

Mr. Pai or whoever reads his email,

Received & Inspected

JUL 18 2017

FCC MAIL ROOM

I am emailing you to state my views on the issue of net neutrality. While it is obvious you care more about the interests of wealthy, powerful corporations more than that of the average consumer such as myself, I hope that if enough of us consumers speak up, you will take notice and act in due course.

If you care about doing your job properly and ensuring the internet stays the great tool of collaboration, communication, and learning that it is now, you will save net neutrality, keep the internet open under Title II oversight, and protect mine and other citizens' 1st Amendment rights online.

I hope this email reaches you or someone who will take its message to heart and understand that the interests of the people must be put before those of the corporations. Preserve Net Neutrality.

Sincerely,
Drew Snoberger