I am in favor of three classes of operators and only (5) five words a minute code testing. A or "General" B or "Advance" C or "Extra". All operators who have code credit of (5) five words should have, I believe, classified as A or "General" with the increased privilages. All current "Advanced" should also the privilages of C "Extra". I am in favor all new operators pass the (5) five word code but that there not be any other code requirements. I also feel we need a increase in written tests of a more technical range of questions.
