

I am amateur operator KC8MID and a long distance offshore sailor. I depend on Pactor digital communication for critical weather information, emergency contact, and contact with family and friends when outside the range of cell services. There is no affordable substitute for this service which is offered by a dedicated group of amateurs in the Winlink group. Disabling Pactor communications serves no practical purpose and does not enhance national security in any way, in fact it may actually detract from it by robbing US sailors of a tool to report any observed suspicious activities offshore.
