To Whom It May Concern:

On Net Neutrality

We are a family based in Alamo California and have been in the computer business all our lives. We depend on our internet services being good efficient and quick all the time, to conduct our business, develop software, communicate with business associates and family alike.

We have come to regard good broadband as a human right. Good internet is good for everybody. Everybody is more efficient when our internet is more efficient. When I go to foreign countries where the internet is slow everything slows down, particularly the productivity of the people, and in particular the service sector.

Please preserve our net neutrality. I do not want our internet performance to be downgraded or be forced to pay more for the same so that other big users can get easy access to the internet at my expense. It's just plain wrong.
