First Name	Last Name	Comment	City	State	Zip Code
Justin	Evans	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20906
Leland	Hodgkins	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20036
Adam	Kovacevich	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	VA	22213
Stephanie	Valencia	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20001

Justin	Evans	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20906
David	Isaacs	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20016
Stephen	Geer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10014
Mike	Sager	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20002

Tim	Fullerton	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10014
Leland	Hodgkins	wqI support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20036
Staci	Pies	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKVILLE	MD	20853

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
H	Anasto	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	WASHINGTON	DC	20009
Jeffrey	Kardatzke	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	REDONDO BEACH	CA	90278
Christine	Lugo	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REDONDO BEACH	CA	90278

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.
Dan	McSwain		WASHINGTON	DC	20001
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.
Adam	Goldberg		FAIRFAX	VA	22032
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.
Brian	Woolfolk		FORT WASHINGTO	MD	20744

Kanisha	Jones	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOWIE	MD	20720
Carletta	Fellows	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44120
eric	bolton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20007

Tanya	Woolfolk	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20024
eric	bolton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20007
James	George	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43230

travis	mace	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARION	NC	28752
eric	bolton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20007
Joe	Dooley	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	VA	22307

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.
aimee	moon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAYETTEVILLE	NC	28314
Ben	Lerman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DEERFIELD	IL	60015
Ben	Lerman	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DEERFIELD	IL	60015

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Fiona	Cahill	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	WASHINGTON	DC	20009
Ifeoma	Ozoma	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	WASHINGTON	DC	20001
John	Sullivan	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRFAX STATION	VA	22039

Luis	Olivares	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TARRYTOWN	NY	10591
Matthew	Graham	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT GEORGE G M	MD	20755
Nicole	Weissman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20009

Stephen	Geer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10014
c	c	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20036
Michele	lynch	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20009

dan	pollak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20001
Donna	Webster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	46815
TIMOTHY	Van Guse	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YAKIMA	WA	98908

Derrick	Render	I support efforts to unlock the box and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53219
Joseph	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GIBSONIA	PA	15044
Linda	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOWLERVILLE	MI	48836

daniece	parker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YUBA CITY	CA	95991
Ross	Kimes	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAN	OK	73069
JEFF	EDGE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	PA	15074

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Paul	Kruse	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	CARMEL	IN	46033
Jason	Lambert	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	VICTORIA	MN	55386
Beau	Phillips	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	VA	22320

Judah	Richardson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BETTENDORF	IA	52722
Gregory	miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRFIELD	OH	45014
Philip	Kole	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99218

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Maxon	Goudy	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	OCEAN VIEW	DE	19970
Tim	Stephens	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.	MARRIOTTSVILLE	MD	21104
Eric	Jilot	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMPSHIRE	IL	60140

Taylor	Goodman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURNET	TX	78611
Dan	Fisher	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	FL	34109
Mark	Entel	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAITHERSBURG	MD	20878

MICHAEL	SCROGIN	Why can\'t you buy a box on the open market. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VENTURA	CA	93003
Justin	Johnson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	TX	78757
Christopher	Gonyea	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER	NH	3103

Matt	Cohen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15241
Arlene	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COUNTRY CLUB HIIL		60478
Debbie	Coffey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKWALL	TX	75032

carol	nelssen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98146
Susan	Wagner	I am 70 yrs old, cannot walk or leave the house. TV is my main entertainment. I cannot afford food and tv any longer. My choices are very limited and unaffordable. I remember a TV antenna on my house gave me enough channels to watch Now I pay a small fortune to watch crap. Please do something fast. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VENTURA	CA	93001

Julie	Buchholz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDGERTON	WI	53534
Leslie	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWARK	NJ	7106
David	Duerr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33312

Alexander	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH ELGIN	IL	60177
Marie	Letourneau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARMINGDALE	NY	11735
Jesse	Elder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM COAST	FL	32164

Charles	Bennett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97233
Ralph	Castro	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10452
John	RATCLIFFE	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CENTER TUFTONB(	NH	3816

Tim	Badaczewski	I believe that CableCards as well as cable set top boxes should be allowed to be purchased and not rented. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box or CableCard from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box and CableCards.	GERMANTOWN	MD	20874
Orion	Schmidt	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43614
Sandra	Dion	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	RI	2865

Blake	Schapker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HERMITAGE	TN	37076
Anthony	Morales	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	TX	78727
JOYCE	CARTER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23453

Gary	Clark	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MI	48609
Es	Spears	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KNOXVILLE	TN	37917
Deborah	Barry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST TAUNTON	MA	2718

Dante	Durand	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90025
teddy	wetherby	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	GA	30157
JUSTIN	CLAYTON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTELL	GA	30168

David	Trachtenberg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSFORD	NY	14534
Emily	Mullinix	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HALETHORPE	MD	21227
Cheryl	Mahaffey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWISVILLE	TX	75077

Francis	McCarthy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UPPER DARBY	PA	19082
Mark	Helms	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT ORCHARD	WA	98366
Lynn	Billington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLINGHAM	WA	98225

Douglas	Mare	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUAKERTOWN	PA	18951
Vince	Cicero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I would actually pay for cable if it was 40-50 dollars a month not 100+. Thanks	CHICAGO	IL	60622

Dana	Sexton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KERNERSVILLE	NC	27284
Arlin	Benjamin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT SMITH	AR	72903
Michael	Schindler	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISBURG	PA	17111

LaWanda	Lacey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGHLAND	IN	46322
Veronica	Marrow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15221
Sherri	Perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE GROUND	WA	98604

Mary	Zoli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LARGO	FL	33770
Tim	Boggs	Consumers should be able to use the device of their choice on any service. Whether it be phones, computers or set top boxes, services licensed by the FCC should be open to consumer choice. The phone and cable companies should not be able to dictate the device used to consume the service offered. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KELLER	TX	76244

David	Tweedy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	NY	13601
Christopher	Edgemon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11217
darren	lecompte	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRETNA	LA	70053

Thomas	Davidson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	GA	30906
Brad	Friedkin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33322
Ronald	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MISHAWAKA	IN	46544

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Trevor	Paisley	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASSILLON	OH	44646
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Edward	Rosario	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YONKERS	NY	10705
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Julie	Goins	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	NC	28412

Jeff	Brookman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICH CREEK	VA	24147
Rose	Rogan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. I happen to pay much more than that annually. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOYLESTOWN	PA	18902
Robert	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ZION	IL	60099

Eve	Gillespie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WARREN	OH	44483
Mirza	Ali	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNTAIN TOP	PA	18707
William	Brown	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENWOOD	AR	72936

Angela	Gray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST ORANGE	NJ	7017
Rowan	Reid	After enforcing the need for Cable boxes (not needed prior) my quality of service has become pixilated, and the boxes in question add no value. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGHLAND	CA	92346
Andrew	Lanham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEARLAND	TX	77584

jeff	marcon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. This is just like the old phone monopoly where you had to pay for the telephone and could not inter-connect another non-Bell phone... The FCC ruled that this was anti-competitive then.....and now its time to rule to do the same for the set top boxes!!!! Just do it! Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MD	21045
Otis	Ruffin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDLAND	TX	79706

Arthur	Kabelowsky	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	WI	53711
Tom	Kruk	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11228
carl	croom	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARION	AR	72364

Bharat	Kalaria	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAUREL	MD	20723
Dipak	Patel	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLASTONBURY	CT	6033
Breanna	Shopshire	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	MI	48161

Luis	Rosario	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10453
Luther	Boothe	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRISTOL	TN	37620
Jerry	Smith	i am tired of paying this high prices for the same shows over and over I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYNEVILLE	AL	36040

Jerry	Smith	i am tired of paying this high prices for the same shows over and over I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYNEVILLE	AL	36040
Michael	Dearing	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	48078
Darren	Perks	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITHIA	FL	33547

Peggy	Fergusson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CALDWELL	ID	83607
james	smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANAHEIM	CA	92801
Ken	Morash	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	MA	1523

Amy	Raymond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KALKASKA	MI	49646
Greg	Ganoe	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORGANTOWN	WV	26501
Angie	Fannon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APEX	NC	27539

David	Elkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92110
Freida	Sanders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ACKERMAN	MS	39735
Judy	North	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREWSTER	MA	2631

Neal	Fischer	Apps like the Time Warner App works on a Roku. There would be no reason to have a box in my situations. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST COLUMBIA	SC	29169
Dana	Brainerd	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTBROOK	CT	6498
OMAR	VAZCONES	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92113

Jim	Tozza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAUGUS	MA	1906
Pam	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS CRUCES	NM	88001
doug	shade	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43222

Toni	Carrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRIDLEY	CA	95948
Amanda	Whitney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	3957
Dawn	Karbo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48228

Cristian	Luzbet	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFTON	NJ	7012
Pam	Mason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WETUMPKA	AL	36093
Chris	Allen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MACOMB	MI	48044

Arlene	Boster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLEN BURNIE	MD	21061
Brad	Carnes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	57105
Pamela	Fitzgerald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	GA	30904

Pamela	Fitzgerald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	GA	30904
Bradley	Acaley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKFORD	IL	61104
Elana	Newsom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT HOPE	WV	25880

Bill	Gannon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95401
Candeeda	Lawrence	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WISTER	OK	74966
Melanie	Holton	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ANA	CA	92705

eric	beer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOYLESTOWN	PA	18901
Earl	Farmer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98133
John	Sheehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINDSOR	CA	95492

Damaris	Vazquez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOSTON	MA	2127
Karen	McIntyre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	35215
Michele	Stuart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATCHUNG	NJ	7069

SANISH	GEORGE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60016
Randy	Wooten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORWALK	CT	6850
Jeanne	Titsworth	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HACKETT	AR	72937

Jeanne	Titsworth	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HACKETT	AR	72937
Chuck	Wade	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE ROCK	AR	72206
Ronald	Bonacci	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYES	VA	23072

Mel	Olson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARDEN GROVE	CA	92845
Paul	Katzer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PRINCETON	NJ	8540
Lajuana	Vanpelt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIANNA	AR	72360

David	Hutchins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIDALIA	LA	71373
Alison	Basta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUEBLO	CO	81007
Dale	Mills	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CROSSVILLE	TN	38558

Stephen	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98662
LaQuita	Collins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAYWOOD	IL	60153
Arlene	Haefling	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OYSTER BAY	NY	11771

Danajoy	Monroe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	CO	80027
Tendai	Rivers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IOWA CITY	IA	52240
Bob	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YUMA	AZ	85364

Some	Body	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WALTON BE/	FL	32548
Justin	Stewart	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEMENTON	NJ	8021
Freddie	Lopez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60639

kathy	mayo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLY	MI	48442
erms	lockhart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77045
Valerie	Gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTHERN PINES	NC	28387

ron	potter	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAGRANGE	IN	46761
Gail	Langsjoen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANKATO	MN	56001
Phyllis	Salta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10023

Emildo	Garcia	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TITUSVILLE	FL	32780
Barbe	Ford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GALESBURG	IL	61401
Luke	Roulston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63110

Deanne	Wolcott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	35849
Elizabeth	Misak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BETHLEHEM	PA	18017

Linda	Quenzer	Look, you broke up Ma Bell & busted their union. Why don\'t you support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice since we no longer make a living wage, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. STOP SCROOGE-ING US! Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68508
Holly	Best	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	LA	70508

Elissa	Oats	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH HOLLAND	IL	60473
Sandra	Mccarthy@gmail.cc	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33315
Elaine	Tayrien	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAYETTEVILLE	AR	72703

Mackenzie	Dupons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARROLLTON	TX	75007
Brian	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	19145
Joe	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLACERVILLE	CA	95667

Kyle	Babiasz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLINTON TOWNSH	MI	48036
Kevin	Gallen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORRISVILLE	PA	19067
Dianna	Burmeister	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FERNANDINA BEAC	FL	32034

Diane	Sloan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	TN	37172
Thomas	Barresi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG POND	PA	18334
Cheryl	Bowles	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89107

Vontrese	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANYON COUNTRY	CA	91387
Shirley	Crenshaw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	63146
Brian	Alexander	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAPID CITY	SD	57702

Claude	Kemper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT LAVACA	TX	77979
Shannon	Sullivan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	TX	78759
Michael	Stevens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUOLUMNE	CA	95379

Youlanda	Lane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LUFKIN	TX	75901
Michael	George	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60614
Teresa	Pruitt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KNOXVILLE	TN	37902

Ignacio	Melendez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55407
freddy	lopez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OXNARD	CA	93030
Leonard	Cannon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TACOMA	WA	98407

cristy	morgan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT AMANT	LA	70774
Timothy	Hills	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAKAWAO	HI	96768
Heidi	Scoggins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAHAINA	HI	96761

Joshua	Jenkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONGVIEW	WA	98632
Elizabeth	Babin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	70716
jerry	viars	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVIS	WV	26260

Gilbert	Bailey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77023
Joseph	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GIBSONIA	PA	15044
Chris	James	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENCINO	CA	91316

Stacy	Gonzales	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HEWITT	TX	76643
Christian	Troix	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1851
Jeffrey	Francway	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92104

Michele	DIVINS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98685
Travis	Turner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FENTON	MI	48430
Christopher	Wiggins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	OR	97301

Kegan	Mahon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT ALLEGANY	PA	16743
Katrina	Le Blanc	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19143
Mike	Bernardino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92108

Anne	Washington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHELMSFORD	MA	1824
Cecilia	Lawson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Being I have been a consumer for at minimum 40 years that adds up to $9,240 for a box I still don\'t own. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68503
patriciA	ROBERTS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGHILL	LA	71075

Andrew	Parker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEDO	IL	61231
Mary	Stringari	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YREKA	CA	96097
Jerre	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAHUARITA	AZ	85629

cindy	loccisano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELLWOOD CITY	PA	16117
Nelson	Vasquez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11224
Jeremy	Searles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAYFIELD	KY	42066

Laura	Norris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUNNING SPRINGS	CA	92382
Donald	Kiser	Its support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	OR	97477
Ronald	Long	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUFFIN	NC	27326

Sandra	Fullenwider-Stewar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTSVILLE	AL	35806
Liz	Gerrity	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOULDER	CO	80303
Anna	Smith	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHULA VISTA	CA	91915

Chris	Flores	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90011
Susan	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON	IN	46750
Sean	Parhami	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BERKELEY	CA	94704

Cynthia	Reed	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORCO	CA	92860
Mihir	Marfatia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLOSTER	NJ	7624
Tommy	Farley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENSBORO	NC	27410

Joseph	Melcher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKVILLE	PA	15825
Danny	Goodman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE MARY	FL	32746
Rosie	Garcia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ONTARIO	CA	91761

Richard	sears	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILLINGTON	TN	38053
james	hazel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	MA	1523
Nelda	Gallagher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONE OAK	TX	75453

christopher	roth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90046
Joshua	Dudley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TULSA	OK	74114
John	Greene	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLETON	WI	54915

Antonio	Farias	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE FOREST	CA	92630
davidcccccccc	brandon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELKVILLE	IL	62932
Robert	Baxter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	OH	44702

Tess	Hoff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWBURY PARK	CA	91320
Eric	Gass	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APOPKA	FL	32703
Shawn	Byrne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGMAN	AZ	86401

Paulina	Subocz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIDGEWOOD	NY	11385
Tim	Dobranski	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL CAJON	CA	92020
martha	hensley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	NC	28034

Eleazar	Silva	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95111
John	Fockler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YOUNGSTOWN	OH	44512
John	Litschauer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT CLOUD	MN	56301

Matthew	Short	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RINGGOLD	VA	24586
TAnya	Baker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA CRUZ	CA	95065
Micheal	Penney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71129

Jennifer	Young	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. The service they provide is spotty and charge extravagantly for a basic service call for old lines and equipment. Let us watch what we want to pay for end packages and increasing costs. With innovations, costs should have decreased but nothing could be further from the truth.	PORTLAND	OR	97202
Barbara	Stephenson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRAVERSE CITY	MI	49686

Candy	Bradison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Actually it cost more than that. If you don\'t have insurance you have to pay for the box. The insurance for Directv is 7.99 to cover their box that they force you to rent. And now on top of that, to get access to demand/internet (besides having already paid for you internet) you have to purchase a cinema kit receiver to be able to get these. It is used so you can change to a channel and be offered the option to rewind to the beginning of a program but you cannot do this without this kit. I just found this out today. This is getting out of hand. We have law that was suppose to prevent this from happening. So why is no one enforcing this law? Why ARE we the victim again? We the People have hired people like you to keep this fair. We are informing you of the problem. Please enforce on the law that is to protect the consumers. Stop the cable/satellite companies from robbing from the People.	LAKEWOOD	WA	98499

Frank	Capistrano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYWARD	CA	94541
Sara	Cardenas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	WV	25313
Chris	Maynard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLEBORO	MA	2346

nasha	jackson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREEPORT	IL	61032
casey	lindskoog	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SACRAMENTO	CA	95823

Arnold	Mckiney	They\'ll Find something else to chatge for,like every time they reboot it,besides if I own it then I\'m responsible to pay them to fix or replace.isupport efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROMULUS	MI	48174
Diana	Potosme	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING VALLEY	CA	91977

Linda	Starbuck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAN	OK	73071
MARGIE	SHAW	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLE CHASSE	LA	70037
Thomas	Learnihan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89113

Shane	Abrahamson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53208
Denise	Minhoto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76116
Terrence	Nicholson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOSTON	MA	2118

Pam	Schobelock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IRVINGTON	KY	40146
Richard	Friesenhengst	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43227
Raymond	Gustely	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING	TX	77388

Matthew	Jennings	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PIEDMONT	AL	36272
Michael	Bay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT MARYS	OH	45885
Bryce	Shashinka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELTON	CT	6484

Lisa	Kellybrew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89117
Alan	Reyes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33175
Julie	Hamre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	OR	97306

Reba	Carswell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORGANTON	NC	28655
James	Long	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CRYSTAL LAKE	IL	60014
mary	fuller	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55104

lydia	houck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATON ROUGE	LA	70815
William	Dziubanek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVERSIDE	IL	60546
Samuel	Clough	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSCEOLA	IA	50213

David	Benoit	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILPITAS	CA	95035
Gregory	Krivanek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOND DU LAC	WI	54935
Manoella	Ibanez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARDEN CITY	KS	67846

Don	Hipp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CUYAHOGA FALLS	OH	44223
Mary Ann	Torres	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11204
Angus	Huang	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10002

Rama	Vemulapalli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHIPPANY	NJ	7981
Elizabeth	Hunt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSPORT	TN	37664
Joanne	McNeely	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKEECHOBEE	FL	34974

Michael	Reiter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSBURG	MD	20871
james	yung	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON BEA	CA	92647
Brenda	Furry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TILTONSVILLE	OH	43963

Angie	Evans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RENTON	WA	98056
Marsha	McGraw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLAND	MI	49423
Michael	moody	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUMBLE	TX	77338

Jana	Broadway	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	MS	39560
Scott	Head	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANGELO	TX	76904
William	LaPlante	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH ROCKWOO	MI	48179

Amy	West	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIVERPOOL	NY	13088
Jeffrey	Erbs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHIPPEWA FALLS	WI	54729
Ahmed	Majeed	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53225

Sandy	Bachman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRISTOL	CT	6010
Ouisa	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79935
George	Raymond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KALKASKA	MI	49646

patricia leanr	winslow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BIRMINGHAM	AL	35224
Wesley	McAbee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONVERSE	SC	29329
angela	goff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALDOBORO	ME	4572

James	Whiten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SIMPSONVILLE	SC	29680
James	Sullivan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COOKEVILLE	TN	38501
Jennifer	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUINCY	MA	2170

Thomas	Adams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49548
jimmy	whitaker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Also there is an environmental impact as these devices draw a fair amount of power beyond what our televisions alone do. All modern sets as you know are equipped with digital tuners and the algorithms for decoding with further assistance. We need better choices not mot power sucking, money making equipment.. Thank you for your time and consideration. Sincerely Jim A. Whitaker N8XYN	BATAVIA	OH	45103

Andrea	Mancuso	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HERKIMER	NY	13350
Michel	Brewer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDINA	OH	44256
Marcos	Burwell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	MA	1108

Susan	Sanderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTPELIER	VT	5602
Deborah	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARTINSVILLE	IN	46151
Michael	Devitt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURLINGTON	VT	5401

Kevin	Jackson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLENDALE	AZ	85306
Mark	Bolla	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15220
Dennis	Glendenning	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77084

Nancy	Timms	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	NC	28412
Christopher	Cantrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TALLAHASSEE	FL	32301
Mark	Conklin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALLKILL	NY	12589

Aileen	Pi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT CLOUD	FL	34769
David	Bresett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BARRE	VT	5641
Kristen	Joyce	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILTON	MA	2186

Heather	Morris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STAUNTON	VA	24401

Jorge	Juarez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. I used to pay $10 per rented receiver box per month while using AT&T U-Verse. Having 4 boxes in my house, this cost me $480 per year to only RENT EQUIPMENT without an option to buy; I asked, they said "no, you can only rent the equipment", and if the receiver stopped working through no fault of my own, I had to pay to repair it unless I paid for an extended coverage plan adding to rental costs. AT&T continues this practice now that they acquired DirecTV. Now I pay $7 per rented receiver box per month, totaling $336 annually in ONLY RENTAL EQUIPMENT, not service. The added service taxes for "local sports" are also irrational since I do not subscribe to sports packages. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV, add irrational taxes or add irrational fees they are unable to explain; when I questioned these fees the operators responded "it is simply a fee everyone pays". We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60656

Lloyd	Alcones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89122
Jodie	Gonsalves	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85205
jennifer	ellis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumuseer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. i dropped cable and direct tv and dish network for amazon fire	AKRON	OH	44306

Kathleen	Philbin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MATAWAN	NJ	7747
John	Liss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCALLEN	TX	78504
Vinnie	DiMezza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUEENSBURY	NY	12804

Arthur	Ferreira	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SWANSEA	MA	2777
Francesca	Marrone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEBSTER	MA	1570
masoud	KEYHANI	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MC LEAN	VA	22102

Jeff	Gardner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYKESVILLE	MD	21784
Linda	Daniels	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OXON HILL	MD	20745
Eric	Maddox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19119

Don	Hudson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARSHALL	MO	65340
THOMAS	CINQMARS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWPORT NEWS	VA	23605
Shannon	Erickson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLUE SPRINGS	MO	64014

Katie	Dye	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENTON	TX	76201
David	Hodgkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAVERHILL	MA	1830
Christopher	Burkert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEHIGHTON	PA	18235

Rod	Parran	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARYLAND HEIGH	MO	63043
paul	ross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43214
keith	hanadel	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11238

Larry	Bock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAVENNA	NE	68869
Brad	Herder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSFIELD	MA	1201
Mark	Mazza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANDUSKY	OH	44870

Kathleen	Rogers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PENSACOLA	FL	32514
dolores	douglas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSTON	NY	12401
Kim	Ballentine	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAVENNA	OH	44266

Robert	Hic	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRODHEADSVILLE	PA	18322
Joel	Skyzer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	DE	19805
Donna	Holloway	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENNETT SQUARE	PA	19348

Randi	haskell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	14625
Michelle	Mullen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68512
Cain	Robberson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCE	KS	66046

Mark	Deakins	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RANCHO PALOS VE	CA	90275
Mary K.	Kelly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUEENSBURY	NY	12804
Dorinda	Wollitz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32219

Lisa	Downie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOVER	NH	3820
Richard	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELBY	NC	28150
Gregg	Fisher	Unlock the boxes I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMERON	WI	54822

Edna	Bray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1852
David	Geiger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	MI	48161
Antoinette	Wilcox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALLWIN	MO	63011

Nick	Beeman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DULUTH	MN	55803
Jose	Baca	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79922
Chris	Fraser	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRADENTON	FL	34208

GIA	BROWN	ALL CABLE companies are nothing but greedy corporations that give absolutely NO benefits to the long time consumer. I have two boxes that I cancelled and they are suppose to send me a postage paid envelope/box to send back. NEVER heard from them again. THEY ALL SUCK and can\'t wait to the day they are ALL shut down because of their greediness! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RODANTHE	NC	27968
George	Kuetemeyer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLINGSWOOD	NJ	8108

Tracy	Kimler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOGANVILLE	GA	30052
Michael	Oneill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	20715
Amanda	Frost	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VICTORIA	TX	77904

Pamela	Skidmore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOMERSWORTH	NH	3878
Marcel	Perera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEHIGH ACRES	FL	33973
Robert	Russell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MYRTLE BEACH	SC	29577

Jason	Lockridge	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOWNERS GROVE	IL	60515
William	Kane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18504
Danielle	Regalado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98092

Xavier	Maldonado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	TX	75246
Kaitlin	Christian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37130
Greg	Frank	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CUMBERLAN	WV	26047

DAVID	GOGATZ	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89115
bonnie	matton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLACKSBURG	SC	29702
Miguel	Madera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PATERSON	NJ	7503

Jon	Kemp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15228
Jeffrey	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOREST GROVE	OR	97116

S	DDM	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. _____ Consumers are also frequently obligated to pay for services not rendered, hidden fees for minimal/minimally functional service. We are also not able to add, say, one channel, or be given a selection of channels from which to choose, but rather often have to pay a large sum of money per extra \'bundle\' of channels for 1-2 channels of 10 that we\'re interested in. Add to that you want one channel from one bundle, two from another, and one from a third, you\'re another 60$ on your cable bill just to be able to watch Ghost Hunters.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33306
Anne	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROSSER	WA	99350

Mike	Irvin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DECATUR	AL	35601
Michael	Owens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POUND	VA	24279
Virginia	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	5803

Darral	Van Goethem	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARDNER	KS	66030
Larry	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DULUTH	MN	55803
Jon	Camp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YULEE	FL	32097

Michael	Doyle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85021
Wil	Resto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST HARTFORD	CT	6118
Paul	Curtis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CITY	NY	10956

Alberto	Partida	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33327
Andreas	Cardens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERPLANCK	NY	10596
Dominique	Gilchrist	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RALEIGH	NC	27616

JOHN	SWANSON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CENTER OSSIPEE	NH	3814
Beatrix	Zilinskas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VAN NUYS	CA	91406
Thomas	Wood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIVERPOOL	NY	13088

Keith	Wine	The form letter is below, but the benefits of this proposal are dead simple and obvious. Thank you, Tom Wheeler, for leading the push to unlock the box. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11221
Richard	Kane	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18504
Rebeca	Brownlee	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PASO ROBLES	CA	93446

Janet	Petty	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAGUNA WOODS	CA	92637
Kendall	Heidegger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98665
Kendra	Brown	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. It\'s too expensive I will like to be my Apple TV	RALEIGH	NC	27616

Kieth	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	MN	55912
Siva	Subramaniam	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MELBOURNE	FL	32940
Kent	Qian	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94109

Steven	Wilcox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERO BEACH	FL	32967
Chris	Ryskoski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRANDON	WI	53919
JoKarol	Dean	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WYLIE	TX	75098

Kyna	Michelli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENWELL SPRIN	LA	70739
Patricia	Henry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WENTZVILLE	MO	63385
Gail	Brown	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LORANGER	LA	70446

Vida	Sukhan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	GA	31904
James	Osburn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEATTY	NV	89003
Travis	Blanchette	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. And if the cable dictators don\'t like it, then the only rights they have earned is to be noted for their failure to do actual business against actual competition.	ALVIN	TX	77511

Jessica	Smith	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAYETTEVILLE	NC	28306
cj	rucker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHLANDS	NC	28574
Jason	Ballard	I just want to be able to pick what I want to watch and not pay for what I do not.	BAINBRIDGE	NY	13733
Judith	Rose	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUDSON	OH	44236

Joni	Bretz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOLDEN	CO	80401
Kevin	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	MD	21225
Eric	Boston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	TX	75203

Norma	Aragon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURBANK	CA	91505
Kellie	Anglin	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85205
Christy	mays	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW PORT RICHEY	FL	34654

Heidi	Lotter	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOMS RIVER	NJ	8757
Jonathan	Nack	As a kid in the early 1970s I remember seeing ads for pay tv. I laughed. Who would pay for tv? Isn\'t that what commercials are for? Now I pay through the nose and don\'t find it the least bit funny. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EMERYVILLE	CA	94608
Carl	Douglas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASON CITY	IA	50401

Jennifer	Bailey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVENPORT	IA	52804
Anne	Laskowski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15218

Deb	Osting	It\'s ridiculous what Cable company charge! I watch 5 of the 140 channels I have to pay for to get TV service. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLATTEVILLE	WI	53818
Roger	Wiltfong	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT MORRIS	MI	48458
Karen	jaco	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKLAHOMA CITY	OK	73159

Maria	Suarez	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICKAMAUGA	GA	30707
Tom	Baron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOCUST GROVE	VA	22508
Michael	Wilcox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREEVILLE	NY	13068

shelly	moses	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCDONOUGH	GA	30253
Paul	Shuman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALLS CHURCH	VA	22046
Matthew	Seiple	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80226

Mark	Angstman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94114
Lynn	Hollis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HENDERSONVILLE	NC	28739
Jane	Harris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLINS	GA	30421

Rhea	Cain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46224
Kathryn	Mitchell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67214
Steve	Usry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRANDON	MS	39042

Anthony	Commarata	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44313
MIKE	CALE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOANO	VA	23168
Myrna	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UPPER MARLBORC	MD	20772

Daisy	Quintana	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT VERNON	NY	10552
Geneva	Bernabe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABERDEEN	WA	98520
Jana	Callender	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENWELL SPRIN	LA	70739

James	McCully	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAKE FOREST	NC	27587
greg	thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20903
Ryan	Larson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BISMARCK	ND	58503

Richard	Bahr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLFAX	CA	95713
John	Johanson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELBURNE	VT	5482
Renee	Tyler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITHONIA	GA	30038

Eric	Hamik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KEARNEY	NE	68845
jay	faust	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	60491

David	Klumb	Even though I have a current HD TV Time Warner is REQUIRING that I add a decoder box by the end of June this year to \'decode\' their digital encryption. This box is \'free\' fro 1 year and the 3.95/month so that i can see their 12 channels. There is no purchase option! American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lower prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUPPER LAKE	NY	12986
Kirk	Batzer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLSBOROUGH	NJ	8844
hans	simon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORANGE PARK	FL	32065

Robert	Walker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON	WV	25705
THOMAS	WEBER	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MENOMONEE FAL	WI	53051
Debra	Birkholz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79903

Alfred	Marzullo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CEDAR GROVE	NJ	7009
David	mobley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARABI	GA	31712
Ellen	Jessen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	WI	53714

Jashou	Nickelhaiser	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CICERO	NY	13039
Elise	Shalda-Wright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAMPA	FL	33635
John	Richetta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALTHAM	MA	2451

Jenny	Tritz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT CLOUD	MN	56303
John	Culbertson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT JAMES	NY	11780
Tracy	Burley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENFIELD	MA	1301

RJ	Stone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442
RJ	Stone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442
RJ	Stone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442

Lori	House Vinay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Children go hungry so families can have cable and wifi!! It\'s nuts and should be illegal! Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOMESTEAD	PA	15120
RJ	Stone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442

RJ	Stone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442
joey	ray	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HANCEVILLE	AL	35077
Anna	Simms	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINTURN	AR	72445

Miguel	Trinidaf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CATHEDRAL CITY	CA	92234
Mitch	Baker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH CANTON	OH	44720
Kimberly	Dennis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WAYNE	IN	46818

Christopher	Dieter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEVERLY	MA	1915
Debra	Gotautas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSVILLE	AR	72830
Douglas	COTANCHE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK PARK	IL	60301

George	Sferra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11225
Pamela	Hannula	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALINE	MI	48176
Carrie	Heywood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43229

Cathy	Bishop	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KLAMATH FALLS	OR	97601
David	Mann	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PENSACOLA	FL	32503
Terrence	Rush	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN(	CO	80910

Brenda	Smolik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TACOMA	WA	98409
Judith	Ulmen-Smith	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	NY	13601
Randy	Busch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64117

Sherri	Pruden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64133
tina	hahn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. ALSO I AM TIRED OF THE BIASED PROPAGANDA THAT CURRENTLY MASQUERADES AS NEWS. THIS TYPE OF BEHAVIOR IS DESTROYING AMERICA AND OUR DEMOCRACY.	CARO	MI	48723

anita	sudyka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JEFFERSON	OR	97352
Ashley	Rierson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KEY LARGO	FL	33037
Eric	Sheehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55405

Michelle	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85206
Ed	DeMayo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MD	21046
Judy	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELMIRA	NY	14905

sheryl	makolin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CALUMET	MI	49913
Phil	Tullos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KRUM	TX	76249
Jeffery	Herman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOULDER	CO	80301

Doug	Herr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37204
Robert	gomez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	10036
Adam	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLA	AR	72853

Angela	Biddinger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAMBRILLS	MD	21054
Clinton	Embry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABILENE	TX	79603
Carrie	Ewing	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROY	UT	84067

Lisa	Oliver	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSVILLE	IN	47129
Amy	Yergen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALISO VIEJO	CA	92656
Cat	Sides	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH HOLLYWO(	CA	91606

Cindy	Hogan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWISVILLE	TX	75077
Ben	Fischer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUDBURY	MA	1776
Bruno	Eidietis	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH BEND	IN	46637

Bruno	Eidietis	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NILES	MI	49120
Douglas	Day	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STUDIO CITY	CA	91604
Charles	Metcalf	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOODY	AL	35004

Paul	Ross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98684
Yara	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32824
K. Raye	McKinley II	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44130

Linda	Christensen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IOWA FALLS	IA	50126
Thomas	Gagnon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EPPING	NH	3042
Spencer	Karter	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENWOOD	SC	29646

angela	dodson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99223
Barbara	Fiala	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44109
Csaba	Cseresnyes	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALLEN	TX	75013

Tammu	Stricker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLA	AR	72853
Marek	Karspeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOBLESVILLE	IN	46060
Sherry	Hall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YPSILANTI	MI	48198

donna	cicero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHIRLEY	NY	11967
Luke	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	PA	15074
Ben	Krulwich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80203

Rose	Staropoli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33157
Robert	Schneider	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHMOND	CA	94801
John	Roehm	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MECHANICSVILLE	VA	23116

Krystalynn	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84105
Cindy	Leitch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAHAM	NC	27253
diane	mall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORUNNA	IN	46730

glenn	caldwell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARTINSBURG	WV	25405
Timothy	Parker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCOTTS VALLEY	CA	95066
Kjersti	Eide	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLISTON	ND	58801

kathleen	warren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRENTWOOD	CA	94513
dawn	blevins	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVIDENCE	RI	2907
Lou	DeFonzo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMPBELL	CA	95008

Carey	Merrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NESBIT	MS	38651
Leanne	Psiras	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TEWKSBURY	MA	1876
Kevin	Segady	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN	CO	80917

Jan	orbon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	DE	19805
Tristan	Humble	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95405
Ms. K.	Stewart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	959445

michelle	davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VISTA	CA	92083
Quigley	Spargus	Consumers should have the power to choose their own device and they do, SmartTV, Gaming Consoles, Roku and other IP enabled appliances. The bigger question is who is going to support these devices from a customer care standpoint? If it\'s not the cable providers equipment who is responsible for the units functionality and the consumers education? Cable would just as soon get rid of the monopoly on conditional access and the $300 - $400 price tag associated with the STB they deploy today. We urge the FCC and Congress to let free market forces play out. Unlocking The Box is not the answer.	NEW YORK	NY	10001
Joshua	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CENTRALIA	WA	98531

Martha	simmons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	MI	48187
Jonathan	Mersereau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43219
Bonnie	Turcotte	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEE	NH	3861

Cindy	Soto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	CA	95947
Ben	Pila Jr	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL CAJON	CA	92022
susan	dampier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CALLAHAN	FL	32011

Robert	Oshel	Consumers greatly benefited when they were allowed to purchase their own telephones and related equipment rather than having to obtain the equipment only from the local telephone monopoly. Competition led to great improvements in consumer phone equipment. Similarly we will benefit if we can obtain and use our own "cable boxes." Consumers should have the power to choose their own device, just as I can supply my own cable modem, and save money. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20910
Hector	Rivera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKELAND	FL	33810

Sallie	Riley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	18952
Jonathan	Cronin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98144
Tara	Southwell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOVI	MI	48374

Joaquin	Garrido	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESLEY CHAPEL	FL	33544
Tamara	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CROTON ON HUDS	NY	10520
Penny	French	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOORESVILLE	NC	28117

Teresa	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM HARBOR	FL	34683
Tedd	Gwilliam	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLYMOUTH	MA	2360
Jennifer	Banaszak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DANVILLE	IL	61832

Joey	Stevenson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEITCHFIELD	KY	42754
Diana	Torrisi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYRACUSE	NY	13204
matthew	murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BASTROP	TX	78602

Laura	Cole	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERBANK	NY	12585
Kevin	Gustafson	We really need to find ways to make life a little better. Like providing television to hard working people who are having trouble keeping food on the table. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORMOND BEACH	FL	32176

Vanessa	Molina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UNIONDALE	NY	11553
Marsa	Morse	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	OR	97535
Chris	Kuster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DURHAM	NC	27713

Harriet	Ables	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	33217
Henry	Lamb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77002
Aaron	Quinto	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ERIE	CO	80516

Sylvia	Williamssilviawilliar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33142
Jeffrey	Truelove	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEEDING HILLS	MA	1030
john	laslow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldnâ€™t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THE DALLES	OR	97058

Ryan	Bradley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENBELT	MD	20770
David	Mertz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOORHEAD	MN	56560
Robert	Hedstrom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POCATELLO	ID	83201

Mary	Stack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAITLAND	FL	32751
fred	henzel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60622
Cheryl	Hammerlindl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55104

Joel	Yarbrough	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESNEE	SC	29323
Steven	Breems	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKEVILLE	MN	55044
Tim	Curtin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST HEMPSTEAD	NY	11552

Robert	Whiting	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1854
John	Effinger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WALTON BE/	FL	32547
Gabriel	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33312

Gregory	Lawler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REGO PARK	NY	11374
Lydia	Ivy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEMINOLE	FL	33777
Cary	Kehley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISBURG	PA	17110

Homer	Nethery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKFORT	KY	40601
william	furniss	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98661
Brenda	buckley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WORCESTER	MA	1605

Kimber	Olli	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARQUETTE	MI	49855
Cynthia	von Hendricks	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBUQUERQUE	NM	87110
Agustine	santiago	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	MA	1104

James	Payette	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BLOOMFIELD	PA	17068
Laura	Costa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALL RIVER	MA	2721
James	Fellers	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CASTLE	IN	47362

John	Hall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. This especially goes to Comcast for blocking the YES Network while allegedly still charging their customers for the channel.	WYOMING	PA	18644
Paul	Wulff	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH LIBERTY	IN	46554
Kathryn	Learned	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95404

Gwen	Foss	I write to urge you in the strongest possible terms to #UnlockTheBox and help cut costs for consumers. Cable company monopolies hurt competition and innovation and make it difficult or impossible for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARMINGTON	MI	48336
Gail	Hoffmeier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	KY	41011
Lisa	Peck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VICI	OK	73859

Terry	Schwab	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSKALOOSA	IA	52577
Jeff	Irish	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94112
Victor	Chaidez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORWALK	CA	90650

anita	freeman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAVE CITY	KY	42127
Victoria	Ross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. We were forced by cable company price increases to drop all but basic cable, they then punished us by increasing the cost of Internet and putting a limit to our internet use or face continueing price increases based on our internet use. We have no other choice for Internet here in the mountains of rural Maryland. WHY??? American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAGERSTOWN	MD	21740

Tom	Jerry	This is a ploy by Google to get more personal information about consumers and then sell that information. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20001
RoxAnne	Salter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98002
Cara	Goldy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23462

Allison	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MISSION	KS	66202
Deb	Adams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32828
larry	buffey	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURTON	MI	48519

Rafael	Ruiz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11224
Patrick	Owen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARQUETTE	MI	49855
ANGELIQUE	MATA	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	TX	76006

Jill	Lawrence	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAYTON	UT	84040
Palmer	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38133
fred	shafferman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90019

Debbie	spina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELTONA	FL	32725
Mary	Jasen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOORE	SC	29369
Brian	Melchiorre	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GURNEE	IL	60031

David	Starr	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HONOLULU	HI	96819
karen	brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILFORD	OH	45150
Bonnie	Baumgardner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49548

Darlene	Carpenter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HINGHAM	MA	2043
Susan	Pippin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANCIS	OK	74844
Linda	Bahner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BETHLEHEM	PA	18015

David	Carranza	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHILLER PARK	IL	60176
Angelia	Garcia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ONTARIO	CA	91762
Willie	Belote	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONNELL	WA	99326

Kathy	Goldsmith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAPLE FALLS	WA	98266
Cindy	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRIMBLE	TN	38259
Linda	Shay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLIAMSPORT	PA	17701

Steven	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94108
Malka	Adler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST PALM BEACH	FL	33406
Mark	Waterbury	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	GA	30115

Raul	Haynes	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	100950
Angelo	Adamo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST MEADOW	NY	11554
Edith	Grashik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	MI	48307

Celeste	Hewitt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKLIN	CA	95677
Wayne	Hicks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAITHERSBURG	MD	20878
Kathleen	Cox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	GA	30907

Kate	Foss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMMONDSPORT	NY	14840
Juan	Medina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. And in my case, the only device that works in a mediocre way in my house is the cablebox (on and off). Freezes, resets itself and goes black halfway a movie. Tried to solve issue with comcast countless times and finally gave up.	LAKE WORTH	FL	33467

jakeob	cox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOMFIELD	CO	80020
Constance	taft	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STONE RIDGE	NY	12484
leo	kowal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EASTPORT	ME	4631

Christine	Dollhopf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15237
Christine	Dollhopf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15237
Marty	Hacker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETON	WI	53562

Tyler	Davis	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20005
Stephen	Motley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESAPEAKE	VA	23323
Rachel	Turner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	GA	31904

James	Hornbeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	WV	26181
Charles	Brady	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIETTA	GA	30062
Robert	Hosea	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARTERSVILLE	GA	30120

Chris	Sobraske	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST PALM BEACH	FL	33401
Steve	Gruber	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TITUSVILLE	FL	32796
Jacqueline	Perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIAN HEAD	MD	20640

Erik	jeansson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHAKOPEE	MN	55379 darren	bishop	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90853
Pamela	Foxx	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28215

Cathy	Adolphson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60625
Susan	Buckwald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOYNTON BEACH	FL	33436
Leslie	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELAND	FL	32720

Kathy	Buresh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLETON	CO	80127
janine	freer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILFORD	PA	18337
Michael	Curley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I want choices!	BOW	NH	3304

Jonathan	Loving	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POMPANO BEACH	FL	33063
Valentine	Trocme	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GATES MILLS	OH	44040
Sean	Brady	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMESBURY	MA	1913

Kyle	Godfrey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EULESS	TX	76039
Susan	Kortenbusch	We pay far far too much as it is for Cable, I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AURORA	CO	80011
dawn	winters	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15202

Wendy	Brumsey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHMOND	VA	23224
William	Lester	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CRANFORD	NJ	7016
Mary	Munson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STAPLETON	NE	69163

Chris	Tolbertson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUNSTER	IN	46321
KRISHNA	VEMUGANTI	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PFLUGERVILLE	TX	78660
Megan	Penrose	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94114

Gina	Garcia	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL MONTE	CA	91731
Chae	Raybern	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAPLE VALLEY	WA	98038
Henry	Barbero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94108

David G.	Montalvo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SINTON	TX	78387
Renard	Prather	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIETTA	GA	30006
Mary	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMDEN	TN	38320

Melanie	Sinclair	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUILCENE	WA	98376
Kaye	Stanley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAMPA	FL	33604
Ashley	Matts	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PELHAM	NY	10803

Alexander	Dolowitz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84121
Debra	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOCKPORT	NY	14094
Paula	Casagrande	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAVRE DE GRACE	MD	21078

Douglas	Gatrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELAND	FL	32720
Stephanie	Faus	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW HOLLAND	PA	17557
Trish	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REEDSBURG	WI	53959

Janekee	Cuervo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVENPORT	FL	33897
philip	garcia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLTVILLE	CA	92250
Malik	Ollivierre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVENPORT	FL	33897

sarah	smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	PA	17042
Ben	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30337
Janet	ridgeway	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYRACUSE	NY	13224

Vanessa	Mendez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BERWYN	IL	60402
niko	fisher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84120
Eliz	Jacobson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWPORT NEWS	VA	23606

Rob	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL CAJON	CA	92019
Mary	Masucci	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEND	OR	97702
Penny	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRADFORD	OH	45308

Ron	Morrison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43228
Jaime	Garnica	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTLAKE	OH	44145
Kristopher	Parsons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINCHESTER	NH	3470

Lisa	D\'Ambrosio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Yet another example of the American consumer getting SCREWED OVER BY BIG BUSINESS!!! :-(	LANCASTER	MA	1523
Robert	Comer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING	TX	77389

Rebecca	Greeley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ACTON	MA	1720
Joe	Glav	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEPTUNE	NJ	7753
Joan	Loucraft	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JAMAICA PLAIN	MA	2130

Wendy	lessard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. It is beyond ridiculous that cable companies are allowed to have this kind of hold on their customers, and politicians allow it.Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Stop letting cable companies line your pockets and sway your vote. It\'s time to start paying attention to the people who vote for you - citizens of the United States of America!	FEEDING HILLS	MA	1030
Kim	Tufts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CENTER TUFTONBO	NH	3816

DEBORAH	PENDER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	24841
Sante	Perfili	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BALTIMORE	MI	48047
Wayne	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARTINSVILLE	VA	24112

Dennis	Tafoya	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MI	48609
Lori	Cason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85206
Verna	Markham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	Cross Plains

Katherine	Slater	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAVANNAH	GA	31419
Peter	Kucera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	SC	29609
james	butler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CULLMAN	AL	35055

thomas	brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VINELAND	NJ	8361
Brenda	Brock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIGHTON	MI	48114
susie	Jones	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILLINGTON	TN	38053

GARY	PERDUE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYDEN	AZ	85135
Sheila	Spinelli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERNON ROCKVILL	CT	6066
Lucretia	Carlson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALDWIN CITY	KS	66006

James	Marbury	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAUMONT	CA	92223
Elizabeth	Thompson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHEVILLE	NC	28804
James	Boots	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREEPORT	IL	61032

Kevin	Dye	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINERAL WELLS	WV	26150
Robin	Riley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68507
Michael	Dalpiaz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERS	MO	63376

Hope	Grable	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOURBONNAIS	IL	60914
Mark	Gurera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOPEKA	KS	66614
Ross	Goeres	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBUQUERQUE	NM	87108

Christine	Greenstein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	FL	34108
wane	melanson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH MONMOU	ME	4265
Marc	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT ORCHARD	WA	98367

Bonnie	Guenther	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLMSTED FALLS	OH	44138
JaMel	Ways	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68502
Hector	Gonzalez	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	NJ	8620

Tanner	Coyle	Congress we all know consumers today don\'t want to buy a gateway or broadband consume premise equipment (10-15% buy them retail after multiple years) what makes you think that they want to have to buy their own linear TV box? Also what would stop the MVPDs from increasing prices on other ancillary services to make up for the box shortfall, not too mention the costs associated with creating an open system? Your move is good theory, and sure why wouldn\'t a consumer want low prices?! But you need to break something before you must have to fix it, and that\'s exactly what your plan is. Also it will make Wheeler look like a hero, a man of the people, looking out for the little guy and not let Mr. bad cable man take advantage of you. If you don\'t want to pay for the box, than don\'t pay for the service-there is certainly many other ways for consumers to spend their money.	NEW YORK	NY	10038
Victor	Penniman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64114

Rebecca	Malagon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAPE CORAL	FL	33990
william	wheeler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAMPA	FL	33605
Kathie	Thompson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOLIVAR	MO	65613

Delores	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAGONER	OK	74467
Kelly	Curtis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRFIELD	CA	94534
James	Astor	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RED LION	PA	17356

Teresa	Harp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CATONSVILLE	MD	21228
Cindy	Fox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PETALUMA	CA	94952
Richard	Berke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERFORD	MI	48328

Lisa	Bell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH JACKSON	OH	44451
Mitchell	Lingo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IOWA CITY	IA	52246
Russ	Carlson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALDWIN CITY	KS	66006

		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Robert	Kane	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18504
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
Tom	Lucas	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	TX	76017
		American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV.
John	Niebur	We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAL	IL	61761

Linda	Sakai	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COEUR D ALENE	ID	83814
Horace	Sanders jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFTON PARK	NY	12065
JOSE	GALVAN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90004

Robert	Cusick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDGERTON	WI	53534
Thomas	Goodness	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ITHACA	NY	14850
Robert	Brown	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGWOOD	TX	77345

Sarah	McCaw	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80210
Anthony	Kane	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	18504
Marva	Herndon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53225

Hyunjun	Ahn	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IRVINE	CA	92619
Deb	Bowen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALDWINSVILLE	NY	13027
jeff	embury	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SINCLAIRVILLE	NY	14782

Diane	Parra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLAGLER BEACH	FL	32136
Zoeann	Green	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32808
Rick	Hoyte	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRAMINGHAM	MA	1701

Michael	Jacobsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLAINSBORO	NJ	8536
Paul	Ruppert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PICKENS	SC	29671
Frank	Ferrans	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	GA	30115

Richard	KANE	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18504
Brad	Whetstone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OPELIKA	AL	36804
Larry	Chanley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BETHEL SPRINGS	TN	38315

michelle	courtney	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ESCONDIDO	CA	92029
Robin	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FINDLAY	OH	45840
Diedra	Azevedo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRISTOL	IN	46507

Stephen	Ellsworth	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAYTOWN	TX	77521
Karla	Ruthford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DULUTH	MN	55811
Christopher	Boyle	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32218

Tim	Sill	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLATTE CITY	MO	64079
Robert	Osenbaugh	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Also bandwidth limits are designed to eliminate competetors	ROSWELL	GA	30075
Matt	Pavelle	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19103

William	Miller	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINDEN	MI	48451
Bill	Landry	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98155
Jim	Brownlow	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	60558

Kyle	Hoxsey	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TIFFIN	IA	52340
james	egan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVIDENCE	RI	2908
Steve	McKinnon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN PARK	NJ	7035

Tom	Landis	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANGER	IN	46530
Nanette	Parnham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELMWOOD PARK	NJ	7407
Diana	Lelle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLAGSTAFF	AZ	86001

Larry	Tyrrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRUNSWICK	ME	4011
Raquel	Rodriguez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT CHARLES	IL	60174
wanda	marumoto	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	FL	33576

Ian	Brumberger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROCKTON	MA	2302
Betty	Poindexter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43613
MICHELLE	HEBERLE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREAT FALLS	MT	59404

Thomas	Diorio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTHUMBERLAN	PA	17857
lois	deak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RALEIGH	NC	27616
Brad	Bakalyar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDFORD	OR	97501

Jeremy	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOSTORIA	OH	44830
Doug	Abele	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SORRENTO	FL	32776
Jordan	Lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	97230

Bradley	Engel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SIOUX CITY	IA	51106
Jennifer	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUINCY	MA	2170
Trela	Wagner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAUPUN	WI	53963

Wendy	Michael	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	MI	48183
lance	warren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRENTWOOD	CA	94513
Brian	Apple	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KISSIMMEE	FL	34746

Aylene	Lazar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODLAND HILLS	CA	91367
Patti	Juengst	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies - for old very limiting technology. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LA MESA	CA	91941
Donald	Cartwright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHERWOOD	WI	54169

michael	barber	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	OH	45044
Brian	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCARBOROUGH	ME	4074
Todd	Holjeson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KLAMATH FALLS	OR	97603

Allan	Ames	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CATO	NY	13033
David	Forsyth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHAUNCEY	OH	45719
eric	bolton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20007

Susan	Haneline	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WAYNE	IN	46825
Spanky	Reed	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATKINSVILLE	GA	30677
David	Gonzales	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROWNSVILLE	TX	78521

Louisa	L-O	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIDGEFIELD	CT	6877
jeffrey	gorman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENCINITAS	CA	92024
jim	corwin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	IN	47904

Ace	West	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TULSA	OK	74133
gary	bumgarner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILKESBORO	NC	28697
Tina	Lavoie	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WORCESTER	MA	1603

Maria	Mongiat	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILFORD	MA	1757
Johnny	Gall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEESBURG	FL	34748
Judith	Scherff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOPEKA	KS	66605

Jeremy	Langnese	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BERWYN	PA	19312
John	Ogrin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	OH	44057
Linda	Jofery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FERNANDO	CA	91340

Valerie	Pompe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCKEESPORT	PA	15131
Matthew	McDonough	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43206
Gail	Langsjoen	CABLE COMPANIES SHOULDN\'T BE ABLE TO BLOCK WHAT CONSUMERS SEE ON THEIR T.V. Unlock The Box!	MANKATO	MN	56001
James	Ferreira	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SIDNEY	OH	45365

Susan	Aguirre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55106
Dennis	Deal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCKERMAN	AR	72473
Dianna	Klau	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10463

Debra	Sanders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE CREEK	MI	49014
Doug	Osowiecky	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALLENDALE	NJ	7401
Don	Hillaker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	TN	38401

Kenrick	Talbot	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19104
Michelle	McKenna	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85704
Kenrick	Talbot	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19104

Josh	Thompson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CRAWFORDVILLE	FL	32327
Suzanne	Layton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84123
Gloria	Damron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44130

Todd	Danos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAVERHILL	MA	1830
Jody	Samaniego	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAYTOWN	TX	77520
Jeef	Ostashen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKELAND	FL	33801

Kyner	Thorne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATON ROUGE	LA	70806
Debbie	David	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLINGHAM	WA	98225
William	Davey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAINE	NY	13802

Adrian	Amos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28212
joseph f.	coleman, jr.	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46241
nancy	millar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMETTO	GA	30268

Danielle	Bottex	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33322
nancy	millar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMETTO	GA	30268
VALERINE	Banks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUCYRUS	OH	44820

Gloria	Hernandez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90035
Paul	Likovetz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45429
Brenda	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BARRINGTON	NH	3825

Melinda	Daunis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LUCERNE	CA	95458
Sheila	Marshall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32244
Jeff	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWISTON	ID	83501

nita	morrow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT PLEASANT	TX	75455
Jonathan	Steuer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10003
Julie	Greenwood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85051

Jan Alexande	Szymanski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARWELL	MI	48622
Jonathan	Zang	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST CHESTER	PA	19382
Mike	DePlanche	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PONTIAC	MI	48340

Shirley	Zarnick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUTLER	PA	16002
Sandra	Dominguez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI BEACH	FL	33140
Paula	Snodgrass	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUTLER	PA	16002

Laura	Harringon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALLEGAN	MI	49010
Carolyn	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOORHEAD	MN	56560
Angie	Prince	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANSFIELD	OH	44904

Gail	Morris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLWOOD	IL	60104
corrine	perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK PARK	MI	48237
Brian	Massey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITINSVILLE	MA	1588

John	Furry	Why has it taken so long to unlock the cable box monopoly?? Software cable box solutions are technically feasible today. There are NFV/SDN solutions that are replacing old hardware based IP networking solutions which are much more complex than cable boxes. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDOVER	MA	1810
Jodi	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASSENA	NY	13662

LAURIE	VANWINKLE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98662
Laura	Marks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20904
Dean	Austin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	89431

Valerie	Larsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55112
Janet	Money	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAR	DE	19701
William	Moore	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	37873

michael	mccarthy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHANDLER	AZ	85225
Natalie	Shuler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GWYNN OAK	MD	21207
Jean	Saltzman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAPEER	MI	48446

Bobby	Jones	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENWOOD	IN	46143
Jeffrey	Galbreath	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49441
Javier	Flores	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79902

Margaret	Dressler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMERTON	PA	18071
Patti	Landon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	IDAHO FALLS	ID	83401
Doreen	Moshier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW SMYRNA BEA	FL	32168

Brian	Pygon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	OR	97302
Bruce	Amell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STREATOR	IL	61364
karen	Thornburg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55107

Joshua	Lefrancois	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Unlock the box or get with the times! It\'s the 21st century go the way of online live viewing at a more affordable rate or get out of the way!	LELAND	NC	28451
Kimberly	Dettrey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAKERSFIELD	CA	93308

Julie	Hansen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIAN ROCKS BEA	FL	33785
Ronald	Elrod	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAYLESVILLE	AL	35973
renee	banson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NARBERTH	PA	19072

Gina	Lesnefsky	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37130
kenny	baird	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILTON	FL	32571
Robert	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAN	OK	73071

Chuck	Murray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30312
Aimee	Patten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBANY	NY	12205
Lynda	McMillan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUGENE	OR	97402

Jack	Mietus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	60461
C D	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANON CITY	CO	81212
cynthia	siss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDINA	OH	44256

Kim	Glazer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. WHILE WE STILL HAVE CABLE COMPANIES...We have only one cable company given the right to represent in a specific area, it limits our rights to choose. give CONSUMERS the right to choose which company they wish to use in their area. Having only one is a monopoly.	NORTH HOLLYWO(	CA	91602
brenda	phelps	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	44203

Joseph	Terry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWMARKET	NH	3857
Lorraine	Mongiello	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILLVILLE	NJ	8332
Terry	Ertz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATSONVILLE	CA	95076

Graeme	Knight	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODSIDE	NY	11377
Carla	Huelsenbeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILLIPSBURG	NJ	8865
Steve	Alfred	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITEVILLE	TN	38075

Christine	Casabar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97202
Karen	Burns	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33707
Fred	Kaplan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80222

Jean	Cacioppo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLE VILLAGE	NY	11379
Douglas	Kladis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85208
Delilah	Kirksey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CANEY	TX	77357

Sherry	Jackson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30341
Holly	McDonald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	NJ	8691
Janice	Russell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RANDOLPH	VT	5060

andrea	Kohler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FUQUAY VARINA	NC	27526
Emily	Whittemore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH YARMOUTH	MA	2664
Keli	Carlson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ITHACA	NY	14850

Melanie	Nielsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71104
Colin	Hunter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60660
Vickie	Smithson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	MO	64057

Penny	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SNELLVILLE	GA	30078
tina	rees	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTESVILLE	VA	22902

Katheen	Hoffman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Cable companies also hold a monopoly on service to many areas making it impossible for myself and many others to obtain more economical services. This is a horrible situation and downright degrading to the consumer. My cable/internet company has a monopoly in our area and we must pay for services a full month in advance when they don\'t work at least 5 days of the month. There is no other provider available, and their fees are at 250$ a month. I need the internet for my job, but am considering quiting because of the cable. Please help!	LIGONIER	PA	15658
Kim	Conder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVANSVILLE	IN	47714

Lisa	Harrington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHMOND	VA	23221
Cheryl	Abbate	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORONA	CA	92881
christopher	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68521

Rick	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAYETTEVILLE	NC	28305
LOULU	ROZI	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAYETTEVILLE	NC	28311
Paul	Roll	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARO	MI	48723

Theresa	Gardner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALLKILL	NY	12589
JOY	flory	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PIEDMONT	SC	29673
Wilma Jo	Spanyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOBILE	AL	36609

Mary	Webb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLIAMSPORT	OH	43164
LISA	MARTIN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWENSBORO	KY	42303
Maureen	Bonifazi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE IN THE HILLS	IL	60156

joe	watson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40272
Shari	Townsend	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATSEKA	IL	60970
Yvonne	Fiore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINERAL WELLS	TX	76067

Brenda	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIVERPOOL	NY	13090
David	Limburg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLD SPRING	NY	10516
DAVID	WASHBURN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28226

Margaret	Tiecke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUND VALLEY	KS	67354
Tracey	ONeal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWINGS MILLS	MD	21117
Sky	Co	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ALBANY	IN	47150

Erik	Spring	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11226
DAVID	MERSHON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	21078
robin	redden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERFORD	MI	48329

Ron	Webb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER	CT	6040
Vicki L.	Romstadt	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARTIN	OH	43445
James	Wayne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLMAWR	NJ	8031

Pamela	Wenzel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAPEER	MI	48446
NORMA	BRANDT	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA	MN	55792
Jeff	Brooker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANAHAWKIN	NJ	8050

Jay	Furness	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALL RIVER	MA	2720
DANIEL	CARRILLO	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85713
Thomas	Ward	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLENDALE	AZ	85302

Janis	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEESBURG	FL	34788
Ramona	Becker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67220
Sherry	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LARGO	FL	33773

L	Nobil	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STOUGHTON	MA	2072
Erin	Vaughn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98119
John	Combs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40517

Dirk	Miller	My cable service is AWFUL and just gets worse every year! Why is that? They have no competition, thanks to government backed monopolization! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISONVILLE	LA	70447
William	Wright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LACEY	WA	98503

James	Mauroff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EGG HARBOR CITY	NJ	8215
Michael	W	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SNOHOMISH	WA	98290
Lisa	Ellsworth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	OR	97304

Steven	Meyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45204
Cathy	Gamvle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46237
Christopher	Reed	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOYNTON BEACH	FL	33426

Stan	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAVE CITY	KY	42127
Ryan	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MI	48638
robert	busnach	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	MA	2474

Carol	Robelia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DURAND	WI	54736
elanor	locklear	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEMBROKE	NC	28372
Marie	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30331

Lynn	Manley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. You should also stop cable companies from charging all those bogus fees and having a monopoly in small towns. Time-Warner is the only game in town for Internet where I live.	NORTH BERWICK	ME	3906
Earl	Lane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HANNIBAL	MO	63401

Scott	Voss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LODI	WI	53555
Fernando	Solorio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRESNO	CA	93704
aubergine	ashara	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHATTANOOGA	TN	37405

Audrey	Mack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HEPHZIBAH	GA	30815
Mary-Beth	Hallen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANTRIM	NH	3440
Matt	Russell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COSTA MESA	CA	92626

Debra	Fedyna	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALLIANCE	OH	44601
Steve	Braudo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANHATTAN BEA(	CA	90266
BRYON	BLACKMON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55404

Edward	Manz	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	O FALLON	MO	63366
Megan	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOMELSDORF	PA	19567
Debra	Beebe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	95376

lee	boyd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DUNCAN	SC	29334
April	Briqueleur	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONGMONT	CO	80501
lee	boyd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DUNCAN	SC	29334

mg	kleino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YPSILANTI	MI	48198
Andrew B.	Davidson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORGANTOWN	WV	26501
Alyssa	Herr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YELM	WA	98597

Stephen	Levine	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38104
William	william rogers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPANOCH	NY	12458

Patrick	Dwyer	Remember, Digital conversion after September 11TH, 2001 to open up the frequencies for emergency communications never did give Emergency ops that capability. What it did do was benefit one company with the patent on digital receivers now manufactured in TV\'s. This Company had Donald Rumsfield in their orporate structure immediately before his mangling of the SECDEF(Light Footprint....Did not listen to Military suggestion of troop strength prolonging casualties, deat and war all in the name of making money of the Tax dollar. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PENSACOLA	FL	32503
Amanda	Sage	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW HOLSTEIN	WI	53061

Marion	Petty	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE RIVER	KS	67457
Adam	Scott	It\'s about time we bring this portion of industry to market for healthy competition, no more closed system, no more protection from competition, it hurts the economy. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	PA	15074

Melissa	Holland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENHAM SPRINGS	LA	70726
Dennis	Bargy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLINT	MI	48503
Cynthia	Drovie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEOMINSTER	MA	1453

Gayle	Karafil	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43202
Thomas	Wenzel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAPEER	MI	48446
Craig	Lindsay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCARBOROUGH	ME	4074

John	Yelcick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PIKESVILLE	MD	21208
Laren	Williams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	46224
Eric	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CYPRESS	TX	77429

Cynthia	Roush	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95401
Cathi	Mercer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NARBERTH	PA	19072
Edward	Minton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOPLIN	MO	64801

James	Rugino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95401
Mary	DiVittorio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37221
Rick	Westwood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RENTON	WA	98058

Danielle	Orr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MALABAR	FL	32950
Eric	Fitch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIETTA	OH	45750
Ned	Tufekcic	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44106

Valarie	Cole	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FENTON	IA	50539
Lisa Jo	Sparks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SULLIVAN	IN	47882
Carol	Degnis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WORCESTER	MA	1604

Cindy	Bennett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARSHALLTOWN	IA	50158
Kevin	Newberry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAVANNAH	MO	64485
Donald	Cole	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKLAND	ME	4841

Melissa	Hayes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YPSILANTI	MI	48198
Marshall	Nicholson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEQUIM	WA	98382
Patricia	Leone-Abrams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19134

Norma	Fox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMPDEN	ME	4444
Kimberly	SanSouci	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLENDALE	RI	2826
Jana	Hart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAGWELL	TX	75412

Melissa	Lawler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOX ELDER	SD	57719
Susan	Schroeder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALOS HILLS	IL	60465
Laurina	Dickson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA MARIA	CA	93455

Susan	Mahoney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYRACUSE	NY	13206
Cindy	Loccisano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELLWOOD CITY	PA	16117
Nicole	Cook	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORIAH	NY	12960

Kathy	Gregory	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78217
mary	michaud	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	VT	5156
Leslie	Avery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KILL DEVIL HILLS	NC	27948

Steve	Hyatt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODBRIDGE	VA	22192
Monica M	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCDONOUGH	GA	30253
Christof	Yates	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20016

Janet	Swierkosz	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN	CO	80917
Robert	Ochs	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LARCHMONT	NY	10538
Luis	Malagon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10457

Dawn	Schermerhorn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALTON	NY	13856
Raellen	Froeman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLOOMFIELD	NJ	7003
Marshall	Howard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	2886

Stephen	Onofryton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85716
karen	connolly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFFSIDE PARK	NJ	7010
William	Lyth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKLAHOMA CITY	OK	73120

Michael	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STATESBORO	GA	30461
Julia	Reagan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	AL	36830
Ann	Mazur	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	READING	PA	19605

Christine	Fidler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80223
Maynard	McKillen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53207
Paula	Tetxloff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	,40214

Paula	Tetxloff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	,40214
Tony	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILKESBORO	NC	28697
Star	Salazar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSKEGON	MI	49442

Ben	Briones	STOP CABLE ADVERTISING!! We already pay $100\'s for content--why do we still have to watch advertising??? We have a right to free speech--we should also have a right to silence in our homes. NO MORE ADVERTISING!!!	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94116
Michael	Nolletti	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAMARONECK	NY	10543
Tami	Mullins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALATIE	NY	12184

Jennifer	Cromwell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOOELE	UT	84074
Joe	Parrott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POWELL	OH	43065
Michael	landon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALTIMORE	MD	21211

Nylka	Santos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCEVILLE	GA	30046
Mary	Nugent	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANSING	IL	60438
Summer	Staley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	SC	29407

Sherry	Sharpnack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68527
martin	fossen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55112
Alan	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOFFSTOWN	NH	3045

Lisa	Holt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	MO	64050
Theresa	Lawrence	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LODI	NJ	7644
Thimas	Currier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORFOLK	MA	2056

Lisa	Jochum	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAYNE	PA	19087
Lori	March	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85713
John	Schafer II	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT PLEASANT	MI	48858

Joy	Dowdal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PINEHURST	NC	28374
Joyce	La Master	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OREGON CITY	OR	97045
Lois	Karhinen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUEENSBURY	NY	12804

CALVIN	WALKER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33161
Chris	Kmotorka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85737
Wendy	Anctil	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVERSIDE	RI	2915

Jasjit	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10032
Michael	Charleboix	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TISHOMINGO	OK	73460
Deborah	Sweet	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONDON	KY	40741

Frank	Robak	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAYNE	MI	48184
Eileen	Kennedy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97211
Edward	Currier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK GROVE	MO	64075

John	Gudelanis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33334
michael	adams	unlock the boxI support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANITEVILLE	SC	29829
Ian	Eldridge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80232

Pamela	Giardino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOHNSTOWN	NY	12095
Phil	Alexander	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DECATUR	GA	30032
Angela	Hetherington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85212

Matthew	Daley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMBLER	PA	19002
William	Paradise	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	AL	36832
Gail	Caffrey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45432

doris	ellerbe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20001
Barbara	Downes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JONESBORO	GA	30236
Vicky	Rowland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GUNNISON	CO	81230

Susanna	Senti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOVER	NJ	7801
Renee	Burton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AIKEN	SC	29803
Marco	Villalobos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELGIN	IL	60124

marietta	harrison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64130
george	lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45231
Gail	Roeding	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85730

Pamela	Cline	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GALLOWAY	OH	43119
Darlene	Nelson Galloway	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	WI	53521
Emmette	Salyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45414

phyllis	Salyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45414
Ivan	Flow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEARWATER	FL	33756
Thomas	Ward	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	FL	34116

Ingrid	Bauttemans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREDERICK	MD	21701
Lorrie	Blackmon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE WORTH	FL	33467
Mary	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOPEDALE	MA	1747

Laura	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	TX	75401
Emily	Brouwer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95112

Glenda	Kirchoff	Cox Communication is making its customers put a mini digital box in their homes costing a extra 2.99 per month, I am tired of cable fees and rip offs. We need a honest system,I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESAPEAKE	VA	23323
DeeDee	Casto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLIARD	OH	43026

Art	Cummiskey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELYRIA	OH	44035
ROBIN	FRENCH	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLETON	WI	54911
Brian	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILFORD	CT	6460

Christine	Liubicich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLEN ELLYN	IL	60137
maureen	duca	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRATTLEBORO	VT	5301
Catherine	wojcik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19134

Phil	Dallmayr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH BEND	IN	46614
Elmer	Huiss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLIARD	OH	43026
Keith	Mund	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LUTHERVILLE TIMC	MD	21093

QUINN	HENDERSON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JARRELL	TX	76537
Melanie	combs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARION	OH	43302
Sam	Profeta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46260

Peg	Morris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST ISLIP	NY	11795
mary	sather	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DEER PARK	WI	54007
Kathy	Holtsclaw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT ALBANS	WV	25177

Deborah	johnston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NARRAGANSETT	RI	2882
Janet	Nance	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENT	WA	98031
Guy	Shelley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKFORD	IL	61103

bruce	busto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORMOND BEACH	FL	32176
Franklin	Graham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMYRA	NY	14522
Alisa	Maccrate	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	NJ	8527

vickie	gasiorowski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENDALE	WI	53129
Gregory	Trujillo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67212
Shirley	Paulson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64152

Timothy	Kynerd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20009
Michael	Bay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT MARYS	OH	45885
Annie	Layer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTONA BEACH	FL	32118

Lisa	Collier	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERVILLE	ME	4901
Julie	Blundy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	MI	48838
Nevin	Clemenson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARGO	ND	58103

Joseph	Hubbs	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I pay $576 per year, just for box rental! It must stop!	WAYNE	MI	48184
Billy	Fuller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	29646
ellie	brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	GA	30014

Anthony	Adams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSPORT	TN	37663
crystal	stufflebeam	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	IL	61520
Kenneth	Strite	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COCOA	FL	32927

Mark	Tanner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANTIOCH	IL	60002
Deborah	Alexander	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALINA	KS	67401
Robert	Smitley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LECKRONE	PA	15454

Terry	Saberhagen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OTTAWA	IL	61350
Kimberlee	Raymond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVERTON	WY	82501
GARY	JONES	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	AL	35758

Marie	Borders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITING	IN	46394
Mark	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	MN	56308
Maria	Garcia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLORENCE	MA	1062

Elizabeth	ODonnell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIDGTON	ME	4009
Timothy	Allen Sr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CEDAR BLUFF	AL	35959
Richard	Mansfield	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10036

Jodi	Donald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GULF SHORES	AL	36542
Seth	Grimes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GALVESTON	TX	77550
pamela	tonsberg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVIDENCE	RI	2905

JENNY	BARROWS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	14865
Joe	Nemeth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32257
Doreen	Gardner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH SMITHFIEL	RI	2896

Bruce	Lignell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALAMEDA	CA	94501
Tracey	Kutcher	The fact that they require me to rent a box is the main reason I dropped my service. It is ridiculous to pay that price for equipment and if you have a problem you have to pay for a service call, unless you have their service contract. Rent and pay for service... really I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGDALE	AR	72764

Terri	Bennett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KALAMAZOO	MI	49001
Dorothea	Kuil	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MN	55779
B	B	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60618

Kelly	James	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RHOME	TX	76078
Daniel	Elsasser	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68521
Linda	Montagno	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAPLE HEIGHTS	OH	44137

mary	levine	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10014
Pamela	Nesby	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STONE MOUNTAIN	GA	30087
Pamela	Nesby	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STONE MOUNTAIN	GA	30087

Carol	Draper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARDEN CITY	MI	48135
Gary	Frank	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97215
Kay	Gucito	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANTIOCH	IL	60002

Bethany	Brown	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	FL	34608
Nancy Jayne	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VAN WERT	OH	45891
Christopher	Howard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST JEFFERSON	OH	43162

kim	fonda	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SARATOGA SPRING	NY	12866
harriet	burbank	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISIANA	MO	63353
Kristine	Cormier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1852

Leslie	Dietz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HANOVER	PA	17331
EJ	Frost	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSFORD	VT	5763
BENNIE	WOODARD	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINTER HAVEN	FL	33881

Helen	Geyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLBROOK	OH	45305
Mark	Wolf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINNETKA	CA	91306
Damir	Porobic	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH PORTLAND	ME	4106

Donald	Hennig	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA HEIGHTS	IL	61616
Anita	McDaniel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLT	MI	48842
SABRINA	WRIGHT	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	SC	29229

Robert	LaMontagne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. Here in Cincinnati, Time Warner Cable is now making us get digital boxes for all of our TVs or else they won\'t work. That\'s ridiculous. I already pay well over $150 / month for cable and internet. Why should I have to pay an additional fee for each TV I own? Even the Digital HDTVs need the box, or so I\'m told. This is just not right. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASON	OH	45040
Eric	McCombs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97222

Larry	Townsend	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAKE FOREST	NC	27587
Dawn	Laughlin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANON CITY	CO	81212
susan	s	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPARTA	NJ	7871

Christopher	Easterling	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWPORT	MI	48166
Gregg	Gorcica	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRPORT	NY	14450
Stephanie	Greenwald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90808

Shawn	Ellsworth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEND	OR	97701
Al	Smuda	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLOW SPRINGS	IL	60480
Patricia	Walkama-Nast	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LACEY	WA	98503

Janine	Koster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARYSVILLE	CA	95901
Daniel	Kemp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTLAND	MI	48186
Barbara	Morrissey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19148

Amatu Nur	Ibrihim	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	NJ	8079
Mark	Goichman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARDINER	NY	12525
Arthur	Rice	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEVIERVILLE	TN	37876

Mike	Williams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELMONT	NY	11003
Hector	Bartolomei	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCEVILLE	GA	30046
David	Kemp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSHARON	TX	77583

Kelly	Hysell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANFORD	FL	32773
Pamela	Giardino	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOHNSTOWN	NY	12095
Kenneth	Pinho	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRAVERSE CITY	MI	49684

Gloria	Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71106
Warren	Powell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REXFORD	MT	59930
Grace	Blackbear	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPARTA	WI	54656

Patricia	Beard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	78216
Linda	Alfrey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON BEA	CA	92649
stephanie	pytlowanyj	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FENTON	MI	48430

Sharif	Uddin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHARON	MA	2067
Elaine	Pechilis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VENICE	FL	34285
Dustin	Hamren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVERETT	WA	98208

Kelly	Harrison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAGNA	UT	84044
clay	hixson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CALUMET	MI	49913
Kimberly	Marashlian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	OR	97477

gregg	hickam	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98003
troy	hamilton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALMA	AR	72921
sherry	Denton-Noonan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN PEDRO	CA	90731

sharon	bridger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELKHART	IN	46514
Gloria	McDougal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OTIS	OR	97368
Mike	Medeiros	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALL RIVER	MA	2720

Jerry	Lehman	Knock It Off!!!I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98662
Myrna	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MC KENZIE	TN	38201
Gayson	Crump	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33169

Paul	Stephenson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLOVER	SC	29710
tommy	brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VINELAND	NJ	8361
Elaine	Bradley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTSMOUTH	OH	45662

Virginia	Jylkka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKPORT	MA	1966
Amy	Samida	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	48104
barbara	dorsey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWES	DE	19958

Susan	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77079
Aida	Peel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PANAMA CITY	FL	32409
Lisa	Foote	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55449

Traci	Shultz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37217
Cathy	Hennessy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREVARD	NC	28712
Elizabeth	Zippelius	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAY SHORE	NY	11706

Gordon	Plouffe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER	CT	6040
Dennis	Schmidt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	WI	53094
Wayne	Miron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGS PARK	NY	11754

Karen	Kavanaugh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ORLEANS	LA	70122
Timothy	Alstrum	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST HARTFORD	CT	6118
Kathy	Pelletier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NH	3868

Nancy	Meehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I\'m sick of my cable bill going up for the same services! There are no other choices! I\'m ready to stop watching TV altogether. Please help the consumers!	SANTA ROSA BEAC	FL	32459
carol	culkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KALISPELL	MT	59901

RONALD	THUROW	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUGAR GROVE	IL	60554
F	Strong	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38125
Jon	Smithers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETER	MN	56082

Chris	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85213
rick	myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHLAND	MA	1721
Peter	Fernandez	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASSAIC	NY	12592

Laura	Grupe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBANY	NY	12203
Jan	Roberts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORWALK	OH	44857
Wendy Jo	Jacklin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLYMPIA	WA	98512

Sharon	Todd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	FL	34606
Rob	Manero	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUDERTON	PA	18964
rose	namay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	WV	25311

DEBRA	DeBergalis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLOOMFIELD	NY	14469
karen	moo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32211
Jeff	Starr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTERVILLE	OH	43081

Sandra	Brewer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	MI	48183
Holly	Lautwein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STREATOR	IL	61364
James	Busler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MODESTO	CA	95355

Crescentia	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77075
eric	daly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MI	48601
Willard	Way	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YANKTON	SD	57078

Elizabeth	Day	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REMSEN	NY	13438
Paula	Sirois	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11221
Cos	B	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTERLY	RI	2891

donna	belmar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST DEPTFORD	NJ	8096
Beth	Friedler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44121
Grace	Leighton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANOGA PARK	CA	91304

Beth	Weeks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST PALM BEACH	FL	33415
David	Hazlett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CREST HILL	IL	60403
tracy	trinidad	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	NJ	7748

Walter	Ganieany	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLYOKE	MA	1040
Ray	Vanacker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANSING	MI	48910
Amanda	Michaud	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENID	OK	73703

Bonnie	Keough	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASON	OH	45040
pam	lester	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAZEWELL	VA	24651
Wanda	McLean-Belcourt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97225

Leslie	Amico	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	NJ	7748
William	Garland	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEES SUMMIT	MO	64081
Janet	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWISTON	ME	4240

Vincent	Costanzo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT SINAI	NY	11766
Delphine	Ferreira	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WARREN	RI	2885
James	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55113

Denise	Henry	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALLWIN	MO	63021
Joanna	Mickle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92111
Maureen	Reardon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOIRA	NY	12957

Elizabeth	Marshall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SNOHOMISH	WA	98290
M James	Sullivan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98116
Ginny	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40207

Cheryl	Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE CHARLES	LA	70605
Diana	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EASTON	MD	21601
BRYON	BLACKMON	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55404

Richard	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAY CITY	MI	48706
Brian	Pierce	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I also should be able to watch local channels in other cities than my own.	DURAND	IL	61024
Debra	Chatterton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	NY	13601

Amy	Walker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	KY	41011
Barry	Holifield	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	TN	37174
Jay	Guthrie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARNED	KY	40144

Crystal	Schramm	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WALTON BE/	FL	32547
Darlene	Singleton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48217
Chad	Young	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEADOWLANDS	MN	55765

Kelly	Swieca	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHAUMBURG	IL	60193
Mita	Karhoff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLIARD	OH	43026
Andrew	Fegan	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREMERTON	WA	98337

Joe	Oppedisano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAPLE HEIGHTS	OH	44137
Carol	Kerns	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLANO	TX	75023
Mark	Lizcano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SACRAMENTO	CA	95825

Kelly	Jobes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOPLIN	MO	64804
Hannah	Rush	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78219

Michael	Rasmussen	I remember the time when the only phone you could have was the one the phone company supplied. This is no different. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97202
Ralph	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURLINGTON	NJ	8016

jean	otterson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NIXA	MO	65714
DONALD	Hanes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMAHA	NE	68106
Judy	Head	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARROLLTON	GA	30117

Timothy	Gilbert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURTON	MI	48509
Donna	Summers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOMERSET	NJ	8873
Mike	Durner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANBY	OR	97013

Timothy	Hogan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63131
Dennis	Paquin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH PORT	FL	34291
Sara	Bakker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA CLARA	CA	95051

Debbie	Fraire	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67214
Jody	Ellis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUSTIS	FL	32726
Gerrie	Russell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	MN	56308

Daniel	Larkin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENOSHA	WI	53143
Jacqueline	Yakubowski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43228
Brenda	Jerez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONCORD	CA	94524

Grace	Coffey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROLLINSFORD	NH	3869
Pedro	Talavera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33177
Lyndell	St james	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASTORIA	OR	97103

Arielle	Leigh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89117
Carrie	Buczynski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PETERBOROUGH	NH	3458
Joyce	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11210

Richard	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HYATTSVILLE	MD	20782
diana	wood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDISON	NJ	8837
Evelyn	Raymond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KNOXVILLE	TN	37921

Niki	Cummings	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE CREEK	MI	49014
Margarita	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALDEN	NY	12586
Michael	Motta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLDWATER	MI	49036

Thomas	Dahlke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CASTLE	DE	19720
Lora	Roberts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESTERFIELD	MO	63017
Daniel	Silver	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84116

Paul	Knudsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST LINN	OR	97068
Michael	O\'Neil	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23451
Diane	Greer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10032

Omar	Baly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20904
Doraine	Raichart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOTHELL	WA	98011
Marie	Parker	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLATWOODS	KY	41139

Dustin	Jevne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARGO	ND	58103
Doreen	Schultz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROMULUS	MI	48174
susan	beckwith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMDENTON	MO	65020

Sarah	Leng	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55430
Selena	Plumley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAPRON	IL	61012
Brenda	Hubka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENGLEWOOD	CO	80110

Brenda	Moran-Schaefer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDINA	OH	44256
Frantz	Martelly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30331
Geniece	Hunt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRADENTON	FL	34211

Frantz	Martelly	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30331
Tom	Alcott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEABECK	WA	98380
Gina	Auer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TITUSVILLE	FL	32780

Deborah	McAnallen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CASTLE	PA	16101
Bruce	Rolff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODCLIFF LAKE	NJ	7677
Cherie	Loso	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST RUTLAND	VT	5777

gerald	garlinghouse	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STERLING HEIGHTS	MI	48312
Mark	Wyzenbeek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85029
Michelle	Bradish	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKFORT	IL	60423

Sara	Filbert	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARROLLTON	TX	75006
Julie	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREMONT	NE	68025
Cabdyce	Merkle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SLATINGTON	PA	18080

Gary	Astorino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97220
Amy	Grant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	523023
Beau	Hopkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUREKA	CA	95503

Patrick	Gwinn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38112
Valerie	Chludzinski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVER FALLS	PA	15010
Gustavo	Zardeneta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAYNE	NE	68787

marc	camden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROMEOVILLE	IL	60446
LeAnn	Craddock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAKERSFIELD	CA	93304
Robin	Rolt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TERRE HAUTE	IN	47807

Michael	Breunig	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTROSS	VA	22520
Linda	Ramos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60626
Jodi	Lowry	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43085

Oswaldo	Medina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77087
Ricardo	Valentino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEARWATER	FL	33759
janet	singer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60018

DayLynn	McDonald	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	SD	57201
Will	Sydnor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLENDALE	AZ	85310
Douglas	Howard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIDGETON	NJ	8302

Dawn	Ganey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TALLAHASSEE	FL	32303
Andrea	Tallman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TORRINGTON	CT	6790
Katherine	Slater	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAVANNAH	GA	31419

Kathy	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTHPORT	AL	35475
Trudy	Shattls	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	PA	17042
cecelia	sonsini	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90039

Don	Christoff	You I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	NY	14512
wenceslao	garza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROWNSVILLE	TX	78521
John	Spalding	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44118

Paul	Doty	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45206
Mary	Elfgen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVENPORT	IA	52803
James	Snedeger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99208

Elizabeth	Mccane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKSVILLE	KY	41004
Sheryl	Arndt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBUQUERQUE	NM	87114
Rodney	Van Houten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RENTON	WA	98055

Lisa	Hoffman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33711
marianne	Clements	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVINCETOWN	MA	2657
Renee	Weist	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRIENDSWOOD	TX	77546

Joanne	Oxx	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLMES	NY	12531
Ira	Brooks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUFFERN	NY	10901
Harold	Schaefer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOOKSETT	NH	3106

Jennifer	Crusan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALLED LAKE	MI	48390
GEORGE	LAIRD	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms.The new age of apps. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STOW	OH	44224
Francine	Molay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WENHAM	MA	1984

lois	miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48228
Martin	Doherty Jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28211
Jennifer	Fowler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45227

Elisabeth	Shoup	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENCINITAS	CA	92024
Pamela	Lunsmann	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60018
Catherine	Frazier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PACOLET	SC	29372

Vinny	Kinane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUTNAM VALLEY	NY	10579
Clare	Driscoll	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGAMORE BEACH	MA	2562
Alan	Youngblood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	32220

Walter	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW MILFORD	CT	6776
Paul	Jacobs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLATWOODS	KY	41139
David	Evans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENILWORTH	NJ	7033

Ellen	Schulman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLD BRIDGE	NJ	8857
Ann	Haden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BIRMINGHAM	AL	35209
Tiffany	Ranalli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOZEMAN	MT	59718

Mike	Eden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKS SUMMIT	PA	18411
pervaiz	wasson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SKOKIE	IL	60076
Dwayne	Jenkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOGANVILLE	GA	30052

John	Festa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10011
james	montgomery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KOKOMO	IN	46901
Daryl	Fenstad	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HATBORO	PA	19040

Tom	Leeman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELRAY BEACH	FL	33483
jeffrey	davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODSVILLE	NH	3785
Lorrie	Stinchfield	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLSTRIP	MT	59323

Judy	Strawther	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEANDER	TX	78641
ILJA	MOSTON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIRAM	GA	30141
Tim	Brower	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHEBORO	NC	27205

Gerald	Mcloughlin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM SPRINGS	CA	92264
Ellen	Scozzafava	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUTNAM VALLEY	NY	10579
Jennifer	Rhea	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92129

Nosephine	Cassar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT JOSEPH	MI	49085
Harriet	Rankin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77038
James	Vickers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT ALBANS	WV	25177

Helen	Boerwinkle	It is so unfair, that there is a monopoly and we do not have any choices....American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKINGS	SD	57006
Joan	Przeslak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARNER	NC	27529
Wende	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDMONTON	KY	42129

mike	lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68516
ARMANDO	GALTIERI	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40511
gilbert	green	recently COX cable has been running ads saying that they have gone all digital and when I tried to down grade to basic cable I was told that it was all digital now and had to have the STB I explained that I got digital channels before but I was told that they were analog 15.1 is not analog channel I hooked the cable to the back of my TV and says on the screen these channels are squabbled. so now other than illegal cable hook ups I see no reason for these STB anymore other than new income for COX	PHOENIX	AZ	85027

Dino	Rojas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTMINSTER	CO	80030
DOROTHEA	JONES	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19143
Cheryl	Fox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM COAST	FL	32137

Cyndi	Blubaugh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWTON	NC	28658
matt	sweet	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURLINGTON	VT	5401
Jill	Eady	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSTON	GA	30021

Justin	Eiben	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH PARK	PA	15129
Mary	Hayes Gordon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW HARTFORD	NY	13413
Michael	Hile	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90815

Patrick	McCabe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT GERMAIN	WI	54558
Natalia	Shurigina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11234
sandra	foti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HERKIMER	NY	13350

Rachael	Hazen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NIPOMO	CA	93444
ricky	jenkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YORK	SC	29745
Rachel	Webb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAGINAW	MI	48638

Kathryn	Mulloy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLETON	CO	80123
Stephania	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLYWOOD	FL	33021
David	Taft	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JONESBORO	GA	30236

Juanita	Veatch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JONESBORO	GA	30236
julia	powell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT JACKSON	VA	22842
Maria	Weatherly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESTER	PA	19013

Mark	Suter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WARREN	OH	44484
Cheryl	Phillips	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18503
Ron	Hughes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23452

Robert	Ratti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89115
tina	stover	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. paying over $125 a MONTH for cable and internet.	BLUE ISLAND	IL	60406
Richard	Webb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	MO	64052

Diana	HELD	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REEDSBURG	WI	53959
Renee	Johnjulio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PULASKI	PA	16143
Berh	Finkelstein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELRAY BEACH	FL	33444

Nicole	Ramirez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STUART	FL	34996
Judith	Bourne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELLENSBURG	WA	98926
Hal	Jolley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBERTVILLE	AL	35951

Jim	Babcock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MENTOR	OH	44060
Sheilia	McLaughlin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98001
Deborah	Foltyn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANTIOCH	IL	60002

Chris	Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	TN	38305
Ray	Patel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOVELAND	OH	45140
Robin	Krause	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55406

Roy	Shawhan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46205
Kristin	Joslin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. Cable is one of the few things around, where consumers are forced to pay for things they don\'t want. I don\'t want 1500 channels, I want 10, but of course they are all on separate tiers. As soon as my contract is up, I am cutting cable unless something is done. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESAPEAKE	VA	23322

Milissa	Burge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONCKS CORNER	SC	29461
Gustavo	Zardeneta	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAYNE	NE	68787
Elizabeth	Bright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ITHACA	NY	14850

Patrick	Young	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YOUNGSTOWN	OH	44514
Lois	Reed	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VICKERY	OH	43464
Anita	Azzarello	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOBART	IN	46342

Linda	Perdue	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEAVERVILLE	NC	28787
Lynn and Kim	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	48197
Vicki	Snipes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKFORD	IL	61104

Tamara	Burbridge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN PABLO	CA	94806
Cindy	Kunard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARNETT	KS	66032
Star	Ozcan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEVILLE	CA	95678

Caterina	Anderson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BANGOR	ME	4401
Patricia	Keoughan	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALMOUTH	MA	2540
Carlos	Mejias	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KODIAK	AK	99615

John	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDERSON	SC	29625
Nora	Keane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11215
Emily	Tench	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENSBORO	NC	27403

Patrick	Maguire	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLIAMSTOWN	NJ	8094
Linda	Warath	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84119
Steve	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASSONET	MA	2702

Meike	Matarazzo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKLAND	CA	94612
james	blanford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	TN	37083
Sherry	Switalski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH BEND	IN	46635

Jason	Lindley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKLAHOMA CITY	OK	73139
Susan	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Thank you, Sincerely, Susan Davis	SAN DIEGO	CA	92119
Sandra	Fennell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURRYSVILLE	PA	15668

Melissa	Hughes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLYMPIA	WA	98506
Dina	Arena	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97223
Natalie	Haller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32837

Deborah	Ahern	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTON	MA	2766
Christopher	Weiss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOYNTON BEACH	FL	33435
Troy	Ashline	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHENECTADY	NY	12302

Ismael	Ramos-Marquez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49506
Alejandro	Ginzo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32825
Anthony	Nielsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOSTON	MA	2127

Kathleen	Sweeney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UPPER DARBY	PA	19082
Chris	Eason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOMESTEAD	FL	33033
jeffrey	herring	End the unlawful monopoly power of the cable companies. These rental fees are technically unnecessary and only exist to defraud consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARY	NC	27518

Joan	Perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	SC	29407
Shannon	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMAHA	NE	68131
John	C	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43615

Jennifer	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORYDON	IN	47112
Raymond "Bı	McKinley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REEDSPORT	OR	97467
Theresa	Magnani	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PETERSBURG	VA	23803

Sue	Seguin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLT	MI	48842
Michael	Rogers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ALAMOS	NM	87544
alan	sapolsky	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11223

Thomas	Becht	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TARRYTOWN	NY	10591
William	Shearn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT CARMEL	PA	17851
Richard	Hogue	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESQUITE	TX	75149

Jen	Prout	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEBUSH	MI	48878
Kevin	Papageorge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CROOKSVILLE	OH	43731
kelly	crouse	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUYALLUP	WA	98372

Ashley	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67213
pamela	gregory	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PONCA CITY	OK	74601
MICHAEL	O\'BRIEN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARNEGIE	PA	15106

Gregory	Pancratz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT COLLINS	CO	80521
crystal	petersen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DUNDEE	NY	14837
Tania	Hernandez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33312

R	nRen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FPO	AE	9501
Deborah	Cohn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KIHEI	HI	96753
Leah	Tedesco	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLAINFIELD	VT	5667

murray	kester	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND JUNCTION	MI	49056
Susan	Scialpi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRICK	NJ	8723
Debra	Gagliano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89178

Kathryn	Land	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCE	KS	66044
Jason	Giaccone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENNER	LA	70065
Anne	Wells	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40508

Rebecca	Tripp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SACRAMENTO	CA	95821
Roger	Cooper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TEMPLE	TX	76502
Kristina	Crowell-Swenson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELFAIR	WA	98528

Sandra	santana	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10002
Hans	VanHeuveln	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33161
Muriel	Heanue	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEESBURG	VA	20177

Dabiel	LaVay	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVERETT	WA	98208
Leah	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDINA	NY	14103
Curt	Yort	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOOSE LAKE	MN	55767

Alicia	Mendoza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOYLESTOWN	PA	18901
Gloria	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	MS	38701
Pat	Snyder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TITUSVILLE	FL	32796

Reynaldo	Cruz	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOYNTON BEACH	FL	33436
Theresa	Rogers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89129
Sara	Jaynes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE CREEK	MI	49015

Kelly	Warren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76133
xavier	banks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95126
kathy	alpagut	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HANOVER PARK	IL	60133

LAURIE	COLLINS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98092
Laurie	Edick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GIBBON	MN	55335
Nathaniel	Marvosh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	NV	89403

Guadalupe	Behncke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YUCCA VALLEY	CA	92284
Lisa	Byers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELOIT	WI	53511
Anna	barker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICO	CA	95973

Kate	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYDEN	ID	83835
Tam	Yeag	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRIES	VA	24330
JoAnne	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CASTLE ROCK	CO	80104

Carla	Josephson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIO RANCHO	NM	87124
Shannon	Grow-Garrett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAYTOWN	TX	77521
Angela	Wehman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CITRUS HEIGHTS	CA	95610

Mark	Havlovec	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLAIR	NE	68008
Erick	Jama	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEVITTOWN	PA	19057
Susan	Finsterer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85705

Kristin	Babel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALLED LAKE	MI	48390
Victoria	Dreumont	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55104
Daniel	Thurston	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAGNA	UT	84044

richard	sheehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	QUINCY	MA	2170
tina	Nelson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESAPEAKE	VA	23325
Sharon	Donovan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. The public has been lied to and manipulated while being subjected to hideous services. Reform the entire system, and stop gaming it.	ANN ARBOR	MI	48104

Dwight	Avery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box Additionally, the cable box is one of the highest power draws of all home appliances. Opening up the box to multiple vendors allows for more efficient energy usage.	GIG HARBOR	WA	98335
Nancy	Gul	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46219

BERNARD	savain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLUSHING	NY	11354
Scott	Ewing	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33702
Dean	Robertson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHANDLER	AZ	85244

Jamie	Hicks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHUA	NH	3060
Eileen	Dowdell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44128
Kellie	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORALVILLE	IA	52241

Jeff	Beagley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEHI	UT	84043
monti	MARKELL	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOREST RANCH	CA	95942
debora	myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97219

Jason	Addison	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80228
Cheryl	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28269
Anne	Haugland	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWBURGH	NY	12550

Dusan	Tatomirovic	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARINA	CA	93933
Steve	Gronau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55412
David	Grimes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19136

julia	larsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MALVERN	PA	19355
mel	quiro	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHERERVILLE	IN	46375
Lisa	Sarinelli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBANY	NY	12205

Lori	Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63116
Deborah	Merriman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	TN	37323
Joanna	McVay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARMICHAEL	CA	95608

Catherine	Cornelius	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97218
Mary	Holler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55430
G	Christie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	31907

Jenniene	Ritacca	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SISTERS	OR	97759
Mark	McCormick	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76131
Laura	rooks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DORCHESTER CEN	MA	2124

Jonathan	Zuchowski the	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OGDEN	UT	84404
Glenda	Odom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELBYVILLE	TN	37160
Preacher Wil	Barnes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIDGTON	ME	4009

Maria	DeMaertelaere	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BANGOR	ME	4401
Judith	Rodriguez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77066
Sue	Edwards	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PANAMA CITY	FL	32404

Renee	Pletzer-Dykmann	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COTTAGE GROVE	WI	53527
Nancy	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GWINN	MI	49841
Casey	Grippando	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWASSO	OK	74055

Kerri	Dickens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LLANO	TX	78643
Lisa	Cunningham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILO	OH	43771
Christine	Piekarski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	MA	2021

Adele	Klein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLETON	CO	80120
Dolores	Peers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	FL	34608
Rachel	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BALTIMORE	MI	48047

Richard A	Stegman Jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CALIMESA	CA	92320
John	Colkos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILBRAHAM	MA	1095
Lisa	Longmire	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVERDALE	WA	98383

Roger	Roy	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WARREN	MI	48092
Liam	Devlin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98107
Rebecca	Smiroldo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95124

Amanda	Bowman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	TX	78750
Jennifer	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSBURG	WV	26301
Tammy	Buckman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VINE GROVE	KY	40175

Michael R	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLTON	CA	92324
Ora	Owens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	AL	36830
Vickie	Covert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUSHVILLE	OH	43150

Dean	Montgomery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98660
Ora	Owens	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	AL	36830
Cheryl	Odoardi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REVERE	MA	2151 tim	chernak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLAINFIELD	IL	60586

jen	king	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEKIN	IL	61554
Terry	Robeson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLDSMAR	FL	34677

Rebecca	Soto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWARK	DE	19711
Mary	Hawkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLORENCE	KY	41042
Franco	Ferrer-San Miguel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALTAMONTE SPRIN	FL	32714

Peggy	Giles	Let\'s be honest. It is a made up thing that we never needed before. It doesn\'t even make the quality better. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAVELOCK	NC	28532
Kevin	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENFIELD	IN	46140

Kandice	Simmons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PAINESVILLE	OH	44077
stephen	alamango	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOPANGA	CA	90290
Megan	Fordahl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKLEY	CA	94561

gordon	perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAVANNAH	GA	31404
Clarice	Klepadlo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROME	NY	13440
Jeffrey	Krueger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	CA	93536

Kellie	Pryor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89103
Felicia	Valmonte	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94122
Annette	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60016

Dan	Coronel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89123
debra	yakubowski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43211
Catherine	RKapke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68504

Chris	Pierce	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20906
Guillermo	Avalos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90814
Chantal	Molnar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORANGE	CA	92869

Rose	Vanheuveln	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33161
Linda	Saunders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELBYVILLE	KY	40065
Angie	Stiles Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA	IL	61604

Marilyn	Clary	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	KS	66106
Holly	White	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHARON	VT	5065
sandra	horner	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTELL	GA	30168

Ray	parker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST FRIENDSHIP	MD	21794
James	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POUGHKEEPSIE	NY	12603
Glenn	Solowiej	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRAVERSE CITY	MI	49684

Alonzo	Holmes	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what co nsumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONWAY	SC	29526
Jane	Collins	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTOWN	NH	3603
Cindy	Stettler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEVERNA PARK	MD	21146

Laura	Blackler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	ME	4330
Carl	Zeuner	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	16907
Susan	Plante	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASSENA	NY	13662

Bob	Betcher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98092
Janet	Fort	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44102
Eric	Amundson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WALNUT CREEK	CA	94597

Maureen	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDVALE	UT	84047
Mike	Brooks	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONGWOOD	FL	32750

Daniel	Hoffman	I have rented cable boxes from both Comcast and Verizon. They are supposedly the best available, but they are of inferior quality to all my other equipment-- which they are not compatible with. If I am forced to pay for high quality, I should get high quality equipment. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19128
lisa	lookenott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOLENSVILLE	TN	37135

Eleanor	Navales	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHULA VISTA	CA	91910
David	Ocame	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRANFORD	CT	6405
Rana	Miller-Owen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONCORD	CA	94519

Lisha	Sosa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77099
Jerima	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN(	CO	80918
Bridget	Harris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37206

Mike	Talbert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOT SPRINGS NATI	AR	71901
David	Vestring	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45227
Thomas	Gordon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48207

Tina	Harwood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VENICE	FL	34285
Miguel	Maldonado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46254
barbara	jannicelli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	FL	34606

Carolynn	Frank	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH BABYLON	NY	11703
Jennifer	Hendrickson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVERTON	OR	97006
Michael	Schafer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HATTIESBURG	MS	39401

John	Bush	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	TN	37115
Catie	B	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST ALEXANDER	PA	15376
Diane	Schorsch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33702

Ben	Moss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71105
denise	previte	End the rigged monopolies and unbridled greed!!!!! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCOTTSDALE	AZ	85255
Cezanne	Blincoe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MELBOURNE	FL	32901

James	Herron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVANSTON	IL	60201
Adam	Hand	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VAIL	CO	81657
Ronald	Silverstein	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	DE	19805

Gloria	Svensson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STATEN ISLAND	NY	10306
Kathy	Hallock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOLEY	MO	63347
Carole	Gregory	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT JOHN	IN	46373

John	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOPEWELL	VA	23860
MzRA	Tavernier	Unlock the box. People on fixed incomes are being bled dry. Wr can no longer enjoy wTching tv for free. Something tjat ee have done for most of our adult lives. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLINGBORO	NJ	8046

Hans	VanHeuveln	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33161
Carla	Margolis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YPSILANTI	MI	48198
Ruth	Olafsdottir	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA MONICA	CA	90403

Cynthia	Conry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HINSDALE	MA	1235
Will	Fendley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	GA	30157
Brenda	Harless	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44311

Joanne	Grant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98003
Daniel	Nichols	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEVERLY	MA	1915
Deborah	Scearce	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLINSVILLE	VA	24078

Timothy	Swistak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BEDFORD	MA	2740
carol	diehl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSATONIC	MA	1236
Jeri	Tiley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARVADA	CO	80003

Alan	Snodgrass	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VINE GROVE	KY	40175
Nick	Zachariasen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SIOUX FALLS	SD	57105
Christine	Guttilla	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH LAS VEGAS	NV	89032

Kathy	Chadwell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	IN	47909
Douglas	Dodge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARLBOROUGH	MA	1752
Susie	Renfrow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW HAVEN	IN	46774

Clint	Okruhlik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77006
Erin	DeLong	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VILLAS	NJ	8251
Judy	Kirk	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOCKPORT	IL	60441

Tonda	Young	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLENFORD	OH	43739
George	Pulido	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95136
helen	newton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LYNN	MA	1905

Gela	Warfel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CUMBERLAN	PA	17070
Randy	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GROTON	NY	13073
Sheila	Marshall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32244

Michael	Schlebecker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARMEL	IN	46032
derek	little	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSPORT	TN	37660
Jorge	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90802

Michael	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32826
Paula	Centers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARKSVILLE	IN	47129
Jessie	Stepanian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	METHUEN	MA	1844

Nancy	Pearl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST SETAUKET	NY	11733
Dianne	Struble	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST MILFORD	NJ	7480
Lynn	Calvert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLARENDON	TX	79226

Donald	Curtin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHUA	NH	3063
Kim	Tait	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT MILL	SC	29715
ROBIN	FRENCH	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLETON	WI	54911

Kevin	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARPER WOODS	MI	48225
Adam	Titelbaum	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT COLLINS	CO	80521
TRAVIS	BABCOCK	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOMAHAWK	WI	54487

edwin	del rios	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALRICO	FL	33594
Shelley	Cole	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEVILLE	MI	48066
Annette	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRIMAN	TN	37748

Preeti	Kashyap	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98023
Noah	Gantnier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITING	IA	51063
Eleanora	Micotto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLAND PARK	IL	60462

Thomas	Rouzer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCK HILL	SC	29730
Mehdi	Farid	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94133
Kelvin	Sealy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23454

Christine	Fidler	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80223
allen	walch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEHIGHTON	PA	18235
Robert	Fidler	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80223

cindy	doenges	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEMMONS	NC	27012
Edward	Annese	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94118
Joe	Russo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10075

Don	Truex	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37128
Brian	Ferrin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	95061
Catherine	Towne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40204

Ray	Coleman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN FRANCISCO	CA	94102
K. Raye	McKinley II	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44130
Timothy	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESTER	WV	26034

Jim	Ferrin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT JOHNS	AZ	85936
Angel	Rivera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	NJ	8618
Jim	Ferrin	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT JOHNS	AZ	85936

Amanda	Boggs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENNESAW	GA	30152
Lauree	Eastman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98682
Madelyn	C.	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHARDSON	TX	75081

Jerry	Langland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60657
Laurie	Becker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LA CROSSE	WI	54601
Chris	Schermbeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45403

Robert	Lange	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32825
Kelly	Campbell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH LYON	MI	48178
Michelle	Robertson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALT LAKE CITY	UT	84123

Peter	Zeigler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97206
J.L.	Windle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AURORA	CO	80010
Tiffany	Burgman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTHVILLE	MI	48167

Jon	Terry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLAINE	WA	98230
Jonathan	Simon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURNSVILLE	NC	28714
Frank	Rolfe III	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	4012

Isaiah	Brazzell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DICKSON	TN	37055
Jenny	Maggiore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SILVER SPRING	MD	20902
Ananda	Rouillier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Come on! Get with the times!	PORTLAND	OR	97218

Ryan	Sinclair	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	O5663
Jaime	Case	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98663
Dawn	Marinucci	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44333

daryl	linge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PRESCOTT	WI	54021
Alex	Saint	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMESBURY	MA	1913
Scott	Rooted-Hunter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLAND	MA	1521

Margaret	Deau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODSTOCK	IL	60098
Freya	Skarin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98112
Dianne	Morales	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10451

STEVEN	BARR	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA CLARITA	CA	91390
Marygrace	Coneff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOMA LINDA	CA	92354
Linda	Mouchyn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLEGE STATION	TX	77845

Leopold	Weill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ORLEANS	LA	70124
Mitchell	Shuster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19152
Mark	Wolf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINNETKA	CA	91306

Michael	Stafford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	28711
Mike	Galos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLEVUE	WA	98005
Kevin	Carr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUNNYVALE	CA	94085

Edie	Harkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAYTON	UT	84041
amber	cowden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLAND	OH	43528
Roderick	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREEN BAY	WI	54303

Alexandre	Prudencio	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DRACUT	MA	1826
Theresa	Teem	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVISON	MI	48423
D.E.	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA MONICA	CA	90405

diana	west	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ODESSA	TX	79765
Corey	Slade	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENCINITAS	CA	92024
Yvonne	Fiore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINERAL WELLS	TX	76067

Doreen	Buck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAVARRE	FL	32566
Jan	Watson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINSTON	AL	36453
Eileen	Gabellini	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28208

Jennifer	Bruno	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRUSHTON	NY	12916
Janis	Bunch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. It\'s a racket that de-regulation has allowed. I say not only unlock the box, but also regulate the cable industry. It\'s a monopoly!	ROCHESTER	WA	98579

chavorris	orr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINTER PARK	FL	32789
Kenneth	RUCKER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CASSOPOLIS	MI	49031
PAMELA	MORRIS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE ROCK	AR	72209

Gaye	Spetka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Most subscribers pay for years on end. I have probably already paid enough fees to purchase my own box, but my cable provider does not permit it	COLUMBUS	OH	43204
Elizabeth	Richard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLSOPPLE	PA	15935
veronica	Alleyne	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NY	14620

Dianne	Potter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	IL	62702
Sarah	Lutze	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND BLANC	MI	48439
David	Daniels	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PASADENA	TX	77504

Elizabeth	Page	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSWEGO	NY	13126
Jean Louis	Boers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLIERVILLE	TN	38017
Visa	Bowen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44320

Debra	Thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITE PIGEON	MI	49099
Larry	Morgan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SATSUMA	FL	32189
Rick	Hawksley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENT	OH	44240

Melissa	Dunn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOVELAND	OH	45140
Kenny	Madden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEREA	KY	40403
Susan	Schoenbohm	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37215

Frank	Booker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63136
Janet	Brandariz Gorbes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11231
Ann	McNally	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	IN	47124

Derek	Werner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA FE	NM	87501
Stefanie	Kauer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64118
David	Geiger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WYANDOTTE	MI	48192

Rebecca	Hermsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOPEKA	KS	66614
Anthony	Bieak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEVITTOWN	PA	19054
Timothy	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HONEOYE	NY	14471

Edward	Calder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LYNNWOOD	WA	98036
Grissel	Sepulveda	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RONKONKOMA	NY	11779
Terrell	Sheridan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GROTON	CT	6340

John	Henderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLINGHAM	WA	98229
Paula	Conley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROWNSBURG	IN	46112
Pamela	McManama	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE VILLAGE	IN	46349

B.	Willison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE SUAMICO	WI	54141
Jeremy	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOVELAND	CO	80537
Beth	Bloom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NY	14609

Mike	Wilkinson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15237
patrick	smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNDRIDGE	KS	67107
Kathleen	Callaghan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KERHONKSON	NY	12446

Jeff	Adelman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NYACK	NY	10960
Mark	Ali	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28278
deborah	lieberman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	MI	48187

Darlene	Haskell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH BERWICK	ME	3908
Lisa	Saunders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUMBLE	TX	77338
Yvonne	Crespo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33157

Janet	MacKenzie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAPE CANAVERAL	FL	32920
SANDRA	VAN FREDENBERG	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OCEAN SHORES	WA	98569
Michele	Ford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	PA	17042

Lawrence	Israel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA FE	NM	87507
Debbie	Diramio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVIDENCE	RI	2905
Ty	Oppelt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation, and more diverse voices, so we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GURDON	AR	71743

Carrie	Carlton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GWINN	MI	49841 rey	carr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORPUS CHRISTI	TX	78412
Blaze-ellen	Carpenter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	VT	5156

tessa	pruitt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	TN	38019
Scott	Gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTCLAIR	NJ	7042
David	Schulz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKFORT	KY	40601

Marcelino	Gomez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYWARD	CA	94544
Stephen	LaValley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DERRY	NH	3038
Justin	Berkey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CUMMING	GA	30028

Jane	Branham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTON	VA	24273
Sandra	Szczepanek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISON TOWNS	MI	48045
Marianne	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CEDAR SPRINGS	MI	49319

Clara	Fox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUEBLO	CO	81005
Georgia	Griego	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALBUQUERQUE	NM	87112
tiffany	jean	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARIBOU	ME	4736

Patricia	Longoria	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA	AZ	85381
Ginette	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUREKA	CA	95501
chelsea	lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN BERNARDINO	CA	92404

Dorothy	Parenti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GROVE CITY	PA	16127
Wendy	Moultrie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISON	MI	48625
michael	theriot	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RACELAND	LA	70394

Alicia	Hanson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCPHERSON	KS	67460
Jimmie	Jack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BENSALEM	PA	19020
Carolyn	Dickerson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWPORT	NC	28570

Diana	Jonas	Do your job, fight for fair charges, cable costs are out of control.I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HENDERSON	NV	89052
Justin	Swafford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	LA	70433
jimmy	ward	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	PA	15301

Robert	Parmele	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFTON SPRINGS	NY	14432
Phyllis	Wade	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARVEY	IL	60426
Gwendolyn	key	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THOMSON	GA	30824

Candice	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWENSBORO	KY	42301
Lisa	Puleo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89121
stephen	dunne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLDEN	MA	1520

Nyle	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEDALE	NY	11422
Leon	Aguirre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95148
George	Turner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST BERLIN	NJ	8091

Deborah	Ellis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLORISSANT	MO	63033
Mary	Simpson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDWARDSVILLE	IL	62025
Dan	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERLOO	IA	50701

Donald	Simpson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDWARDSVILLE	IL	62025
sandy	Salinas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW SMYRNA BEA	FL	32168
Christina	Villeneuve	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARLBOROUGH	NH	3455

Claudia	Miceli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMILLUS	NY	13031
Rose Ann	Martorana	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOWNINGTOWN	PA	19335
Wanona	Calderone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64124

Samantha	Simpson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDWARDSVILLE	IL	62025
Kimberly	Storey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUYALLUP	WA	98375
Debra	Stoner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOLDSBORO	NC	27534

dave	harrington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREWSTER	NY	10509
Dee	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BARGERSVILLE	IN	46106
Scott	Ferrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33311

Linda	Matchick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLAND	OH	43528
BK	Cunningham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEYMOUR	TN	37865
Jennifer	Comeau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	MA	1104

Jestine	Trappier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GEORGETOWN	SC	29440
Angelica	Gonzalez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN(	CO	80910
Mary	Spencer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUSHNELL	FL	33513

Lauren	Roche	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POQUOSON	VA	23662
James	Nolan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHBURNHAM	MA	1430
Desiree	Rotundo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OZONE PARK	NY	11416

Mary	Edwards	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	OH	43130
Marianne	Shanley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11209
Debbie	Villwock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMBRIA	CA	93428

Cynthia	Sabo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	CA	93536
Maridee	Broadfoot	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN LUIS OBISPO	CA	93405
Janelle	McCormack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POPLARVILLE	MS	39470

susan	gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STUART	FL	34997
Kelly	Hinton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANDVIEW	MO	64030
Luis	Torres	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH TAZEWELL	VA	24630

Marc	Houston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85756
Melissa	Mcclain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMARILLO	TX	79106
William	McCrory	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BIRMINGHAM	AL	35212

Joan	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89149
Roberta	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ISSAQUAH	WA	98027
Jennifer	Haagen	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST HAMPTON	NY	11937

Darlene	Wieliczko	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOURBONNAIS	IL	60914
Phyllis	Proctor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTOWN	MA	2129
Vincent	Navarra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KERHONKSON	NY	12446

Alison	Babich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97202
Jason	Preston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOVELAND	CO	80538
Tina	LeDoux	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99217

Teresa	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLAYTON	NC	27520
Christopher	Daniel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEREA	KY	40403
Nancy	Santi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32837

Michelle	Lemley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLACERVILLE	CA	95667
Nancy	Graumann	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASECA	MN	56093
Katherine	Downey	I am against monopolies of all kinds. Bad business and the consumers always lose! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORWELL	MA	2061

PATRICK	MCQUILLIN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97230
Julie	Corbin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARRETT	IN	46738
Heather	Butler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MO	65202

Gerald	Hess	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	NY	13617
Randy	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ORLEANS	LA	70124
Crystal	Kinney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANDUSKY	OH	44870

Lisa	Hebert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	LA	70507
Sharon	Mcclaskey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEWISTON	FL	33440
Kathryn	Thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANNAPOLIS	MD	21401

Norman	Dagen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EMPIRE	MI	49630
Todd	Kostelac	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLE VERNON	PA	15012
Hailie	Brashear	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISONVILLE	KY	42431

Brian	Simurdiak	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREEN BAY	WI	54303
LETICIA	QUINONEZ	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79936
Kerrie	Green	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37128

Glenn	Romano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HATBORO	PA	19040
Aretta	Layne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STRASBURG	VA	22657
JAMES	HAUSER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TARRS	PA	15688

Ida	DeLisi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND MARAIS	MN	55604
Diane	Toberman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUDSON	WI	54016
Joan	Roberson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	MN	55327

peggy	schlayer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BONITA SPRINGS	FL	34135
Michael	McPherson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CASEVILLE	MI	48725
Marna	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SIMPSONVILLE	SC	29681

Mandi	Ledbetter	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERSAILLES	KY	40383
Mary Kay	Grosskopf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAUSAU	WI	54401
Leslie	Gillham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMMOND	IN	46324

ROBERTA	IRVING	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AVON	NY	14414
Anne	Barnhart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONSHOHOCKEN	PA	19428
George	Schneider	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEENAH	WI	54956

Robert	Strain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISBURG	PA	17102
Laura	LaMonte-Harris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERFORD	MI	48329
Mary Kay	Beasa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPARKS	NV	89434

Barbara	Poudrier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71118
David	Tyndall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KITTERY	ME	3904
Anthony	Nielsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	2130

christine	takata	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA	IL	61606
Kathryn	Toback	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Also- stop neighborhood bundle agreements that lock residents into long congrats they do not want.	HOLLYWOOD	FL	33029

Virginia	Zalakar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YORK	PA	17408
Gregory	Gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABINGTON	MA	2351
kris	konefal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PINELLAS PARK	FL	33781

Bob	Wertz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLEBURG	PA	17842
Tim	Trout	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	MO	65802
Tom	Stockner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRADENTON	FL	34212

Jared	Stapleton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PERU	IN	46970
wenceslao	garza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROWNSVILLE	TX	78521
Deborah	Walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POOLER	GA	31322

Debra	Burkhary	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVANSVILLE	IN	47714
Nathan	Frazier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ALAMOS	NM	87544
John	Wilhoit	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORRISTOWN	TN	37814

Bridget	Kolacki	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EASTON	PA	18040
Jose	aviles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AURORA	IL	60505
Lance	brothers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GADSDEN	AL	35904

Deborah	Duffy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JAMAICA PLAIN	MA	2130
Justin	Gall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45419
Jennet	Loscalzo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SELLERSVILLE	PA	18960

Wyvonne	Colombo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA ROSA	CA	95403
Keri	McAndrew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKMONT	PA	15139
Cynthia	Knox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98133

Kenneth	Frese	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. END THE UNLAWFUL MONOPOLIES!	CENTREVILLE	VA	20120
Tammy	Lane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAKEMAN	OH	44889
Jerry	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEANDER	TX	78645

Darryl	Thompson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DACULA	GA	30019
Maria	Bray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN MARCOS	CA	92078
Cindy	McClain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEHIGH ACRES	FL	33973

Lonnie	Chambers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CUMMING	GA	30041
Heidi	Creamer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GALLIPOLIS FERRY	WV	25515
Darrel	Gebert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	O FALLON	IL	62269

Troy	Tackett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROCTORVILLE	OH	45669
Laura	Erickson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANFORD	FL	32773
Thomas	Lyons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST WARWICK	RI	2893

Michael	Carney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUNNEMEDE	NJ	8078
Anna	Banuelos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BEACH	CA	90802
Nathaniel	Wilhelm	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOOSTER	OH	44691

Keri	Olson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98001
Richard	Rutter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERONA	PA	15147
julie	rose	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALLEJO	CA	94590

deborah	dibell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABRAMS	WI	54101
Carol	Wells	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEEHAWKEN	NJ	7086
Jason	Lane	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SMITHFIELD	NC	27577

Dan	Fors	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64123
terry	best	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTHPORT	NC	28461

Judy	Hinterlong	Why should i have to pay every month for sports channels i never watch? The technology exists to allow a consumer to pick what they want and don\'t want! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45231
Da	Cziraky	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALLAS	NC	28034

Bonnie	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CONCORD	OH	43762
chris	barry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOORHEAD	MN	56560
Vicky	Altamirano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DODGE CITY	KS	67801

April	Ouweleen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KALAMAZOO	MI	49048
Michael	Hunsinger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BINGHAMTON	NY	13905
Vicki	Morang	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TROY	MI	48083

John	Douros	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARQUETTE	MI	49855
James	McCully	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAKE FOREST	NC	27587
Marquise	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLINE	MA	2445

Terry	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	WV	25306
Judd	price	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	TX	76014
Sascha	Yergin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST DECATUR	PA	16878

Thomas	Linzi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	1E+07
James	Bonney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLANO	TX	75094
Brian	Kratzer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	46803

Bruce	Watford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BIRMINGHAM	AL	35235
Anne	Tamerius	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97216
Marcia	Friedman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60634

Adam	Normandin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILFORD	NH	3055
Diana	Richard	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH ATTLEBOR(	MA	2760
mark	micer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUTHER GLEN	VA	22546

James	Edwards	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRODSBURG	KY	40330
Michael	Henning	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. I pay a lot more than that!! This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARLINGTON	VA	22207
Jerry	Bailey	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	97703

Linda	Wynkoop	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PENSACOLA	FL	32505
Deb	Bennett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON	WV	25705
Cheryl	Stratton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	TX	75402

Susan	Ledford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREDERICK	MD	21701
Albert	Leffew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENSBORO	NC	27401
Jackie	Edwards	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT DAVIS	TX	79734

Roni	Hughes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANSFIELD	TX	76063
Luzelenia	Cruz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32822
Morgan	Feger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BENZONIA	MI	49616

Chris	Turcotte	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANTIOCH	TN	37013
Peter	Casu	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PANAMA CITY	FL	32405
Joni	Mullock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAVENWOOD	MO	64479

Deborah	Stanton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76137
Niels	Finsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIBERTY	PA	16930
Sarah	Bird	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YARMOUTH	ME	4096

Kevin	Dawson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVERSIDE	CA	92507
Christine	Poulterer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT GRATIOT	MI	48059
Candace	Gamblain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAYS LANDING	NJ	8330

Randy	Evans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	4o617
Mario	Schutter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSAGE CITY	KS	66523
Teri	Frederick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOHRSVILLE	PA	19541

mary	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL DORADO	CA	95623
Kim	Naddeo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAP	PA	17527
Christine	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DERBY	CT	6418

Patricia	Gangestad	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARSON	WA	98610
Natalie	Mowan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89135
Nancy	Cockett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKS CORNERS	NY	14518

Gerald	Testerman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SARASOTA	FL	34240
paul	ryder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINCOLN	NE	68502
Mary	Vandeyacht	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMRO	WI	54963

Tammy	Mack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JANESVILLE	WI	53545
Claudia	Middendorf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PAWTUCKET	RI	2860
Julie	Conkle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ZANESVILLE	OH	43701

Joy	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE ROCK	AR	72204
Vicki	Trimble	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	OH	45503
Jon	McGlone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	KY	41001

Theresa	Paige	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLOOMINGTON	IL	61704
Mary	Gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AVONDALE	AZ	85323
Nina	Thornsburg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98178

Rosa	Pache	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33161
Elvin	Stewart)	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JAMESTOWN	NY	14701
G. Raymond	Raulerson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LARGO	FL	33771

Darrell	DeDeurwaerder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EASTHAMPTON	MA	1027
Laronda	Eason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT VALLEY	GA	31030
Richard	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32220

Cynthia	Fowler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARITON	AL	36311
Kay	Lin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANEOHE	HI	96744
Lyndall	Riedel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LARAMIE	WY	82072

Frances	Green	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT LAUREL	NJ	8054
Randy	Turner	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDERSON	IN	46012
Judie	Cooper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MO	65202

SANDRA	VAN FREDENBERG	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OCEAN SHORES	WA	98569
Gerald	Corby	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOTTINGHAM	PA	19362
Raul	Bahena	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROSPECT HEIGHT	IL	60070

Suzanne	Heffron	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHERBORN	MA	1770
David	Olson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Plus, in the area I live we cannot get digital television signal without either a dish or cable hookup, making it impossible to get any signal without either of these. Talk about playing to the the crowd that pays them! No wonder the American citizen is pissed and will elect Trump! David Olson	WAHKON	MN	56386

Elizabeth	Garner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	98290
Maxine	Morel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE GROVE	NY	11755
April	Craren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMAHA	NE	68134

Angela	Ford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37209
Darren	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TULSA	OK	74133
TRACYLEE	KALSKY	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLACKSBURG	SC	29702

RAMA	WILLIAMS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85210
Charlene	Streeter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELOIT	WI	53511
Kathy	Pelletier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NH	3868

Diane	Tumblin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTSMOUTH	VA	23707
Gilberto	Villarreal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROWNSVILLE	TX	78526
Rosalyn	Bullock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRIFFIN	GA	30224

byron	carlson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK PARK	IL	60302
Carol	Leighton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH ANDOVER	MA	1845
Barbara	Potter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERNON HILLS	IL	60061

ANGELA	SAWYER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINSTON SALEM	NC	27106
Angela	Sosna	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANGWIN	CA	94508
Michelle	Wolfe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORTING	WA	98360

Bobby	Norman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UNIONTOWN	PA	15401
Lisa	Zaharakis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRESH MEADOWS	NY	11366
Lee	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	33708

Crystal	Deen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85204
Guy	Jensen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92110
Orlando	Olmo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE PLACID	FL	33852

Rhyanna	DeTuathana	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TANGENT	OR	97389
Earl	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANDY HOOK	CT	6482
Ted	Jasper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES MOINES	IA	50316

juston	mullet	How in the world they get away with selling you service that you cant even use unless you also pay them for a service to watch your service and then throw in misc. fees that are separate from your service or service for getting your service fees is beyond comprehension. I signed up for the 49.99 a month package on the phone and my bill is 99.99 a month no wonder people steal cable, rip me off expect it in return! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOSHEN	IN	46526
Penny	Rowe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99208

brenda	galambos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71119
David	Lach	Why am I forced to have a cable box for every TV in my home? It costs me $8.00 per month for each box plus the additional electricity charge for each box, how inconsiderate are these cable companies? I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49546

Cindy	Wood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	MS	39202
Elizabeth	daling	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TACOMA	WA	98404
Malissa	Fernandez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NIAGARA FALLS	NY	14301

Ruben	Alvarez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESQUITE	TX	75150
Juana	Calderon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60608
Thomas A.	Guaraldi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	77071

Chris	Lang III	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15227
Michael	Hopkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23454
Phil	Francis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	OH	45044

Alvaro	Arias	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JAMAICA	NY	11435
donna	taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLORENCE	AL	35630
Kelly	Kirwin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TROY	NY	12180

Lisa	Loughney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAGERSTOWN	MD	21740
Mark	Deutsch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELRAY BEACH	FL	33445
Laura	Damasceno	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99205

Stephanie	Guzman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11220
Cynthia	Saren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKINGS	OR	97415

Marty	singleton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I\'d also like to see more broadcast TV. I live in Newburgh NY and receive no network or PBS channels without cable. Almost no broadcast TV is available at my address.	NEWBURGH	NY	12550
Tiffany	Day	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOTTINGHAM	NH	3290

Garth	Almgren	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. We are allowed to purchase any cable modem we want but are locked into the limited feature cable boxes offered by the cable companies. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEDRO WOOLLEY	WA	98284
Mike	Loebe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98106

Audrey	Seay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MESA	AZ	85275
Mary	Eisenbeis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORCHARD PARK	NY	14127
Christopher	Tuccitto	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLYWOOD	FL	33021

Christiana	Maxson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	MN	55902
Mark	Grubb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	19006
MJ	Grant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KITTREDGE	CO	80457

Kenneth	Snow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANSING	MI	48910
Josue	Bedoya	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANYON COUNTRY	CA	91351
Laurel	Hartley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE STEVENS	WA	98258

Dawn	Carrico	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CASTLE ROCK	CO	80108
Nathan	Nevid	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST PALM BEACH	FL	33403
Veronica	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15214

Paula	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COBDEN	IL	62920
Anne	Albanese	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST PALM BEACH	FL	33403
Douglas	Demsko	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAZLETON	PA	18202

Michael	Richmond	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44128
Steven	Marshall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MULVANE	KS	67110
frank	thetonia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARLBOROUGH	MA	1752

Lisa	Dulaitis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60608
michael	searles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER	NH	3103
Doris	Bacon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANANDAIGUA	NY	14424

Walter	Wray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RALEIGH	NC	27613
Thomas	Rummel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92104
Gwen	Rendina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLINGHAM	WA	98229

Doug	Andris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTERVILLE	CA	93257
Lonnie	Morrison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAUREL	MS	39440
Kim	Studebaker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMDEN	NY	13316

Letha	Harris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40513
Lisa	Harper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISON TOWNS	MI	48045
Melissa	Crippe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COOPERSTOWN	NY	13326

James	Ring	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CATHEDRAL CITY	CA	92234
Brian	Lucas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLOTTE	NC	28269
juan	de Rosa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60626

Susan	Ledermann	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASTIC	NY	11950
richard	sczepankowski	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMSTERDAM	NY	12010
Becky	Reed	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANNSVILLE	NY	13661

Diane	Cunningham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHEAT RIDGE	CO	80033
Cathy	Berryman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALLEY GROVE	WV	26060
suzanne	duckworth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MO	65201

Melissa	Mengel	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	READING	PA	19609
Edythe	Dyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLIVE BRANCH	MS	38654
Gerald	Ewing	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76133

John	DeGall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOSHEN	NY	10924
Debby	Kawiecki	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOLVANG	CA	93463
Brian	Pearson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEARLAKE	CA	95422

Judith	Farris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1850
Larry	Burnham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKPORT	MA	1966
Jill	Mcknight	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TEMPE	AZ	85284

Dusty	Cordell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUEBLO	CO	81004
David	Huffman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30345
Lauren	Brost	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH MILWAUKE	WI	53172

William	Audette	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53202
Virginia	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANNAPOLIS	MD	21401
les	spargo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENHAM SPRINGS	LA	70726

Nora	connell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BANKS	AL	36005
Amanda	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	43230
Harold	Hapgood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOMER	NY	13077

R E	Piantedosi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATTLEBORO	MA	2703
Carolyn	Bassett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDENTON	NC	27932
Jennifer	Krivanek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMAHA	NE	68122

CHRIS	BALL	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33314
Richard	IRITANO	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OZONE PARK	NY	11417
Shawn	Harper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MATTESON	IL	60443

Carlos	Perez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFTON	NJ	7011
AL	S	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UTICA	NY	13502
Shelley	Behling	Please helpI support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RACINE	WI	53403

Asuncion	Casillas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITING	IN	46394
scott	barnett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AVA	IL	62907
Heidi	Leeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WISCONSIN DELLS	WI	53965

Michel	West	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97216
Rosalind	Courtney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAMPA	FL	33624
judie	lewellen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	93553

Lisa	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OXFORD	AL	36203
Traci	Venia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORRISTOWN	PA	19401
Kathleen	Glennon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOWNSHIP OF WA	NJ	7676

Susan	Schutz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55123
debbie	gibbens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHARLESTON	TN	37310
Debbie	Blanchard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BILLINGS	MT	59101

Liisa	Mackey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WADING RIVER	NY	11792
Tanya	Clumpner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KIRKLAND	WA	98034
Steven	Devore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60016

Devon	OSBORNE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HURST	TX	76053
Arnold	Rottmann	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33146
Keith	Bagge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55113

arlan	medicine	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEMIDJI	MN	56601
Shannon	Greely	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEABROOK	TX	77586
Magued	KMel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEVITTOWN	NY	11756

JT	Quillin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HELENA	MT	59602
Valerie	Bonds	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE CREEK	MI	49037
Kathleen	Keenan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKLAND	CA	94601

L	M	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBIA	MO	65201
Mariel	Wallace	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICO	CA	95926
Ginger	Beeler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT HURON	MI	48060

Denise	Lawrence	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45426
Leilani	Greenwood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38106
Lee	Quave	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OCEAN SPRINGS	MS	39564

Sherri	Bryan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURTON	MI	48519
Helen	Barney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTHFIELD	MI	48075
larry	walker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WARREN	MI	48089

dannette	Bowers	It\'s just not fair when you live on a budget and can barely make ends meat. Be ok Nguyen disabled there\'s really not a whole lot to doubters h tv. So I\'m asking to please help us. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	OH	44706
Timothy	Carr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44102
JOHN	BROWN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLAINFIELD	IL	60544

Linda	Isaac	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	REYNOLDSBURG	OH	43068
Connie	Mortara	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1852
Sereena	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NY	14616

Sarah	buchanan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	OH	44714
Paul	McManus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98168
Tracy	Lipinski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK CREEK	WI	53154

Carla	Payne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCEVILLE	GA	30046
Robert	Shea	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANAAN	NH	3741
tina	micari	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUDSON	FL	34667

Dawn	Samuels-Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAPWAI	ID	83540
Mark	Shideler	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98001
Susan	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53207

Angeline	Marushin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENOSHA	WI	53140
Michael	Lopes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BEDFORD	MA	2740
Penny	Walendzik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49525

Sarra	Jordan-Pinkston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWENSBORO	KY	42301
Robert	Walendzik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49525
Joseph	Claxton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GURLEY	AL	35748

Sara	Angeles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23454
Matthew	McKenna	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILLERSBURG	OH	44654
Angela	Crandall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRAVERSE CITY	MI	49685

Joe	Tirado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OGDEN	UT	84401
Roger	McMillan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	TN	37087
Michele	Musillami	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT CHARLES	IL	60175

Victor	Yatco	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95148
Bruce	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK PARK	IL	60304
Heidi	Tiihonen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	O FALLON	MO	63366

Aaron	Stiteler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98023
Chris	Murillo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60609
Kevin	Lynch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLIFTON PARK	NY	12065

Rev Dr R J	Mickelson, Jr . DD, T	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55123
Ray	Toth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DES PLAINES	IL	60016
P	Black	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RALEIGH	NC	27602

Patrice	Thompson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRICK	NJ	8723
Yvonne	Galipo	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTICELLO	KY	42633
Randy	Simmons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTONMENT	FL	32533

Jason	Vallade	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	MI	48161
P	Delancey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENOSHA	WI	53143
Lora	Bailey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	CO	80027

Olga	Gonzalez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIALEAH	FL	33012
Marlene	North	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DIXON	CA	95620
Chris	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33308

Sallie	Kosefeski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33705
Brian	Wilcox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLIERS	WV	26035
steph	metichecchia	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23455

Gladys	Cruz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LANCASTER	PA	17602
Beth	Schultz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRENTON	NJ	8610
J	Winger	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55416

CLIFFORD	LUCKADOO	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELBY	NC	28150
brandy	gilmore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	METAIRIE	LA	70005
Steven	Shuman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIETTA	OH	45750

Lenny	Grossman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARLEYSVILLE	PA	19438
Tamara	Chapman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HASTINGS	MN	55033
Randy	Spurlock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	OH	45042

Darlene	Luna	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLAREMONT	CA	91711
Howard	Willsie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43604
Alvaro	Marron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77089

Frank	Mccloskey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEDGEWOOD	NJ	7852
Kathi	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VENTURA	CA	93003
Edith	Cardinal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	1246

Dorothy	Birch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KEW GARDENS	NY	11415
Dawn	Bein-Rivera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMELIA COURT HC	VA	23002
Carolyn	LaBarbera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTSVILLE	TX	77320

Daniel	Burris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YUMA	AZ	85364
Heather	Paige	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAGUNA NIGUEL	CA	92677

Donna	Bogren	My 67 year old friend, living on about $15,000/ year in SS, pays more than $70/ month for cable TV (no internet, phone, or other services). That\'s $840+ a year to watch basic TV without many options. He does not subscribe to movie or sports channels, so that\'s quite a high cost for not much worth viewing. His rate went up more than $20/ month not long after he first got the service. This is why I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. Monopolies hurt competition, limit consumer choice, and boost cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHEVILLE	NC	28804
Edward	Wolfe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPOKANE	WA	99212

Derrick	Smart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGHLAND PARK	MI	48203
Daniel	Reschke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA	IL	61614
Donna	Gasbarro	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLETON	WI	54914

Kim	Hartell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITE RIVER JUNC	VT	5001
Gina	Beisel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOALSBURG	PA	16827
M	Kilburn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONCORD	NH	3301

Sherri	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EATON	OH	45320
Tyeast	Pettit	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRUITLAND	MD	21826
Christina	Law	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	TX	78741

Amy	Dever	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KNOXVILLE	TN	37938
Aldine	Banks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19126
William	La Rock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10023

Keith	Keller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMILTON	IL	62341
Jenniffer	Diroche	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10458
Frank	Kerr	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	FL	34113

Valerie	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38128
Samantha	George	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JEFFERSONVILLE	IN	47130
Debbie	Gambino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEDRICKTOWN	NJ	8067

Alexis	Doberstein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKLIN	WI	53132
Doug	Gray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENGLEWOOD	CO	80113
randy	kennell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WELLERSBURG	PA	15564

Carey	Gerdes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA	KS	67218
Paulette	McGill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80209
Karla	Stranger	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WAYNE	IN	46805

Amanda	Handy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERTOWN	NY	13603
Crystal	Yanzer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. I can\'t afford cable. Free tv and netflix entertain me Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOSHEN	IN	46528
Todd	Jacobson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUNDELEIN	IL	60060

William	Howe-Hughes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	1570
Toni	Smalley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON BEA	CA	92647
Deborah	Daniels	What happened to the anti-trust law, the Sherman Act? I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATON ROUGE	LA	70816

Michelle	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROUND ROCK	TX	78664
Bret	Keeney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOODSTOCK	GA	30188
Robert	Hook	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLUSHING	MI	48433

Susannah	Gelbart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89149
Julia	Hornsby	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALRICO	FL	33594
HOLLY	DOWNS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VICTORVILLE	CA	92395

Jody	Seaman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MERRILL	MI	48637
Zachary	Dunne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASSILLON	OH	44646
Lindy	Metz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STOW	OH	44224

Meg	Stein	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIGHTWOOD	OR	97011
Scott	Powers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAYMOND	ME	4071
Sue	Wagner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40258

Karen	Mullin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKLIN	MA	2038
Douglas	Farone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEMOUNT	MN	55068
LeChonne	Wright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL CAJON	CA	92020

MICHAEL	DALIEGE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TINLEY PARK	IL	60477
Douglas	Garner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FINDLAY	OH	45840
Gina	Pantier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98003

Ina	Martinez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	113
Kim	Conner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BIDDEFORD	ME	4005
Berta	Harris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEITCHFIELD	KY	42754

Armida	Ruth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	90704
Donna	Wright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHILDERSBURG	AL	35044
Rob	Stamper	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTON	WV	26452

Ronny	ferraiuolo jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERO BEACH	FL	32962
Tyler	Zipperer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANITOWOC	WI	54220
Julia	Gardner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UNIVERSITY PARK	IL	60484

Madeline	Mulligan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOSHEN	NY	10924
Lori	Shorter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOLINE	IL	61265
Sara	Sturz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BISBEE	AZ	85603

J. Keith	Brown, Esq.	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARLAND	TX	75040
braxton	Tate	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JERSEY CITY	NJ	7305
M	Chu	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLSBOROUGH	NJ	8844

Eric	Mintz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANDVIEW	MO	64030
Tom	Baeshore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT SAINT LUCIE	FL	34983
AndrÃ¡s	Nagy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DANIA	FL	33004

Shari	Miller	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALLEJO	CA	94590
Nancy	Clingman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	MN	55912
Russell	Therrien	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOLLYWOOD	MD	20636

Dan	Helfer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FINDLAY	OH	45840
Denise	Wantland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97212
Paul	Hood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98146

Dan	Helfer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FINDLAY	OH	45840
Laurie	Lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	89403
Alycia	Coyke	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORPUS CHRISTI	TX	78410

Roberta	Cerra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18509
Ashley	Rodulson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROMULUS	MI	48174
Darrell	Sisk	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ESTILL SPRINGS	TN	37330

Karen	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53217
Gloria	Costanza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PELHAM	NY	10803
Lisa	Alexander	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30354

Eeic	Meier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST WARWICK	RI	2893
Philip	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TORRINGTON	CT	6790
Randolph	Decker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	85716

alanna	savage-west	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARIBAULT	MN	55021
Laura	Pierson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCK ISLAND	IL	61201
Jonathan	faria	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRISTOL	RI	2809

Marcia	Trella	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMBURG	NY	14075
Renee	Vallier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	68005
Joyce	Michael	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OWINGS MILLS	MD	21117

Kim	Herbert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTSVILLE	AL	35803
sylvia	finley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77090
Daniel	Lybarger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAPHNE	AL	36526

Ann	Muehlberger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32825
Sandra	Campbell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATERFORD	WI	53185
William	Valiante	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19118

Laura Anne	Hess	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUSSELL	KS	67665
Orlando	Melendez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11217
Neil	Parpart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOISE	ID	83716

Diane	Lapine	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLOUCESTER	MA	1930
Robert	Broussard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE CHARLES	LA	70605
Jami	Thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHOUGAL	WA	98671

Tambara	Nalle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINCHESTER	KY	40391
Therisa	Rydell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLYMPIA	WA	98507
Catherine	Frye	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUREKA	CA	95501

William	Peterson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60640
peter	kraft	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST MILFORD	NJ	7480
Tracey	Fowler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANON CITY	CO	81212

Christopher	Paul	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WORCESTER	MA	1607
Andrew	Lund	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60622
Anthony	Raygor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOLIET	IL	60436

Samantha	Simone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BRANCH	NJ	7740
Stephen	Barlow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLATHE	CO	81425
Mike	McQuiston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LACEYS SPRING	AL	35754

Theresa	Freund	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. I have one television and the internet. No premium channels. My monthly bill is $160.83. Way too much. Please work on fixing this.	#N/A	#N/A	52597
Chris	Eldridge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONE TREE	CO	80124

Debbie	Peckham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEMBROKE	MA	2359
JAMES	DROUNETTE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLINGHAM	WA	98225
Keith	Fountain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ADRIAN	MI	49221

Emmette	Salyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45414
Celia	Donofrio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOMS RIVER	NJ	8757
Megan	Gibbs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79924

Ellen	Canterbury	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DALEVILLE	AL	36322
Lois	Yatzeck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TACOMA	WA	98446
KENDRICK	KEETON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS CRUCES	NM	88012

Brandon	Smtih	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UTICA	NY	13502
Kimberly	Trierweiler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRAVERSE CITY	MI	49686
James	Hartman	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CASTLE ROCK	CO	80108

Robert	Flirt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PANAMA CITY	FL	32404
Heather	Carley	I\'m tired of paying 175.00 a month. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWPORT	NH	3773
thomas	winters	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS LUNAS	NM	87031

Debi	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT AIRY	MD	21771
Kelly	Wright	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEYTON	CO	80831
Cherie	Capaci	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	NY	10950

kris	branch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	NH	3766
Nigelle	Hatch	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK PARK	MI	48237
Tyrone	McKay	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAVELAND	MS	39576

Karen	Anthony	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANSFIELD	TX	76063
Angela	Destiny	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALTIMORE	MD	21239
Illie	pots	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNTAIN HOME	AR	72653

Holliday	Cullimore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALLEJO	CA	94591
Maria	Yanis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHITTIER	CA	90604
Felecia	Arrington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAVENNA	OH	44266

KEVIN	THOMAS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. CABLE COMPANY NEED TO BE REGULATED LIKE A UTILITY LIKE PG&E, SMUD ETC...	SACRAMENTO	CA	95825
Greg	Loux	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43223

Craig	Garehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRAND RAPIDS	MI	49505
Alexi	Price	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KELLER	TX	76244
William	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINCHESTER	VA	22601

William	Cabrera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11237
Rebecca	Cervantes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAYMONDVILLE	TX	78580
Betsy	Mailler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTAGUE	MA	1351

Illie	Pots	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Internet and wifi prices through these cable companies. Sunddenlink is charging 200.00 plus a month for cable and wifi. How are middle class people suppose to pay that? Please get the monoply out now.	MOUNTAIN HOME	AR	72653
Nancy	Pratt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97224

Donna	Wynn-Mason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Here in Upstate, N.Y., you can not even watch TV without paying for cable! Not even the free Broadcast channels that has been free for my entire life in the five Boros of New York. As a disabled person now living in Upstate, N.Y, I cannot even afford to pay for cable so I haven\'t been able to watch TV in years!! A basic right for news and current events my entire life until my accident required me to move to a more affordable area. And still for the first time in my life, because my only income is SSI now, I can\'t even afford to watch TV.	NEWBURGH	NY	12550
Maneesh	Pangasa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YUMA	AZ	85365

Furman	Goff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98661
Randy	Colle	I feel these companys are just taking advantage of us. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILLVILLE	NJ	8332
J.	Rutledge	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCKER	GA	30084

Karen	Purselley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANBURY	TX	76048
Matthew	Melin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92109
Kelly	Mekos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAFAYETTE	IN	47905

Anne	Absalom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GERMANTOWN	MD	20874
Patricia	Bailey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76105
Luis	Plata	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DELANO	CA	93215

Cathy	Willott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. And not just cable boxes, but remotes as well. I get charged $8/mo for each remote in my home. That\'s $96/yr per device. It\'s unconscionable! Consumers need the option to purchase devices commercially that are compatible across all delivery platforms - cable, satellite, streaming.	THOUSAND OAKS	CA	91360
Angela	Kenney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BINGHAMTON	NY	13903

David	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAK HARBOR	WA	98277
Terralyne	Montgomery	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGHLAND FALLS	NY	10928
Irene	Sprinkle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDERSON	SC	29625

Todd	Cason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMARILLO	TX	79109
Janis	Salcfas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE HUGHES	CA	93532
Bruce	DeGrado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	98017

anyhony	adams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONWAY	SC	29526
sarita	Khan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTGOMERY CE	VT	5471
Lonnie	Sexton	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TERRACE PARK	OH	45174

Tammy	Clary	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64118
Shanon	Kreicar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLIAMSBURG	VA	23188
MARILYN	WAYTE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WICHITA FALLS	TX	76301

Nicole	Kirkwood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT LAUREL	NJ	8054
Jennifer	Graham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT MYERS	FL	33919
James	McKee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUMMERVILLE	SC	29485

Chantel	Weber	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TROY	MO	63379
Sara	Goyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HALTOM CITY	TX	76117
Therese	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW HAVEN	CT	6515

Karen	Ivie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELLEVUE	KY	41073
Jean	Golden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COOKSTOWN	NJ	8511
Ryan	Zim	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALGONQUIN	IL	60102

Erica	Brunson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	MS	39204
Mike	Alexander	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DEKALB	IL	60115
John	Wethington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLORENCE	KY	41042

Hazel	Luckey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELIZABETH	NJ	7201
Marybeth	Radcliff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HATBORO	PA	19040
Dana	Timms	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92102

Mykal	Browne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTICELLO	IN	47960
Eileen	Probus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COPPERAS COVE	TX	76522
Marcie	Perskin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLUSHING	NY	11358

Ronald P.	Recasner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STUDIO CITY	CA	91604
Tanya	Lader	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORTLAND	NY	13045
Caitlin	Kempski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DURHAM	NC	27703

Barbara	Bingham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77004
Ray	Santiago	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINDSOR	CT	6095
Kyner	Thorne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATON ROUGE	LA	70806

Katie	Renn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FARRELL	PA	16121
Frances	Ballou-Horner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85711
Theresa	Kondziolka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAVAGE	MN	55378

Jean	Sunell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABINGDON	MD	21009
Tanya	Gonzalez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WINDSOR	CT	6095
Susan	Lamy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARVEST	AL	35749

Anthony	Camma	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45241
Velinzo	Royall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OVERLAND PARK	KS	66223
Stephanie	Derossett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40514

Susan	Reedman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAKE FOREST	NC	27587
Bruce	Rosenblum	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH AMBOY	NJ	8879
Lorraine	Farrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST GREENWICH	RI	2818

Lissa	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOISE	ID	83706
Wendy	Ridenour	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MORGANTOWN	WV	26505
Mary	Shirakawa	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	32928

Michael	Crozier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JUNCTION CITY	KS	66441
John	Mullins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHERERVILLE	IN	46375
Brandy	Sexton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOWLER	OH	44418

Chris	kooiker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	SD	57042
Janice	Daycock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33314
Adriana	Picasso	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STERLING	VA	20165

Ann Marie	Baty	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASTIC	NY	11950
Angelina	Singbiel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MERRITT ISLAND	FL	32953
Elise	Hines	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RALEIGH	NC	27617

Joy	Riggins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOLIVAR	MO	65613
Peggy	Harrow	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANON CITY	CO	81212
Irene	Micer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RUTHER GLEN	VA	22546

Erika	Thayer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLUE RIVER	WI	53518
Brenda	MacInnes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FROSTPROOF	FL	33843
Derrick	Lawrence	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAPEER	MI	48446

Tanya	Peterson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BARNUM	MN	55707
catherine	hennessey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVERETT	MA	2149
Jeremiah	Shafer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OMAHA	NE	68102

Dorene	Gray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WATHENA	KS	66090
Chryssie	Medellin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43609
Karen	Frye	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43230

Jeff	Rushin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHILLICOTHE	IL	61523
Diane	Hunker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENSBURG	PA	15601
Linda	McKiernan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHENECTADY	NY	12304

Tina	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANAB	UT	84741
Shelley	Cramer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EASTON	PA	18042
John	Jackson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIO RANCHO	NM	87124

Anna	Shannon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOONE	IA	50036
John	Martin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHLAND	MS	39218
lesa	richards	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PARKERSBURG	WV	26101

Mary	McCullough	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ZELIENOPLE	PA	16063
Don	Hogan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEDFORD	OR	97501
Pierre	Pacitti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUDSON	FL	34669

Carmel	Obrien	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGH BRIDGE	NJ	8829
KEN	GELORMINI	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	NH	3079
Morgan	Terry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOERNE	TX	78006

Colette	Pollard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30328
Joe	Bonafede	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOMS RIVER	NJ	8753
Aj	Aj	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOSTON	MA	2116

lexine	darden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STOW	OH	44224
carol	ehrle lopatin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN MATEO	CA	94403
Teresa	Fraser	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLD BRIDGE	NJ	8857

William	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SMYRNA	TN	37167
Bob	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAYONNE	NJ	7002
Jim	Stahl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADISON	WI	53705

Stephanie	Hartmayer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHELTON	CT	6484
Louise	gross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDWAY PARK	NC	28544
Judy	Murphy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST CHESTER	OH	45069

Brendan	Byers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YOUNGSTOWN	OH	44512

Patricia	Walker	It\'s sad that our country is still a comfortable nest to monopolies when we\'ve taken so many steps and passed laws to prevent this. As a country that prides itself on the opportunities of small business and start-up companies, we are not taking the steps to ensure that the technological aspect of this market is a fair playing ground. This needs to be reigned in and stopped. The American people are asking for government intervention, which is a rarity, and this beseech spans the political spectrum. The FCC is the last stopping point for these monopolies, and the people want our government to protect us from lack of competition and therefore lack of financial choice. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GULFPORT	MS	39501

Roseann	mueller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST GREENBUSH	NY	12061
Marieka	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	SC	29073
June	Alexandra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSLINDALE	MA	2131

Dwight	Bain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIMFOREST	CA	92378
Dawn	Brand	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSONVILLE	FL	32244
John	Armstrong	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YONKERS	NY	10705

Ben	Owen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYRACUSE	NY	13208
Ann	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAUSAU	WI	54401
justin	kerbo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIBERAL	KS	67901

Ronnie	Williams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANITEVILLE	SC	29829
Michelle	McMullen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THOUSAND OAKS	CA	91362
steven	kendall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDERSON	IN	46012

Mauricio	Torralva	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LONG BRANCH	NJ	7740
ERIKA	JONES	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89121
Brad	Hutchison	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46236

Jim	Coverdell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUGENE	OR	97401
Donna	Warnick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YORK	PA	17406
Patrick	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRISTOL	PA	19007

tammy	masiker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAMPTON	IA	50441
Don	Terrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARRERO	LA	70072
Andy	Gartenlaub	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HENDERSON	NV	89052

Robert	Grajiola	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RANCHO MIRAGE	CA	92270
Rachel	Yeager	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRESHAM	OR	97030
Veronica	Thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARVADA	CO	80003

Vicki	Chamdlet	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORANGE	CA	92869
Donna	Malerba	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SMITHTOWN	NY	11787
Susan	Bennett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST MEADOW	NY	11554

Andrew	Storey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APOPKA	FL	32703
Autumn	Baker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVANSVILLE	IN	47714
Richard	Huntsberry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Satellite providers as well!	BRIDGEPORT	WA	98813

Ginger	Flippo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANGLETON	TX	77515
gabriel	parker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANDVILLE	MI	49418
Debra	Wheelock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VISTA	CA	92081

Ron	Nebeker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENT	WA	98031
reynolds	hedland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HALLANDALE	FL	33009
sheila	Collins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANADA	KY	41519

shirley	zarnick	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUTLER	PA	16002
Larry C	Overton Jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COHUTTA	GA	30710
Kenneth	Dawson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RANCHO CUCAMO	CA	91739

anne	hennessey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EVERETT	MA	2149
Bettina	Canham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GILBERT	AZ	85234
James A	Kyte Jr	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOHNSON CITY	TN	37601

Doris	Sullivan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST SETAUKET	NY	11733
Susan	Lancaster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77041
Christopher	conser	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LIVERMORE	CA	94550

Erica	Wells	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRUNSWICK	GA	31525
Michael	Diamond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45414
kathy	fields	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSPORT	TN	37660

Diane	Kupelian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BETHESDA	MD	20814
Brenda	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CARBONDALE	IL	62901
Diane	Hounschell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KNOXVILLE	TN	37921

Jessica	Hott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KEARNEY	MO	64060
Michele	Hood	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TALLAHASSEE	FL	32308
Mark	Sturdivant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46202

michelle	newell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO HEIGHTS	IL	60411
Craig	Zappardino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPARROWS POINT	MD	21219
Marie	Kandler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYWARD	CA	94545

Vicki	Osborne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRANDON	FL	33510
Debra	Choquette	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	CT	6249
Randal	Lester	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COVINGTON	GA	30016

Karen	Huff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53210
Mike	McDevitt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	19701
Andrew	North	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSTON	NY	12401

Johnny	Price	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESTERTON	IN	46304
Mark	Lawarre	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FINDLAY	OH	45840
kristin	house	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	NY	13021

Chris	Larson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60625
amy	milbourn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PAPILLION	NE	68046
Michael	Barrows	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TONAWANDA	NY	14150

Brent	Scott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOS ANGELES	CA	90066
Kenneth	Lekach	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOULDER	CO	80303
Richard	Mondesir	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALTIMORE	MD	21218

gina	castellano	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33713
Deborah	Garman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	MI	48187
Keith	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DECATUR	GA	30034

Lena	Campbell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40511
Olin	Rogers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMDALE	CA	93550
angie	Romero	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDLAND CITY	AL	36350

Cynthia	Green	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UTICA	NY	13502
Susan	Inman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELK RAPIDS	MI	49629
joyce	blackmon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TWIN FALLS	ID	83301

Mitchell	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BELTON	MO	64012
Eileen	DeVuyst	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEMENTON	NJ	8021
Lauren	Mueller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UPLAND	CA	91786

Jones	Cunningham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLYMPIA	WA	98501
Don	Hudgins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	OR	97301
Agni	Fejzulai	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHESHIRE	CT	6410

Julie	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEICESTER	NC	28748
Billie	Graves	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAN	OK	73071
Sharon	Garlena	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREDERICK	MD	21703

Chris	Taylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEICESTER	NC	28748
Evangelina	Joyce	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GETTYSBURG	PA	17325
Alex	Kniola	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALPARAISO	IN	46385

Mike	Boyd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. We need some basic cable for reasonable prices under $50.00 instead of tiers.	PEPPERELL	MA	1463
Matthew	Herzog	Hey! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH READING	MA	1864
Tim	Rodriguez	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PERRYSBURG	OH	43551

Loretta	Mccullough	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CONYERS	GA	30094
Patricia	Salinas	I pay way way to much for cable. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60632
Alexander	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH ELGIN	IL	60177 jon	simonian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOULSBYVILLE	CA	95372

Tim	Hutchinson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEWISTON	ID	83501
Dee	Kraus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53228

Michelle	Mathews	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85705
Tim	Beck	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15215
Craig	Hanning	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROVIDENCE	RI	2903

Paul	Carlisle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KELLER	TX	76248
Catherine	Back	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRAINTREE	MA	2184

Una	Littlelight	I\'ve had to use comcast but just for regular channel\'s it keeps going up and i just have same channel\'s don\'t know why it\'s going up when it\'s just the same things i startef with?I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENT	WA	98032
Jeremy	Lundquist	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAU CLAIRE	WI	54701

Dennis	Woodard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT ANNE	IL	60964
JuliaAnne	Whitney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA BARBARA	CA	93108
Aaron	Jackson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARLAND	TX	75044

Deborah	Guthrie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KITZMILLER	MD	21538
Philip	Poli	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH LAS VEGAS	NV	89031
Deborah	Geno	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERS	MO	63376

Ronald	Beamer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48219
John	Connor	PleaseI #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STRATFORD	NJ	8084
Angela	Jankie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRONX	NY	10467

Miranda	Wolters	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOOSE CREEK	SC	29445
Teresa	Appleton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ARDMORE	OK	73401
Leslie	T	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLAYTON	CA	94517

peter	schram	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WOONSOCKET	RI	2895
Norris	Edney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLINTON	MS	39056
Juana	Mason	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	UNION CITY	NJ	7087

Marianne	Gerlang	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CENTEREACH	NY	11720
Patricia	Wilgus	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPENCERVILLE	OH	45887
Jose	Ramos-Granado	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85014

Jennifer	Bailey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAVENPORT	IA	52804
Stephanie	Oladell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVERVIEW	FL	33579
Stacey	Allard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATTLE CREEK	MI	49015

Patricia	Toher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	13366
Sharon	Vomhof	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55422
Moises	Chavez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FREDERICKSBURG	VA	22408

Wendy	King	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76114
Anne	O\'Brien	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Your job is to protect the public\'s interest in instances like this. Do your job.	HOBOKEN	NJ	7030

Mary	Meadows	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	NC	28403
Jeff	Loudon	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NOLENSVILLE	TN	37135
Candace	Laws	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OCALA	FL	34470

Marc	Rubin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	8690
maty	krise	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLEVELAND	OH	44113
Cecilia	Nielsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COCOA	FL	32926

Gayle	Whatcott	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RANCHO SANTA M	CA	92688
Nicholas	Marston	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN JOSE	CA	95112
Marlowe	Primack	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNTAIN VIEW	CA	94040

Kathi	Brown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STREAMWOOD	IL	60107
John	Glisar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN LORENZO	CA	94580
Everett	Delph	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHINGTON	DC	20020

Donna	Gibson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MENOMONIE	WI	54751
Beverly	Ross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77088
Summer	Diggins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85730

Rick	Riegel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH ROYALTON	OH	44133
Nanette	Tankersley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOT SPRINGS NAT	AR	71901
Victoria	Meissner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERO BEACH	FL	32960

Tara	Tabatabaie	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKLAHOMA CITY	OK	73162
JARRETT	ETTISON	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PITTSBURGH	PA	15206
Lisa	De Witt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEND	OR	97701

Georgina	Raygoza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALMDALE	CA	93552
Susan	Romero	I haven\'t been able to watch the regular stations for over five years. Only because I use an antenna. Since DHTV came into being I can\'t get any stations unless I get cable which I can\'t afford. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ESPANOLA	NM	87532

michael	centini	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASURY	OH	44438
Jonathan	Auerbach	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRFIELD	CT	6824
Vallon	Skyles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREAT LAKES	IL	60088

Mark	Mitera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RED OAK	IA	51566
lynne	sanders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW BETHLEHEM	PA	16242
Anthony	Lattanzio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19152

William	Chesebro	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ONEIDA	NY	13421
Eric	Sussman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOMERS	NY	10589
Pablo	Aguilar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUREKA	CA	95501

Laura	Neiman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10034
Will	Friar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUREKA	CA	95501
Eddie	Byrd	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKLIN	OH	45005

Mechelle	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE PARK	GA	31636
Joe	Ochental	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RINGWOOD	NJ	7456
Jen	Naylor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEL AIR	MD	21014

Peter	Nigliaccio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOFFMAN ESTATES	IL	60169
Gonzalo	MontaÃ±o	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUPERIOR	AZ	85173
John	Strager	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OLYMPIA	WA	98506

Rob	Garner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37217
James	Howe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM COAST	FL	32164
Diane	Malkowicz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PETOSKEY	MI	49770

Karen	Stephens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98103
Diana	Utley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BATON ROUGE	LA	70816
Lori	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HELENA	AL	35080

Jeffrey	Jenne	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19144
Thomas	Kaye	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLASSBORO	NJ	8028
Ryan	Romeo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85037

Alisa	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	37355
Danuta	Kosek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSELLE	IL	60172
Edward	Spero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAPPY VALLEY	OR	97086

Sherry	Schepp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HICKORY	NC	28601
KAREN	Steven	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies, in California cable bills have caused me personally to stop watching any tv altogether. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THOUSAND OAKS	CA	91360

Shasta	Rose	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING	TX	77380
Amy	Szmania	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43230
Luis	Santana	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST ORANGE	NJ	7017

Marni	Becerra	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	NJ	8527
Kathy	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	43912
Janis	Tilton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NASHVILLE	TN	37206

Lynn and Kim	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	48197
Dalton	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIDGEPORT	OH	43912
James	Gibbon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BAYONNE	NJ	7002

Mariah	Cruz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JACKSON	NJ	8527
chad	Headley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THOMASVILLE	GA	31792
Corinne	Liegel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAU CLAIRE	WI	54701

Matt	Neu	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLEASANTON	CA	94566
Cynthia	Cabero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KAHULUI	HI	96732
Judith	Allen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SARASOTA	FL	34243

David	Bowman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	MO	64057
Sadie	Ordes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANDEVILLE	LA	70471
Dawn	Church	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KILL DEVIL HILLS	NC	27948

Suzanne	Ballard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUSTIN	MN	55912
Jesse	Shafer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREER	SC	29650
Kathy	Bilski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROLLING MEADOW	IL	60008

Mary	Clark	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GARNET VALLEY	PA	19060
katherine	davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUJUNGA	CA	91042
Oilda	Rubio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33175

Russell	Roberts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLSBORO	OR	97124
john	wolf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASON CITY	IA	50401
Paul	Komchai	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS VEGAS	NV	89129

Denise	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LINDEN	MI	48451
manfred	schmidt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEWTOWN	CT	6470
Lisa	Smart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTHAMPTON	NY	11968

Karen	Richardson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGH ISLAND	TX	77623
Melissa	Malonson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOWELL	MA	1850
Mary	Colley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TAZEWELL	VA	24651

Susan	Makowdki	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ERIE	PA	16511
Patricia	Hilton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	38810
Deborah	Parrish-Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NY	14623

Ed	Farrell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33351
Bryon	Seibold	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT CLINTON	OH	43452
Lorena	Rojas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HICKORY	NC	28602

sylvia	cruz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10039
Annie	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILTON	FL	32583
Mark	Peterson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38104

Lisa	Barnett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGDALE	AR	72762
Jean	Haefner	I want Wisconsin programming through my satellite. I live in Northwestern Wisconsin and both Dish an Direct TV claim they have no control over the programming and to talk to the FCC. You guys claim they can change the programming. It\'s a shell game that you could stop.	MENOMONIE	WI	54751
Danny	Rosario	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78240

RC	Polan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LADY LAKE	FL	32158
Michael	Pflieger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCHENRY	IL	60050
thomas	ray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	JOHNSON CITY	TN	37604

sandra	cormier	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WAREHAM	MA	2571
Anita	Zahniser	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MUSCATINE	IA	52761
Nathaniel	Morris	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLINT	MI	48504

Shane	McAndrew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PROSPECT PARK	PA	19076
Wavie	Proctor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40204
Roberto	Magana	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COS COB	CT	6807

Merica	Chilstrom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORANGE PARK	FL	32073
John	Willis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASTORIA	OR	97103
George	Matias	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH ORANGE	NJ	7079

Hilda	Callahan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLOOMSDALE	MO	63627
John	Kinlock	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	43313
Ashley	Ozbun	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PARMA	MO	63870

Yvette	Guarracino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTWOOD	NJ	7675
Charles	Macarthy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOWIE	MD	20715
Matthew	Carter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARIETTA	GA	30064

Patricia	Koehler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STEINHATCHEE	FL	32359
Dale	Silva	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37130
Tanya	Moon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FOUNTAIN VALLEY	CA	92708

Usvaldo	DeLeon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85711
Keith	Gray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45415
Norma	Galvan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DETROIT	MI	48210

angela	STAGGE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45236
Paul	Cervantes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77023
Brenda	Sosa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEL AIR	MD	21015

Snezana	Ognjanovic	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53207
Terry	Storey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLINT	MI	48503
Gerald	Leb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STOW	OH	44224

MIKE	Manoogian	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VAN NUYS	CA	91405
Bonnie	Rowley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33707
Deirdre	O\'Donnell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVERTON	OR	97008

William	Martinez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LA HABRA	CA	90631
Shawn	Simmons	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCKPORT	TX	78382
Glenda	Hernandez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OTTAWA	IL	61350

Carol	Ruth	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FAIRFAX	VA	22032
Nancy	Olden	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLLEGE STATION	TX	77845
Mark	McCormick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76131

Charles	Howlett	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BERNARDSVILLE	NJ	7924
Shelley	Cole	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROSEVILLE	MI	48066
Marden	Umanzor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DURHAM	NC	27704

Melissa	Rajcevich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINNEAPOLIS	MN	55410
Justin	Frick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. This also goes hand in hand with Net neutrality. Cable companies have held monopolies for years, and will push further for more control should we let them. Please, I urge you to rule on this matter fairly. Support a diverse market where innovation can once again push the boundaries and lead to the development of new practices and technologies. It may seem a small and insignificant step, forcing cable companies to unlock their boxes and give a portion of their monopoly up, but a start has to come from somewhere.	WESTMINSTER	MD	21157

Tim	Ritter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUSCUMBIA	AL	35674
Bonnie	Wilson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TERRE HAUTE	IN	47803
David	Cervantes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TUCSON	AZ	85706

Roberta	Rich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33312
Veronica	Williams	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORFOLK	VA	23503
Susan	Bolas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PEORIA	AZ	85382

Ray	Spellerberg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILTON HEAD ISLA	SC	29928
Leana	Sitton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLOVIS	CA	93612
Isabel	Strzepka	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM BEACH GARI	FL	33410

Kimberly	Shaw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MURFREESBORO	TN	37129
Daniel	Matlick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AMES	IA	50010
william	brault	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RAY CITY	GA	31645

Russell	Ricard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLORADO SPRIN(	CO	80916
Stewart	Akens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLE VALLEY	CA	92308
Joseph	Orcutt	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SUN VALLEY	CA	91352

Judith	Medina	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCHESTER	NY	14621
laura	Hartwick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FALLS CHURCH	VA	22046
Sam	S.	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COTTAGE GROVE	OR	97424

Benesa	Riggans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TALLADEGA	AL	35160
Tony	Gangemi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MAGNOLIA	DE	19962
Nancy	Warner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAS CRUCES	NM	88011

Dan	Leiker	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80229
Louise	Webb	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45429
kathleen	vick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23455

john	marotta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85031
Sally	Palmer	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLINT	MI	48503
elaine	Bartholomew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE CITY	MI	49651

Elizabeth	Caralyus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW CUMBERLAN	PA	17070
elaine	Bartholomew	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE CITY	MI	49651
Virginia	Cheney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATKINSON	NH	3811

Dianne	Chapman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VILLE PLATTE	LA	70586
Martin	Turner	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLINT	MI	48504
Hal	Grant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROGERS	AR	72758

Juliette	Sterkens	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSHKOSH	WI	54904
Debbie	Mcclish	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELYRIA	OH	44035
Kim	Barnes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64138

Bryan	Sissel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OTTUMWA	IA	52501
Kristine	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ULM	MN	56073
Mary	Temple	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTGOMERY CE	VT	5471

William	Francis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45248
Dion	Tillmon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60626
Scotty	Newsom	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HIGH POINT	NC	27265

Kinsey	Geddes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELYRIA	OH	44035 barbara	ombui	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RIVER FALLS	WI	54022
Jason	Gehl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW ULM	MN	56073

Margaret	Kremer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80223
Julee	Pate	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON BEA	CA	92648
Gina	Boyer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RINGGOLD	GA	30736

Deb	Crawford	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINGO JUNCTION	OH	43938
j	McClain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOCA RATON	FL	33434
j	McClain	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOCA RATON	FL	33434

Heather	Ruhnke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CREST HILL	IL	60403
allen	menietti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREESE	IL	62230
wolf	hietzke	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SANTA BARBARA	CA	93103

Zila	Collazo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW YORK	NY	10039
Gia	Preziosi	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST WEYMOUTH	MA	2189
Nancy	Nolan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GRANITE FALLS	NC	28630

Vonda	Ballenger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREER	SC	29651
Jennifer	Franzman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40517
Adam	Kempen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALLWIN	MO	63021

Lesley	Cotten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32810
Scott	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENSBORO	NC	27407
Laura	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLANO	TX	75024

Laurie	Krebsbach	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KIEL	WI	53042
Shannon	Curtis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORTONVILLE	MI	48462
Thomas	Contreras	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAHIRA	GA	31632

Heather	Vance	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HATTIESBURG	MS	39401
Troy	Filas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAKE ELMO	MN	55042
Cynthia	Sanders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76148

doug	marshal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALPARAISO	IN	46385
Donielle	Hasty	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASBURY PARK	NJ	7712
Jesse	Esqueda	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97223

Rhonda	komchai	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH LAS VEGAS	NV	89084
Brenda	Sizemore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUDSON	KY	40145
Linda	Diffey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	75455

Urbano	Villa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78242
Erik	Lee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box. Would like to see minorities own some of the cable Like do not merge Time Warner with Charter Comm. This would be unfair practice, Mr. Allen would make a great owner....	JEFFERSONVILLE	IN	47130

Shannon	Holmes	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTSVILLE	AL	35810
Rosalynn	Swinney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHREVEPORT	LA	71106
Barbara	Prahl	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COOS BAY	OR	97420

Deb	Smee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GROTON	CT	6340
M.Ray	Bradshaw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST POINT	VA	23181
DeAngelo	Turner	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45426

Joshua	Fox	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GILBERT	AZ	85234
jessica	rivera	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMDEN	NJ	8103
Laqunda	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANNING	SC	29102

Patricia	Petersen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANOGA PARK	CA	91304
Brian	Topping	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SACKETS HARBOR	NY	13685
Elizabeth	Dixon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BREWSTER	MA	2631

william	foster	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DUNDALK	MD	21222
James	Myers	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNT PLEASANT	SC	29464
Debi	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ASHLAND	MO	65010

Joanne	Wigod	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BALTIMORE	MD	21209
Diane	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATHENS	AL	35614
Michele	Quint	I have to pay for cable service and I have to pay to rent equipment to watch my cable subscription on each television in my home. I pay for many channels I don\'t have any intention of watching. I can\'t afford premium channels because I pay for equipment rental fees of $240 a year. My rental fees increase. The taxes increase. I want to be able to see the shows I want without a cable box. Just like I used to. Pay for the service - why am I paying rental fees for the converter? I should be able to buy my own if I want to, just like I can by my modem.	HOBE SOUND	FL	33475

Dee	Ryan	Outrageous!!!! I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CINCINNATI	OH	45209
Helen	Bell	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FLETCHER	NC	28732
Chrisanne	Kenny	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAPLES	FL	34117

Christine	DeBerry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRIDGEPORT	CT	6606
Daniel	Johnson	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	KY	41051
Nancy	LaCrosse	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAWRENCE	KS	66046

William	Round	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LAND O LAKES	FL	34639
Danielle	Lutz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRACKENRIDGE	PA	15014
Jeffrey	Stark	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	49464

Anthony	Biondo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19111
jessica	fanor	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BURLINGTON	NC	27217
Amanda	Wells	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LITTLE ROCK	AR	72205

sherise	jefferson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	RICHMOND	VA	23223
Susan	Randall	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSLEY	MI	49649
Michele	Borland	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESLEY CHAPEL	FL	33544

Cynthia	Fruar	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VIRGINIA BEACH	VA	23464
Joseph	Farhat	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARINE CITY	MI	48039
Jason	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SYRACUSE	NY	13206

Mariah	Bradshaw	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEXINGTON	KY	40516
Patrick	Waninger	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MARLTON	NJ	8053
jorge	vilaro	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD GARD	NY	11413

Michelle	Stewart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40219
Lou Ellen	Hogan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	55128
Patricia	Fagan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GROVELAND	FL	34736

Kristy	Woods	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTHPORT	AL	35476
sherry	clipse	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHARON	PA	16146
Leonard	Green	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DANIA	FL	33004

Dan	Daniel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms.Legislation has already been passed requiring cell phone companies to unlock devices so customers aren\'t restricted and its time the cable companies followed suite.... Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	THOMASTON	GA	30286
Shellie	Blevins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44312

Luisa	Leal	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78254
Sheila	Cameron	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DURHAM	NC	27704
Lisa	Griffin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRUNSWICK	OH	44212

Angie	Taggart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKLIN	OH	45005
JODY	SINGER	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUND BEACH	NY	11789
Michael	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30319

Nadine	Gallagher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OKLAHOMA CITY	OK	73135
David	Bois	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OAKLAND	CA	94612
Jamrs	Reardon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HELENA	MT	59602

mari	embreus	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLE VALLEY	CA	92308
Alison	Duncan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	APPLETON	WI	54914
Dave	Stringer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANYON	TX	79015

Tom	Desautel	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EDEN PRAIRIE	MN	55344
Sharon	Jones	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT WORTH	TX	76119
fred	judware	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OSWEGO	NY	13126

Donald	pingleton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT ROBERT	MO	65584
Brett	Kassing	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46237
Austin	Gates	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTA	GA	30309

Heyliken	Ferry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAMP LEJEUNE	NC	28547
BARUSKA	KNIGHT	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OJAI	CA	93023
Dan	Mesa	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HALLANDALE	FL	33009

LISA	DEJOHN	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT HURON	MI	48060
Dale	Flynn	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LEBANON	NH	3766
William	Mullen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUFFALO	NY	14220

ALEX	PERKINS	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT HURON	MI	48060
Brenda	Strunk	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ANDERSON	IN	46016
julie	schoeff	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OXFORD	AL	36203

Sheila j	Love	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DAYTON	OH	45459
Todd	Salomon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MACUNGIE	PA	18062
Alber	Tenpenny	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NEW PORT RICHEY	FL	34652

Robert	Childs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YORK	PA	17408
David	Hunter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALDOSTA	GA	31601

Natasha	Green	I guarantee you most Millenial\'s who live alone do not have cable boxes. Better to have some customers than none-think about it. Business models will have to change. Greed is real even if God probably isn\'t. I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CUTCHOGUE	NY	11935
`John	Yetter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63126

Neal	Burgess	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OXFORD	MI	48371
Anna	Katich	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	METAMORA	MI	48455
Sarah	Reinbolt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AKRON	OH	44321

Norman	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	88166
Dwayne	Duncan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDIANAPOLIS	IN	46234
Charles	Chapman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILMINGTON	NC	28412

Cinnamon	Graham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIX	AZ	85044
Melodee	Koehler	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROWE	NM	87562
sharon	pizarro	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHICAGO	IL	60625

Kay	White	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT NORRIS	NJ	8349
Adrienne	Spires	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SACRAMENTO	CA	95821
Kenn	Creitz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ELIZABETHTOWN	PA	17022

Chris	Myres	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TULSA	OK	74127
caryn	strauss-smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WILLIAMSBURG	VA	23185
Michle	Aviles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MADERA	CA	93637

Robert	Slowik	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUFFALO	NY	14206
Sarah	Kile	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOYCE	LA	71409
wanda	carthy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FRANKFORT	KY	40602

Cindy	Johnson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALEXANDRIA	VA	22315
Karen	Ruff-Noll	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALDOSTA	GA	31602
Dave	Nunez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHAUMBURG	IL	60194

Deidre	Benton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HILLSBORO	OR	97124
Susan	Thrift	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORMAN	OK	73072
James	Murray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98101

Leslie	Chatman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98023
Daneen	Sullivan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	OH	43204
Paul	Sadowski	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER TOV	NJ	8759

Meredith	Toles	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INDEPENDENCE	MO	64050
Robert	Gallardo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVERTON	OR	97008
Brian	Pusczek	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT LOUIS	MO	63125

Susan	Udelhoven	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOSCOBEL	WI	53805
Richard	Franza	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROCK FALLS	IL	61071
Jeffery	Birchfield	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVER	WV	25813

Shanda	Kersten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PUEBLO	CO	81001
Judy	Dick	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTGOMERY	AL	36109
Susan	Ballerin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING VALLEY	IL	61362

Julio	Rodriguez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11216
Leslie	Hill	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANAL WINCHESTE	OH	43110
Ellen	Goss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORTLAND	OR	97202

Jackie	Ruffer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PETERSBUR(	FL	33709
Mike	Mio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCHAUMBURG	IL	60193
Karen	Stelle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALEM	MA	1970

Sharon	Cunningham	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40218
Patricia	Haines	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PORT ORCHARD	WA	98367
Debi	Cook	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANSAS CITY	MO	64114

Luther	West	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST BABYLON	NY	11704
Heidi	Manti	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78217
Sarah	Doyle	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANCHESTER	NH	3103

Delbert	Spencer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANTON	OH	44703
patti	jordan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLEASANT HILL	MO	64080
Daniel	Murray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT CAMPBELL	KY	42223

Stephanie	Rinehart	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WEST FARGO	ND	58078
Kimberley	Thomas	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WASHOUGAL	WA	98671
Nikita	Jones	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38116

Jeff	Wicks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BRADENTON	FL	34207
Becky	France	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MYRTLE CREEK	OR	97457
Robin	Mayes	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENTON	TX	76210

Gary	Moy	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	91335
Sheryll	Silguero	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DYER	IN	46311
April	Burks	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MEMPHIS	TN	38117

Eric	Roberts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	YORKVILLE	IL	60560
THOMAS	RIPPIE	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DYERSBURG	TN	38024
Armando	Provencio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WESTMINSTER	CO	80031

Jeffrey	Rogers	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TRACY	CA	95377
lauren	riley	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH EASTON	MA	2356
cindy	dimaio	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VERO BEACH	FL	32962

Jerry	Carras	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POMPANO BEACH	FL	33066
Heather	Miller	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STAFFORD SPRING	CT	6076

Kimberly	Paradee	I SHOULDNT NEED TO SIGN IN TO A PROVIDER TO WATCH ABC/CBS/nbc or fox TO STREAMLINE FREE TV!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! !!!!!!!!!!!!!I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAINT PAUL	MN	55109
Dawn	Alexander	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	WA	98272

Theresa	Caton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VANCOUVER	WA	98685
Winnie	Gudz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	Missort12
Ann	Pike	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HENDERSON	KY	42420

Terri	Ruder	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KENT	WA	98042
Jorge	Ortiz	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIAMI	FL	33126
Craig	Evans	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ORLANDO	FL	32805

Evelyn	Daniels	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	TOLEDO	OH	43609
Rob	Thibodeau	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LE SUEUR	MN	56058
Curtina	Arbee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHILADELPHIA	PA	19143

D\'Mitri	Clifton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11216
Helen	Gibbs	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	WHEELING	WV	26003
kim	malone	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PALM BEACH GARI	FL	33410

sandra	ruterman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCOTTSBURG	OR	97473
Charlene	Pray	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOOSICK FALLS	NY	12090
Robert	Newman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUGUSTA	GA	30904

Philip	Porter	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKPARK	OH	44142
Dee	Anderson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAYS	NC	28635
Kimberly	Tharp	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DEARBORN HEIGH	MI	48125

Faith	Coleman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53218
Don	Ederer	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98155
miriam	tolentino	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NORTH HIGHLAND	CA	95660

Mike	Hudson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	AUBURN	WA	98071
Janet	Halstead	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	I\'m
Sarah	Curington	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MCHENRY	IL	60050

Deborah	Mitchell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	INYOKERN	CA	93527
Rachel	Hurst	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	LOUISVILLE	KY	40203
Rochelle	Hackmann	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILWAUKEE	WI	53219

Nicoletta	Talpur	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HOUSTON	TX	77095
Erich	Wedam	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	POTOMAC	MD	20854
Michelle	L	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUTLER	MO	64730

William	Beckenhaupt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST MORICHES	NY	11940
Roxanne	carey	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLUE MOUNDS	WI	53517
Willie	Robinson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONROE	NC	28110

Doug	marshall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	VALPARAISO	IN	46385
ada	johns	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MILTON	FL	32570
Renee	Konkol	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PLOVER	WI	54467

Keryl	Work	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CORRALES	NM	87048
Scott	Broussard	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EUNICE	LA	70535
Chris	Newell	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98102

Marta	Lauritsen	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MINDEN	NV	89423
Debra	Raymond	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KANNAPOLIS	NC	28081
Philip	Keown	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EAST PETERSBURG	PA	17520

Steve	Hopkins	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FORT LAUDERDALE	FL	33323
JoAnn	Tigert	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	STAUNTON	VA	24401
Frances	Cross	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BEAVERTON	OR	97006

Michael	Heiss	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MASSAPEQUA	NY	11758
Gabriel	Millan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HAWTHORNE	CA	90250
Kelly	Koon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BONNEY LAKE	WA	98391

tina	drake	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FESTUS	MO	63028
Shelia	Anthony	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	EL PASO	TX	79934
Joan	Sheehan	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GLASTONBURY	CT	6033

Kat	Moore	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRIMAN	TN	37748
Alonzo	Ramos	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11220
Keith	Dallman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BOULDER CREEK	CA	95006

kathryne	hamilton	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PIGEON FORGE	TN	37863
James	VanValkenberg	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	OTIS	OR	97368
Brittany	Burney	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	NAVARRE	FL	32566

Laura	Ouzts	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ABBEVILLE	SC	29620
Pam	Smotherman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BUTLER	MO	64730
David	Watson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GOLD BAR	WA	98251

LJ	Perry	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GALVESTON	TX	77550
Lorraine	Timlin	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	KINGSTON	NY	12401
Steven	Fletcher	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch what they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MONTEBELLO	CA	90640

Anissa	Shook	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	COLUMBUS	KS	66725
Jordan	Howells	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SCRANTON	PA	18504
Paricia	Bern	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GAINESVILLE	FL	32605

Russell	Gillenwater	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ROGERSVILLE	TN	37857
David	Dillon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CAPE CANAVERAL	FL	32920
Cheryl	Dungee	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PHOENIXVILLE	PA	19460

Cynthia	Billings	I am tired of paying ridicules fees for something that used to be free now they found a way to charge and they are allowed a monopoly so they can charge through the nose.I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MOUNTLAKE TERR	WA	98043
Misty	Solomon	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HARRISONBURG	VA	22802

Amber	Tuten	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BLACKSHEAR	GA	31516
Jose	Santiago	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HUNTINGTON	MA	1050
Scott	Davis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN DIEGO	CA	92116

Brian	Reynolds	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ATLANTIC CITY	NJ	8401
Debra	Dawson	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRINGFIELD	OH	45503
Theresa	Smith	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SEATTLE	WA	98168

Kimberly	Vallejo	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SALISBURY	MD	21804
Mark	Grant	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CANEY	KS	67333
Wendy	Flanders	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SOUTH PARIS	ME	4281

teri	attean	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BANGOR	ME	4401
Kurt	Klatt	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	FEDERAL WAY	WA	98003
Gina	McCulloh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SHERIDAN	WY	82801

Elsa	Vicente	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	BROOKLYN	NY	11220
Zaida	Feliu	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SPRING HILL	FL	34609
Trent	Kleinkopf	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	92004

Kristy	Curran	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DUBUQUE	IA	52002
George	Hall	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	#N/A	#N/A	45505
Brian	Coleman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CLERMONT	FL	34711

Jennifer	Lilly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MISSOULA	MT	59801
scott	brazee	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	HALETHORPE	MD	21227
Kelly	Cason	American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	GREENVILLE	UT	84731

Cindy	Hickerson	Things need to change! American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to rent a set top box from the cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits. Consumers should have the power to choose their own device. Competition will lowers prices and increase access to new streaming content and diverse voices. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ENID	OK	73703
Mary	Giacobbe	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	CHELMSFORD	MA	1824
Patricia	Gonzalez	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	SAN ANTONIO	TX	78237

Rebecca	McHugh	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DENVER	CO	80229
Bill	Burgaleta	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MIDDLETOWN	NY	10940
Hailey	Lewis	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	DOTHAN	AL	36301

Vikki	Orlando	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	ALHAMBRA	CA	91801
Arthur	Selman	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	MANHATTAN	KS	66502
Keri	Kelly	I support efforts to #UnlockTheBox and cut costs for consumers. The cable box monopoly hurts innovation and makes it harder for Americans to watch they want. American consumers pay an average of $231 per year to lease a cable box from cable monopolies. This hurts competition, limits consumer choice, and lifts up cable profits while holding back the future from American living rooms. Cable companies shouldn\'t be able to block what consumers see on their TV. We need more innovation and more diverse voices, and we urge the FCC and Congress to Unlock The Box.	PELHAM	NH	3076

