

Net neutrality is one of the many things that allows people to explore the large expanse of data known as the internet carefree. If these net neutrality rules are broken and large companies are allowed to take over the internet, the economy might possibly be hurt as well. Also, if the net neutrality rules are broken, most people might not frequent the internet as much.