

Comment on Net Neutrality

I am in support of net neutrality and strongly against giving ISPs the freedom to charge customers based on the websites and content they wish to access. This is a massive slight on startup culture and would severely impact internet-based business in the US and internationally. It is shameful that this is even being considered.