

I support strong Net Neutrality regulations under Title II.

The FCC should be on the side of the users not the industry. Title II would not slow the industry's commitments to infrastructure because they can't afford not to be the fastest.

The FCC should take it's cues and directions from the internet pioneers and organizations like Larry Wall and other scientists, entrepreneurs, and investors who have expressed my views on countless other media and news outlets.