

Greetings,

I write this letter in regards to the above proceeding. I wish to voice my support for net neutrality, and the ability for any website to post content without the threat of having to pay a provider for better access, faster access than other companies or websites, or being coerced into a “pay for play” format.

Additionally, I support the ability of the consumer, myself included, to be able to freely access any content on the web at any time from any location, utilizing the same service offered to peers without having to pay additional fees for service to specific websites or services.

I believe the current de-regulation being put through is in the best interest of internet service providers, and that the monopoly already held by those providers will become absolute, if this proceeding passes in its current form. That monopoly threatens the freedom of myself and other citizens to access the content within the internet.

Please consider the ramifications of the actions being proposed and the impact that it will have now, in the near future, and the far future for what it truly means to be free.

Regards,

Timothy Wilson
