Re: Notice of Ex Parte Presentation, XO Communications Services, LLC, Application for Review by XO Communications Services, LLC of Decision of the Wireline Competition Bureau, CC Docket Nos. 96-45 and 97-21, WC Docket No. 06-122

Dear Ms. Dortch:

Pursuant to Section 1.1206(b) of the Commission's Rules, XO Communications Services, LLC ("XOCS")¹ provides notice that on August 22, 2019, its counsel, Steven A. Augustino of Kelley Drye & Warren, LLC, met with Kris Monteith, Wireline Competition Bureau Chief, Trent Harkrader, Deputy Bureau Chief, Jesse Jachman, Bureau Legal Advisor, Ryan Palmer, Telecommunications Access Policy Division Chief; Karen Sprung, Assistant Division Chief; and Claudia Fox, Attorney Advisor (by phone). The following summarizes XOCS' presentation.

Twelve years ago, XOCS provided private line services to its enterprise customers. In determining the jurisdiction of those services, XOCS applied the "Ten Percent Rule" as it understood it, from the Commission's 1989 Separations Order and various statements by the Commission after that order.² For the circuits now relevant, XOCS determined that the services were physically intrastate, were not interconnected by XOCS to any other circuits and lacked any characteristics that suggested the circuits would carry 10% or more interstate traffic. XOCS therefore did not request a customer certification that the traffic was at least 10% interstate and classified the circuits as intrastate for USF and other purposes.

Two years ago, the Wireline Competition Bureau, responding to the petitions of XOCS and five other entities, issued the Private Line Order concluding that a customer certification is not required to classify a circuit as interstate and remanding certain questions to USAC for further review.³ In October 2018, USAC asked for circuit-specific information about the services that XOCS provided in 2007 and were the subject of the 2008 USAC audit.

At the meeting, XOCS argued that it is unreasonable to apply the 2017 Private Line Order's standards to XOCS' actions in 2007. XOCS argued that, if the Bureau does not overturn its March 30, 2017 Private Line Order, as XOCS requested in its May 1, 2017 application for review,⁴ it should follow the precedent of the Federal Communications Commission (“FCC” or “Commission”) by granting a retroactive waiver or applying the Order only prospectively. Waiver or prospective relief are appropriate because of the widespread confusion regarding the private line rule that preceded the Bureau’s order.

XOCS explained that at least three times after the 1989 Separations Order, Commission orders described the Ten Percent Rule in ways that created a widespread and reasonable understanding within the industry that carriers need only obtain customer certifications when more than ten percent of traffic on their private lines are interstate.⁵ XOCS highlighted the prior Commission orders that created this reasonable expectation.⁶

XOCS also explained that the Commission has recently granted retroactive waivers to parties in similar situations, based on confusion about application of Commission rules.⁷ XOCS argued that the industry confusion surrounding the Commission’s Ten Percent

Rule was as widespread or more than in these cases. Therefore, XOCS urged the Bureau to grant a retroactive waiver to XOCS because the Ten Percent Rule could have been reasonably interpreted by the industry to only require certifications when more than ten percent of traffic on their private lines are interstate. In light of this confusion, a retroactive waiver to XOCS of the private line rule as applied to the services it provided in 2007 (ten years before the Bureau's clarification) is the most just and reasonable resolution of this proceeding.

For the reasons discussed above and in XOCS prior submissions, XOCS respectfully requested that the Bureau act promptly to grant a retroactive waiver or prospective relief of the new standards in the Commission's Private Line Order. Please do not hesitate to contact me with any questions or concerns.

Respectfully submitted,
