Dear Mr. McDowell:

I am deeply offended by the sewage poured out weekly on cable television. While I am not currently on cable (it does go by our house), my wife and I anticipate going to a retirement community where there is no cable choice, which is true everywhere, apart from buying different packages.

I seriously object to paying for programs that are very offensive, such as the March 7th airing of the Sarah Silverman Program in which Sarah is portrayed as having sex with God. How much evil is going to be allowed on the airways?

I want to be able to pay for only the cable networks I watch, but if not allowed to control my TV's contents, I demand that cable be held to the same standard of program decency rules as broadcast television.

Sincerely,
Charles W. Pellman
