Ref. 63.71

Yes, I object to AT+T dropping calling card service. I've had a prepaid phone card for years.

I just dropped my long-distance service from AT+T because of the higher telephone rates. I'm on retirement social security + trying to keep my household bills from rising every year. I'm writing this letter because I do not have a computer at home to type + print letters. That would be another monthly bill.

For the few, but long winded phone calls I make, it's way more reasonable to use my phone card that get a whopping monthly charge + per minute charge for long distance service on my AT+T landline.

* Am I going to lose the minutes remaining on my phone card

on or after May 15?
