I am opposed to allowing effective encryption in amateur radio as it will allow non-amateur use of amateur spectrum. Fully encrypted messages sources will not be identifiable. Allowing encryption will also give foreign spies, drug dealers and other criminals a secure source for communication. Amateur radio equipment is readily available and if encryption is allowed, the amateur bands will be flooded by non-amateur use. Why would anyone even need a license if the source of transmission were encrypted?