The Honorable Ajit Pai
Chairman
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, NW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear Chairman Simons and Chairman Pai:

We write to urge the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) to broadly investigate the sale of Americans' location data by wireless carriers, location aggregators, and other third parties.

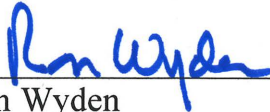

Last year, multiple news reports highlighted the fact that the four major wireless carriers, AT&T, Sprint, T-Mobile, and Verizon, sold their customers' location data to approximately seventy companies, without the explicit knowledge or consent of their customers. After significant negative press coverage, the wireless industry pledged to end these business practices. A recent investigation published by Motherboard, however, demonstrated not only that the wireless carriers are still failing to protect their customers' private information, but also that location data can be purchased by stalkers, domestic abusers, and others. It is clear that these wireless carriers have failed to regulate themselves or police the practices of their business partners, and have needlessly exposed American consumers to serious harm.

To that end, we urge the FTC and the FCC to conduct broad investigations, as appropriate, into the business partnerships between wireless carriers and location aggregators, including resellers and all downstream buyers of location data. Specifically, your agencies should determine whether wireless carriers or aggregators knew, or should have known, that failing to demand and verify subscriber consent would result in individuals obtaining location data without the respective subscriber's knowledge or consent. We also ask your agencies to require the wireless carriers to notify every American whose location they shared or sold and to identify to those subscribers the specific companies that obtained their location information.

Americans expect that their location data will be protected. The wireless industry has repeatedly demonstrated a blatant disregard for its customers' privacy. It is therefore vital that regulators take swift action to ensure that consumers are protected. Please respond to this letter by February 5, 2019.

Dear Senator Klobuchar:

Thank you for your letter regarding the Federal Communications Commission's ongoing investigation of wireless carriers for allegedly sharing the location information of American citizens without adequate safeguards. As you know, the Commission launched an investigation of these practices last year. The Commission takes its responsibility in this regard seriously. Accordingly, and to maintain the integrity of such investigations, the Commission's practice is not to comment further until the investigation has concluded.

Thank you for your interest in this matter. Please let me know if I can be of any further assistance.

Sincerely,
