Per allowing tiered internet service, that would create a fundamental change in the view and use of the internet that would serve little but to stifle communication. It should be classified as a common carrier service in order to maintain greater value over isolated profit. It is a major part of our economy and culture today, and to restructure it as suggested would cause widespread harm for very limited benefit.