Dear Members of the FCC Commission:

As you must be fully aware of the increase in violence and sexual abuse and promiscuity - all stemming from a decline of ethical and moral standards and a value for wholesome family life; I and my family implore you to continue the ban on explicit profanity and nudity on our television and radio stations.

We can no longer ignore the fact that our social media impacts our children, hence the family, in a negative light. Our country is in decline as long as our morals are on the decline. To have a healthy and good society, we must have strong moral and ethical standards. Dropping the current broadcast decency standards will hurt, not help, the citizens of our country.

On behalf of those who seek to make the United States a country that is admired for its decency and goodness, we implore you to safeguard our children, our families and our nation by upholding the ban against explicit profanity, nudity, and sex acts.

With respect for a better America and healthy lifestyles.
