell you if you ask them.

The USA has monetized the prison industry and that means we are not a country of free people, but a country of corporations using captive people as capitalistic tools. What a bleak future if this abuse is not stopped!

America incarcerates more of its citizens than any other nation including the most repressive regimes on the planet. Any hope of rehabilitation is quashed when persons are unable to afford to stay connected to loved ones.

Moreover, this deplorable practice in the Orange County Florida Jail discriminates against those who do not have the means to make bail. It is a major profit center erected on the back of the disadvantaged. In America persons are innocent until proven guilty. Please bring the full weight of FCC enforcement to bear on this discriminatory practice.

My brother-in-law was jailed when my mother-in-law was very ill. He tended to call her often, reversing the charges, which were horrendous. My husband found those bills when he was taking care of her finances as her executor. We think that the stress of this contributed to her fast decline and death.
The rates charged by phone companies for calls to and from prisons are obscene. It is just one more thing that is wrong with our nation's prison system.

Price gouging is un-American, regardless of who is being gouged. Prisoners are paying their debt to society by being in jail. Their families should not have to pay exorbitant fees for phone calls on top of that. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It's only fair. It's only decent.

I work in the juvenile justice system and know that the kids in our Juvenile Hall are often not able to talk to their parents because the collect calls are far to expensive for most of our families to accept the charges. I also know that it is vitally important for incarcerated children to be able to maintain positive connections with and receive support from their parents or guardians. Their families should not be faced with a $10 cost to initiate the call and $1 or more per minute to speak with these children when they are already under tremendous stress.

Children with parents in prison who don't get to feel a connection with that parent through conversation, will likely grow up to be inmates themselves. They NEED that love and connection to be whole. As a retired educator who taught students of incarcerated parents, I can tell you that those phone calls are vitally important to the children. Allowing big corporations to charge exorbitant rates is hurtful to kids who will end up paying the price for the crimes of their parents. That is NOT FAIR. It is simply wrong.
Please be very careful how you regulate the pricing of these very important phone calls by keeping them affordable. It could be the most important contact in a child's life. Thanks for listening.

I have worked with incarcerated populations for almost 25 years, both adults and juvenile populations. I can't even begin to tell you how important it is for families to stay connected. They need to be informed and supported during incarceration so they have a way to transition back into the family and community when they get out. The juvenile population are often incarcerated because they acted out of control to their parents or within their family. They especially need support or they feel discarded, disposed of and have no incentive for rehabilitation, forgiveness and to be folded back into the family again. Their hearts are broken by separation. They desparately want healing and forgiveness. Please facilitate communication, don't punish the whole family any more than they already are through physical separation. Thank you.

The exploitation of family members and friends of prison inmates, who need contact with others more than at any time in their lives, is sad. As a pastor, I was charged so greatly to reach inmates only a mile or so from my home that I simply could not afford to be in touch with them often. Regulation, to provide for affordable rates, is demanded by any notion of justice.

I think prisoners are criminals and that they should have few, if any rights. So I don't think that they deserve to hear from their loved ones. However, the children of those incarcerated did not commit a crime and they therefore do deserve to have contact with their parents. It is important to keep parents in their children's lives, as this involvement helps children to grow up to be healthy, happy and productive citizens. Without parental involvement, children are at a higher risk to become criminals themselves.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Having connections to family and loved ones makes it more likely that a prisoner can successfully reintegrate into society upon release. And it is so uncharitable, so unkind for these very profitable companies to rake in money at the expense of families who often have meager financial resources.

It is a HUGE drain on society that these people chose to commit crimes. They are dragging us all down. They drain us of energy on every level and do not put in as much as they take.

I wonder if these high costs are helping to pay for the $25,000 a year it costs to house these narcissistic, morally retarded criminals. Someone has to pay for their lack of responsibility. Who knows. God forbid they do.

If it is not covering the cost of their drain on the community then and only then do I support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I paid over $10 for every 15 call while my daughter was in Santa Rosa Co. jail. She is now at Lowell and the Securus Company charges $2.10 per 15 min. call! Certainly if one company can make a profit at that, others are obviously over charging. Companies should bill the family directly, and not require one to put up $50 or $100 credit esp. with no billing proceedures.

It's been a long time since I've been in this position, but there was a time when my ex-husband was in jail more often than not, and it would cost ME money if I let him talk to the girls. This was also fresh into the divorce process and it was incredibly important to me that I wasn't perceived as keeping them apart.
1) It seems incredibly unfair to monetarily penalize the parent that is at least for the moment, a single parent. I never got child support when my ex was in jail, either.
2) It's unfair to the children if the call cannot go through to not have that opportunity.
These situations are far more complex than even I can imagine, and I have been the one accepting the collect calls!

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I'm already distressed and appalled to know that Imprisonment has become a 'for profit' industry- with dna and other exculpatory evidence proving that not all inmates belong there, but taking advantage of an already dreadful situation to further distress children and families of the incarcerated is not only immoral, but inhuman. Please make these phone companies remember that these are people. There shareholders are certainly rich enough.

THese corporations will stop at nothing. Theses CEO's are corrupt and if they didn't have money, most of them would be in prison - they are not ethical or moral people and it is up to us, the government of, by and for the people to stop it. That is as long as the government still represents the majority which is a democratic and constitutional ideal that is quickly slipping away, thanks to the ever growing factions of our government that love money and always side with the big corps whether the issue is morally correct or not! We have to stop this before it all goes to far. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Family bonds, quality therapy and education are the most successful ways to keep people from recommitting crimes. By using money to block families that can't afford the rates puts our country into a spiritual and psychological deficit that is not only hard on people that are incarcerated, but also sets a precedence that the United States and corporations do not care about it's citizens welfare.

As a parent of an incarcerated son, I know first-hand how painfully expensive intrastate calls from jail are. The cost limits the contact he has with his support system - his family. We know that a strong support system is key to keeping prisoners from being repeat offenders so we need to do everything we can to keep the support systems intact.

We need to support families of incarcerated persons, not place greater barriers in their path. When these children grow to adulthood will they have memories of who helped them or of who stood in the way? The answer to this question will affect us all in the long run.

An individualclose to me was in Maricopa County AZ jail for over a year without bail,without trial, given no outside time as required by law, he was innocent of charges and eventually charges dropped. We could not give him phone cards to use.he had to call collect. They charged so much, my two short long distance conversations were over $35, his wife talked to him daily (some days sheriff refused to let them make calls at all) hers local calls, but the charges were exhorbitant, over $100 per month. I believe the sheriff makes money on this. This is truly violation of civil rights.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It is difficult enough for a child to grow up with one or both of their parents in prison. No matter what these parents have done, their choices and crimes should not also weigh on the next generation. Many such children are poor and even as adults their chances of succeeding are fewer and farther between. They ought to at least be able to speak to their parents without undue financial burden. Greed does not pay. It should cost the same to call someone in jail as it costs to call someone who isn't in jail. Equity and justice have their place, even when considering punishment. Don't penalize the children of incarcerated individuals who are suffering already.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. To me it is unconscionable to charge the families of incarcerated persons so much to stay in touch with their loved ones. Imprisonment is enough of a penalty to impose on a person who commits a crime. Bloodsucking businesses should have no opportunity to add their own punishment to that of the criminal justice system.

I do not believe that those who are incarcerated deserve any special considerations but that is not what we are asking for. We are simply asking that prison phone contact not be penalized by greedy phone companies. People in prison are not the only ones being penalized by unfair phone costs - the primary concern is for the children who cannot speak with their parent. Please pass regulations that do not penalize people based on their circumstances.

Charging a truly captive population an obviously non-competetive and exorbitant rate means allowing the phone companies to engage in criminal behavior. (Actually, it's more than allowing when it's contractual, isn't it?) The fact that decreased family contact increases chances of recidivism once released means we ALL pay too high a cost, prisoners, family members, and other taxpayers alike.

As a (now retired) 26-year veteran of the telephone/telecom industry, I'm appalled that the industry (and, apparently, the FCC) need to be reminded of the vision that drove the creation of our national phone system: good quality service, at an affordable price, for EVERYONE. Nowhere in this vision were the words "except for people in prison."

Recidivism occurs when those in prison lose touch with those outside and have no support network when they are released. Denying them contact with the outside world is a form of cruel and unusual punishment in this modern connected world. Profiteering by phone companies is immoral and needs to be resisted. Do the moral thing and promote communication between those incarcerated and their families.

Everyone says they want prisoners to become better people and to succeed when they come back to the community. Support from and contact with family members is very important to making this happen. It is especially important for prisoners with children need to maintain a relationship. Visits are not always possible, but phone calls should be. However, the calls are too expensive, and many prisoners' families are poor.

what's the point of charging exorbitant fees on prison calls? sure, they broke the law, but their family doesn't deserve to be punished with such harshness. in fact, it seems like the fees aren't so much a punishment for prisoners as much as an opportunity for corporations to make more money.

Prisoners are human beings. Even the worst of them don't deserve to be exploited, and exploitation is not what should be modeled for them, since exploiting people is likely what got them there in the first place. And some are actually innocent. The phone companies are only doing this because they can get away with it.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. When you make family available to inmates, you continue positive motivation for return to society. When you isolate and effectively cut off supportive voices, you discourage rehabilitation and restoring healthy family relationships.
High costs also prohibit children from having a loving parent in their lives...although guilty of some crime, this then adds further damage to the parenting role...and makes double victims of the children or spouses. It's bad enough a loved one committed a crime, but cutting off family ties qualifies for cruel and unusual punishment.

I strongly support having the Federal Commerce Commission regulate in-state call charges in the prison-phone industry.

I am dismayed to learn that three phone companies are trying to charge some of the nationâ€™s poorest grandmothers, fathers and children upwards of $1 per minute to talk on the phone with those dearest to their hearts. And the families have no choice but to pay the high cost; if they do not, they will not be able to hear their loved oneâ€™s voice.

Why do these companies get away with such gouging? Because the loved ones in this story are in prison – and the three phone companies have exclusive deals with 45 states that allow them to charge obscenely high fees for incarcerated people to use the phone.

Last year I was one of almost 37,000 people who called on the FCC to cap the cost of phone calls to prisons. The Commission decided to cap interstate rates. But the FCCâ€™s current regulation falls short of what is needed: most families with loved ones in prison pay in-state phone rates, and they can still be overcharged by unscrupulous phone companies.

Please implement new regulations that allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.The people who are incarcerated in our Penetentiary system are the least likely to be able to afford to pay for exorbitant phone rates and the families of such prisoners most likely to live so far from the prisons in question as to make physical visitation almost an impossibility;the contact between family members and the incarcerated prisoner is a psychological lifeline for both parties and should not be subject to profiteering by the Prison Industry.This is an issue of common decency and common sense,in as much as familial contact is a societal and correctional necessity,if there is any intention of rehabilitation.

As someone who has worked as a mental health counselor in the local county jail I know what a burden high phone rates are on inmates and their families–almost always poor people–and how important contact with the outside is to prisoners. And such contact is usually one of the more beneficial influences on them. To take advantage of the incarcerated by gouging them on phone rates is outrageous and must be stopped.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. As a lay advocate who helps some incarcerated persons with divorce, custody, support and other civil matters (not their criminal cases), I have learned that many inmates and their families cannot afford phone contact with others, and others can't afford phone contact with them. There is no excuse for this. These companies have the inside track because they provide the MONITORING equipment and service in jails and prisons. But that does not justify adding a PUNISHMENT and financial burden not authorized by the court or justified by the crime. And these costs are applied to persons who have NOT been found guilty and are NOT under sentence, but just awaiting trial. Many of those are found NOT to be guilty at all; but their defense is hampered by these charges.

I do understand the reasoning behind charging more for calls from prison, but really, with the way the cost of making a phone call has changed (a person can talk for unlimited amount of time, long-distance included, for as little as $40 a month), why does it cost so much to make a phone call from ANYWHERE these days? Yes, the person in prison may have done something unspeakable, but what does the price of their phone calls really change? Perhaps someone committing a crime would think, "Hmm... I better not do this... if I go to prison it will cost my family $1 a minute to talk to me..." But that's highly unlikely to be a thought in their mind whatsoever. Just make the phone rate the same as it was to make a long distance call over a decade ago, 10 cents a minute. That still racks up pretty quickly, so there is still profit to be made, right? To be honest I don't know much about why there is a charge at all, but as I said, with the fact that you can get phone service so cheap, it doesn't make sense to charge so much more.

I volunteer in a state prison and I hear the pain of prisoners who cannot contact their families often because of the cost. The cost factor has caused a problem in the prison because of the smuggling of cell phones into the prison to circumvent the cost of a phone call. These calls are not monitored and can easily be used for illegal purposes. Lowering the phone call cost would eliminate the legitimate use of these phones.

I recently dealt with Global Tel Link which has the contract for prisons in Delaware where I live. I was charged a $10 up front fee and about 35 cents per minute. I have a remaining balance of $30 since my friend was released from jail and determining how to get a refund was quite a challenge. It turns out I have to mail or fax a written request for my refund and if there is no account activity for 90 days, GTL closes the account and keeps the money. I don't have any other option as GTL has an exclusive contract, therefore I think further regulation is in order. It is wholly inappropriate to give a company an exclusive contract and then allow them to set terms that border on usury.

Most people in prison are there for non-violent crimes. The time spent in prison, which is usually not near the neighborhoods they come from, strains the relationships with family and friends, especially when it is difficult and/or expensive for loved ones to visit. Sometimes prisoners do not want visits in person. Whatever the reason, telephone calls may be the only connection to home and a normal social fabric. Allowing vastly inflated rates for phone calls from prison is cruel, discriminatory, and is against the interest of society, since having regular phone calls from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to return to prison.

I urge you to decide on rates that do not prey on prisoners, their families and their lack of choice.

Experts should know how much it costs to provide phone service to prisons. Rates that are allowed to be charged should be based on a reasonable mark-up of 10% or so. We know without regulation, people are being exploited. This is clearly wrong. So please do the right thing. Control this monopoly market because it is the right thing to do.

As a retired SWB/AT&T telephone operator I can tell you that these rates are outrageous. These rates have to do with contracts betweek privately owned prisons, the states & a need to make the most profit on the people that have no choice on how to communicate.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. People who are in jail most likely have families with very few resources. It is unconscionable for phone companies to exploit people who are already suffering. Let children speak to their parents. It's not the child's fault that the parent is in jail.

I have worked as a correctional officer in a women's prison and now teach in one. I have seen first hand the suffering that children with parents in prison endure-from toddlers to teenagers. They are powerless in this situation. It is both heartless and counterproductive to allow companies to charge exorbitant prices for intra-state calls, thus punishing whole families.

So, will the FCC regulate the in-state phone call charges of the prison phone monopolies? Or will they cave-in, look the other way as so many other Federal and State agencies have when corporate lobbyists wave their campaign contribution dollars in the legislators' faces? Please implement regulations that are in the interest of America's flesh and blood citizens, that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The FCC needs to reign in exorbitant phone charges. Children who remain in touch with their parents and grandparents are less likely to grow up to become criminals themselves. So, in effect, my tax dollars are subsidizing these high phone rates in the form of more likely future prison costs.

Fix this!!!

These parents are paying their debt to the society for crimes they have committed where in our Constitution do we exact a pecuniary punishment as well. This seems like double jeopardy to me and should not be permitted.

Without the love that can be expressed in phone calls these children are more likely to follow their parents into our penitentiary system so these phone company's are perpetuating the cycle instead of alleviating or stopping it.

If they have no conscious then I would hope that the FCC might. Show me that you do by regulating these companies who are profiting from the downtrodden.

I visit prison inmates often and one of their biggest problems is that inmates are not able to stay in contact with their families because of the extraordinarily high cost of phone calls. Inmates who have been in continuous contact with their families have a much lower recidivism rate than those who cannot afford to make phone calls. In fact, "prisons for profit" has been a huge failure in this country, with private prisons getting rich and receiving "guaranteed occupancy" from the government. This system incarcerates many non-violent persons unfortunate enough to be poor. It relies on unfair laws and unfair sentencing to keep the private prison system's profits up, at the expense of American citizens' lives.

Smaller, public owned and operated prisons used for violent criminals only, and a system of mandatory community service and drug rehabilitation for non-violent offenders, improved public education systems, and repealed drug laws against cannabis and hemp, would cost the taxpayers far less, prevent incarceration of persons who are not a threat to our society, and reintegrate non-violent offenders into society to become productive, tax paying citizens. It costs this country far less to educate a person than to incarcerate them. And for the USA to have the highest rate of adult incarceration in the civilized world is a travesty of justice, a destruction of American families, and a misuse of national resources. Such a sad waste of lost souls and what they may have accomplished. We should be embarrassed as a nation over this failed and bigoted system.

Some things should just not be managed "for profit". Prisons, police, military, and healthcare are just the most obvious tip of the iceberg. The long- and short-term toll on all members of the family is worsened by the unnecessary difficulties in communicating with inmates. It increases the inmates' isolation from their communities, and aggravates children's sense of loss and disconnection from parents, which exacerbates intergenerational trauma. The high cost of phone calls to inmates is simply profiteering at the expense of the most vulnerable.

It is not just in-state calls which should be investigated. My son is in prison in California. For 14 years I have visited him driving from Pennsylvania. However, keeping in touch by telephone exposes me and the rest of his family to criminally high charges not justified by the actual cost. I have thought for years about requesting an investigation of these charges. I am happy someone is doing so. The only justification for the extraordinary charges is graft, pure and simple!

When you have a "captive" audience, everything is more expensive due to lack of choices. Movie theaters, casinos, concerts, certain ATMs and so on. I don't believe that given the lack of choice for the family, who are free and on the outside, forced to pay the price of privatization to communicate with a parent, child or other family member in prison. Especially if there is a loss of income due to incarceration. Psychic hotlines charge $1.00 a minute. Are you serious?

My stepson is currently incarcerated after being, set up, framed, and railroaded by a psychotic U.S. Attorney so devoid of conscience that the presiding judge at his sentencing publicly reprimanded her for her overzealous attempts to drastically increase his sentence with falsified evidence.

It costs him a small fortune every time calls us. Privatization of the prison system is a malignant obscenity. States are saddled with quotas to fill beds, so if they don't have enough criminals, they frame some to avoid penalties. Privatization of ANY government functions must stop. The corporatization of America is nothing less than the Third Reich on steroids, sans the stupid uniforms.

Geez! I can't believe this is allowed in the first place. If the FCC doesn't do anything about this right away, I'll be ever more certain that it has no guts, no heart, and no real power. The world is filled with outrage after outrage. There used to be good people who would fight against this before it ever became an issue. Now we're whacked with so many issues of people being unjustly treated that we could spend our whole existence fighting it. What have we become?

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. My elderly friend struggles to live on her poverty level income and sacrifices money that she could spend on food/necessities to be able to afford occasional collect calls from her oldest son in prison. He is incarcerated over 3 hours away from her and she doesn't get to see him every month because of the cost of the round trip, as it is. The high cost of their long-distance, in-state phone calls limit their contact even further. It's criminal how prisoners and their families are taken advantage of in so many ways! We should be helping families stay in contact with their loved ones and not making them feel even more estranged because they can't afford a simple weekly phone call. We need to put people before profits!!

I am dismayed to learn that states that have the right to regulate the charges for in-state calls to and from prison inmates don't do a better job of limiting the costs of those telephone calls. Most of the families of prisoners are living on restricted incomes and watch their expenditures closely. Too often they don't have the funds necessary to call their family members on a regular basis because the high rates are too much for the limited funds available to them after they meet food and housing expenses. At the present time the FCC regulates the calls to and from prisons that cross state lines. I strongly support FCC taking responsibility for the regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please work quickly to implement and enforce regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates no matter where the call originates - from the homes of family members or from the prisoner's place of incarceration.

The obscene amounts inmate families are charged to talk with their loved ones is hidden from most of the population because it does not affect them. Since the incarcerated are so heavily drawn from the ranks of the poor, it is poor ramilies who bear this intolerable burden, as they struggle to keep their loved person tied to a support community. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The prison industrial complex is already taking advantage of many inmates through trumped up charges, but gouging prisoners and their families for phone calls is really too much.

Imprisonment is generally thought to be punishment and a chance to rehabilitate those incarcerated. Having a family and other loved ones outside is one of the best motivators for rehabilitation. It is thus important to allow prisoners an affordable way to maintain these ties, especially for those whose loved ones live far away.

I am a priest and for over 25 years I have been keeping in touch this way with a member of my parish whose trial has been adjudicated as unfair, and whose penalty has been declared unconstitutional, and he has been kept imprisoned over a year since then, while the legislature mulls over what to do. I pay for the phone bills, with my SSDI (disability) pension, But children NEED to speak to parents, and the price is excessive and exorbitant.

Since 99.9% of those incarcerated are poor, paying so much to keep in touch with their loved ones is an extreme hardship, especially with the loss of income. It's extremely important tah children are able to keep in touch with family members in jail and prison, as it can help keep those same children on the right path as they grow up.

It is criminal to charge more for a phone call from or to a prison than to any home or business and to allow the phone companies and state to be in collusion to reap profits from prisoners who can't vote or their families who have little to no support. How can the prisoners be "rehabilitated" or their children break the cycle of incarceration when even the smallest link to family is broke due to this price gouging.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I was the foster parent of two young children whose parents were incarcerated, and as much as I would have liked for them to talk to their parents regularly, the prohibitive costs of phoning them made it impossible. It was not something these youngsters could understand; they just wanted to hear their parents' voices and be reassured that they loved them.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. I have been involved in prison ministry know how important it is for children to have contact with their parent and it may not always be possible for a child to visit. I also have family members who work for the prison system. They have said how important it is for the stability of the prison system for the inmates to have regular contact with families if possible. Too many are abandoned when they are incarcerated. That's like being punished twice.

I have experienced the difficulties of trying to call someone. With one system it was almost impossible to get the arrangements made so that the phone call could happen at whatever the outrageous price. Another time, the ridiculous rates were arranged. I was supposed to be able to obtain a refund for the unused portion. After numerous attempts at doing so over more than 6 weeks, I gave up on obtaining the refund. I paid outrageous rates, and then, I had to leave an unused balance. They were able to pocket the money both times. For one phone call, I paid more than my monthly phone bill. This needs regulation.

FCC - The telephone companies should be able to charge fair pricing for services rendered in prison even if it is a dollar a minute. When a person commits a crime they should do the time and pay fully for their actions with "no special breaks". I am a victim and not happy with our judicial system!!!! People who are victims of crime are treated unfairly as the judicial system fails to prosecute to the extent as specified by laws.

Will the FCC represent greed, i.e. "piling on," of rapacious phone companies on top of society's victims? "Hey, these guys BROKE THE LAW, so let's REALLY STICK IT TO THEM!" Gee, I'm sure THAT's gonna make prisoners into better citizens. We've seen this kind of CORPORATE CRIME before! The sub-prime mortgage scam was this kind of predatory program.

Some things are more important than turning a profit, and it is the job of our government to protect its citizens from the indifferent hands of greedy corporations. Some things are more important than profits, and family and social health are at the top of that list. Phone calls to imprisoned loved ones should be free.

Why, why, why are phone companies allowed to charge more for prisoner's phone calls? They do not even install enough phones for prison use in the first place, and then they charge more!?! Dear FCC:

Please use your powers to regulate the prison-phone industry's in-state call charges for calls in and out of prison.

The thought of phone companies making obscene profits off a particular segment of society is truly reprehensible, especially when studies show that contact with families can help prisoners avoid returning to prison in the future.

Global Tel*Link, Securus Technologies, and CenturyLink need to be reined in, as do the states that grant these companies monopolies, allow the obscene rates, and then receive kickbacks from these companies' egregious profits.

Again, please step in and regulate the prison-phone industry.

Sincerely,

Nathanael Dresser

Why do corporations keep screwing everyday Americans (in this case, I'm not talking about those incarcerated, I'm talking about their loved ones)- and, even more importantly, why does the FCC keep letting them do it?!! Why should calls to prisons cost more than calls to anywhere else? Do they cost the corporation more? Please do what's right here, and prevent phone companies from taking advantage of the families and loved ones of people who are in prison.

The phone is often the only link to a person's family and life "outside." It is a link to love, acceptance, comfort, and hope. In prison the phone is a monopoly, and people on both sides of those walls are at the mercy of the phone owners and operators. They should not be considered the cash cows that they are by owners and prison officials and unions that often get kickbacks.

My son was saved and is currently being reintroduced to the outside world because I was able to afford accepting his calls. I know that wasn't true for other with whom he wasn't incarcerated.

This is preying on people often with the least ability to cope, both monetarily and emotionally. It is the worst kind of greed..

It also simply makes sense to try and keep people in prison from getting angry.. and being able to keep connection with family at a time like this is very important.

Three phone companies are trying to charge some of the nationâ€™s poorest grandmothers, fathers, and children upwards of $1.00 per minute to talk on the phone with those dearest to their hearts. And these families have no choice but to pay the high cost; if they donâ€™t, they wonâ€™t be able to hear their loved oneâ€™s voice.

Why can these companies get away with this? Because the loved ones in this story are in prison – and these three phone companies have exclusive deals with 45 states that allow them to charge obscenely high fees for incarcerated people to use the phone.

I called on the Federal Communications Comission (FCC) to cap the cost of phone calls to prisons earlier. You listened –in your decision to cap interstate rates. But the FCCâ€™s current regulation doesnâ€™t go far enough: most families with loved ones in prison pay in-state phone rates, and they can still be gouged by unscrupulous phone companies.

The FCC needs to keep going: Help ALL kids stay in touch with their parents by regulating the in-state rates that the prison phone companies can charge. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.

Incarceration is supposed to help those who have gone errant to see how much better life can be. Instead, many prison systems turn those who have gone errant into evil-doers on their return to society. Rather than wanting to do good, they want to get even. Charging exorbitant rates to talk on the phone does nothing to help.

Let's stop the gouging and get real about helping.

To profit off of the incarceration of Human Beings is wrong, but to deny them contact with the outside world through high charges for phone calls is absurd. I support new FCC regulations to protect the rights of those imprisoned to speak with their loved ones without financial burden.

There is no need to penalize the family members because of the person who is incarcerated. Often the people on the outside send money to the person in jail to be able to make the call. Phone companies who extort high phone rates to a captive audience lack ethics and integrity. Please help keep them in check by supporting the in-state call charge rates. Thank you.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. It's outrageous the cost to call and talk to someone in prison. I had to buy $25-50 at a time. Once my brother was out, I had no way to recover the minutes I didn't use. In Okaloosa County, a county with many crooked officials (thankfully some caught), there is no one to trust to discuss such corruption in these matters. Please, please fix this!

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The incarcerated individuals are dealing with the consequences of choices they made, but it is extremely important to their families to be able to connect with them during their terms. This can be an important influence in helping to prevent recidivism if and when those men and women are able to leave prison. In the meantime, the family members and the incarcerated individuals should not have the added punishment of being unable to talk with each other due to high prices imposed on their phone calls.

I discovered, when my niece spent a brief period in jail, that the phone charges are not only high, they are utterly unpredictable. They ranged from 40 cents a minute to 4 dollars a minute—for no apparent reason! This indicates to me that there is dishonesty and corruption in the contracts that are given to run these private phone systems. That we even HAVE privately run prisons is an abomination and a stain on our democracy.

This has been the case for many years. Unfortunately, the prison system is a big business and because the prisoners are helpless, they don't have the choice of using a different company/corporation, the families have no choice but to pay the exorbitant fees or not be able to talk to their loved ones. This is doubly important to prisoners as they are already isolated from their families and much of society as well as enduring many hardships, they need the support of their loved ones.

In Florida we had a phone company that really took advantage of the situation. They changed a few years ago to a company that charges under $2.00 for a 15 minute call. So this can be done and the companies make a profit. Also the prisoners can talk to their families, which sometimes can help de-escalate problems in the system

Supporting contact to the outside world for an inmate is not always a bad idea. Eventually inmates will come out and integration back into society will be made easier, if their social contacts were kept alive by affordable phone rates.

We hopefully all have our beloved ones in our life that help us through difficult times and also help us to make better choices. I would think that would also be true for inmates while locked up and also when getting out. So, a loving grandma can help trigger change for the better more than a prison guard or a parole officer might.

I rather have ex-cons with their social and family life with their loved ones supported and half way intact than have ex-cons with no contacts and loved ones left. Because the lonely ex-cons are the real scary ones, who might snap one day shooting anybody in the streets.

Also: If you want inmates to fit better into our society and into our system after release, one should think twice to cut them off from it with un-affordable prison phone rates. The only human contact left then is mostly other inmates, which most likely are not the best influence in one's life. All this will only increase inmates chance to become institutionalized and then cost society even more.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Having taught inside a State Prison for 4+ years, I saw the pain of prisoners unable to call an ill, or aged mother, or just concerned families. I personally know a local mother for whom a phone call once a month was a big sacrifice, and a personal visit out of the question. More than once I have taken a mother to a prison for a visit, and seen the tears and love. My feeling is that I hope this problem can be addressed very soon, and the greedy corporations responsible for bleeding caring relatives comply. I also support a 10 minute cutoff time on the low rate phone visit. Thanks, John.

Shawn R. Griffith's excellent book, "Facing the US Prison Problem 2.3 Million Strong" highlight's this over-pricing, which results in less frequent communications, as counter-productive to prisoner rehabilitation efforts. Statistics show that the more familial contact, even by telephone, that a prisoner has the stronger the familial bond, leading to less recidivism after returning to society.

Not all prisoners are in there because they've murdered someone, and it's crucial that they be able to communicate with family since we don't have strong prisoner reform systems in place to help them during their stay. I know from personal experience that Missouri has leaned on the prison phone industry pretty heavily, taking per minute rates from a dollar a minute or close to down between ten and fifteen cents per minute. Even better, at least for a lot of the inmates, they set it up so inmates could buy phone time through the canteen. That took a big strain off a lot of people, and let inmates talk to people who couldn't accept collect calls.

Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Experts know that having regular calls with and visits from family while incarcerated can make people far less likely to go back to prison, but the incredibly high cost of phone calls to and from prison makes it hard for incarcerated people to keep in touch. Considering the billions of dollars our states spend annually on incarceration, it is in the stateâ€™s interest to ensure maximum contact with families.

This attempt on the part of telephone company executives to manipulate and profit from the misfortune of incarcerated people and their families is nothing short of obscene. Prison populations are already being penalized by the penal system – it is neither the phone companies' job, nor is it their right to add to the penalty being imposed not only on prison inmates, but also on their families.

Seems as if the persons on the outside have done something wrong, as if they were incarcerated. Sad as it is, most people who are in prison have no money nor their families. talking gives people hope that their family has not forgotten them, especially if they are far away and can't visit.

What truly concerns me is I read that someofus.org raised nearly $100,000.00 for walmart workers who have been fired for standing up for change and nobody seems to know where the money went. My case is one of the worst out there. I workred at walmart for 10-years and was fired for reporting the managers abuse of a handicapped female colleague that everyone else, although they witnessed and heard the abuse and hysterical crying, was afraid to report. I fought a grueling 2 year legal battle which was lost by what can only be described as complete and thorough gross corporate corruption, despite absolute documented proof of numerous flagrant civil and labor law violations and even a police eyewitness statement proving very serious federal crimes committed against me and the courts in their outright lying and submitting false defamatory documents to federal investigators, and ever since then have been dedicated full time to doing everything i can to stand up for walmart employees. I am 47 years old with nothing. lost my job, the last 10 real prime working years of my life invested in the company, any hope of retirement in my lifetime,and got put through incredible persecution, anguish, and depression, all because i did the right thing when everyone else was afraid to report the managers abuse of a handicapped female colleague who could be heard hysterically wailing across the store. Is Someofus.org using peoples commpasion for cases like mine to exploit money from good hearted people and then not distributing it to the ones those givers are intending to help? What's the story??? This is my second inquiry. Please understand, I have a human and social responsibiltiy to do the right thing and initiate a proper investigation if I do not get an adequate response very soon. Thank you in advance for your prompt response. Robert Snodgrass, 715 Taylor Rd. Downingtown, Pa. 19335 phone: 484-252-9596 snod307@hotmail.com

The FCC should end phone companies' practice of preying financially on the families of prisoners by charging monopoly rates. Staying in touch with their family members ought to be encouraged through subsidized, low rates on the grounds that family ties are an incentive for folks in prison to reform and rejoin society.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates.
Mike Leary

In today's age of free long distance, I believe FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry is long over due. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. The phone companies in prisons are making it near impossible for the incarcerated to speak to their families. What lessons could be taught so the kids, siblings, and other family don't make the same mistake as the incarcerated? Please make phone calls affordable by regulating the prison industries stranglehold over communication systems within prisons.

Children whose parents are in prison should have every support we can possibly produce. It is cruel and counter productive to give these future citizens experiences that we know will cause mental health problems. Private companies should be forced to charge normal rates when they service prisons. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. Those who are incarcerated presumably committed crimes that deserve punishment. Their loved ones; their children, don't deserve to be punished because they have no choice in phone rates.

While the parent may be the one convicted of a crime against society, the punishment should not be extended to the children. It is morally wrong to punish the child because of the parent's conviction!!! It also gives the prisoner one more reason not to reform but to rebel against society when the sentence is served!!!

So many families are separated by unfair drug laws that punish people extremely and do not allow for people to get the help that they need. Instead, a bag of marijuana can cost someone 15 years to life. It is outrageous. It seems unfair to pile on to that fees of this sort. Especially given that many of these families were poor to begin with - or were rendered poor after the loved one was sent to jail.

So - give that - ...

I believe that making it cheaper would allow people in prison to keep in better contact with their loved ones, which would put them in a better mindset. That would help with behavior.

I also think it would be a factor in rehabilitation so the person is less likely to re-offend, and instead be a member of society once again living an honest life they can be proud of. Additionally, they'd be paying taxes and putting money into the economy, rather than costing a large amount of money to keep incarcerated.

Thank you for reading this.

My family and I completely support FCC regulation of in-state call charges by the predatory prison phone industry. While we don't know any prisoners, we ask why make it more difficult to rehabilitate prisoners by making it unfairly difficult to maintain contact with family members, and treat these family members different from the rest of our citizens? It is imperative that you immediately implement regulations that will allow every citizen to speak with their imprisoned family members at affordable rates. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Making phone calls more affordable would help prevent the future incarceration of the children of inmates. The current penal system is worse than the Soviet Union gulag which allowed some families to remain together. Our current system is designed to isolate inmates and encourages recidivism. No wonder the U.S. Now leads in incarceration. The father-in-law of a former inmate.

I strongly support FCC regulation of in-state call charges in the prison phone industry. Please implement regulations that will allow all family members to speak to their incarcerated loved ones at affordable rates. IT is cruel to the families, especially innocent children of inmates. to charge these exorbitant rates. Furthermore, it is against the interests of society: increasing the isolation of inmates can raise recitivism rates. They need their families - society needs their families - to help them reintegrate with society and become productive citizens.
