

An internet connection is essential to my everyday activities. A wireless Internet connections could not possibly replace my wired broadband connection. Wired broadband connections provide a fast internet connection with reasonable data caps as compared to wireless plans. I already have zero wired internet competition at our home (Comcast only). What is needed is government encouragement of competition in the wired internet infrastructure. And if competition is not feasible, then regulate internet just like gas, electric and telephone.