Re: Retaining Open Internet Access for All
Internet Neutrality Solidification

There should be equal opportunity for all entities across all industries, at all levels of expertise for personal and business accounts. An open Internet is just as important as a free market economy. There should be no limitations placed on any entity just because they choose to agree to disagree with any of another's ideas or ideals. Competition and the exchange of different, as well as similar ideas and positions is a good thing. These exchanges allow all entities to flourish because of the circumstance that all voices are heard. Additionally, for business purposes, competition is a good thing.

Keep the Internet open legally to everyone.

Sincerely and Respectfully,
Phebe Frances Edwards
