Attention: Docket No. 92-90

To Whom It May Concern:

After 20 years in the Real Estate business, our firm knows the importance of Real Estate agents being able to use the telephone with reference to inquiring whether properties are available for sale.

At any given time, there are hundreds of homes with listings that have expired, but still require the assistance of a real estate organization to be sold. Not only would any restrictions in this form of communication be extremely disruptive to the real estate industry, it would also present a hardship to the families trying to sell their homes.

In your attempt to reduce some of the unpleasant solicitation we all get at dinner time, we sincerely request that the decisions not be so sweeping as to hurt the real estate industry or the consumers it serves.

Your assistance is critical in this matter. I know many constituents that feel the same as I do.

Sincerely,

Dear Sirs:

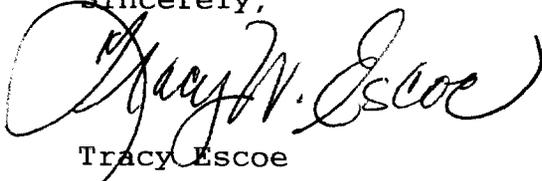

It has come to my attention that the Federal Communications Commission is drafting a regulation to restrict person-to-person solicitations to residential homes.

This type of legislation could greatly affect my business as a real estate agent. I make my living selling homes and a great deal of my listings come from "cold calling" by phone solicitation. It is not uncommon for me to list anywhere from five to ten homes a month as a direct result of this type of solicitation.

I ask that you stop and think how this type of legislation could affect the residential real estate market - which has just recently began to improve after a long recession.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Tracy Escoe

Washington, D.C. 20554

Dear Federal Communications Department Personnel,

I am writing to tell you how important "cold" calling is to my business - Real Estate and to the industry in general.

If the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, Docket NO. 92-90 is passed that restricts person to person solicitations to residential homes, then the ability to gain consumer information, and reach people in a personal way is taken from me. Using the telephone makes my time more productive and me more effective and efficient. It is a valuable tool to our industry.

Sincerely,

Jo-Ann Collin, Realtor
