

I am greatly concerned over the future of the internet. The idea of cooperations controller what websites I can view, akin to how cable companies give access to different channels according to plans, is frightening.

This means that if I want to use a new service, but isn't part of my plan, I'm stuck with whatever service they deem to provide me with.

I dislike regulation when it is not needed, but in this area it is. What dismays me further is the seemingly underhanded fashion in which this is attempted at being passed.

Removing net neutrality doesn't help us common folk, it only helps cooperations. It frightens me to feel like their desires are being considered before the citizenry.

Please keep the internet free of corporate control by keeping net neutrality in place.
