47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I am a consumer that changed over to Broadband when Comcast got too greedy with their constant price hikes and not honoring their agreement when they would give you a 6-month or year long price freeze.

I looked online for a company that could give me both internet and phone services for a modest fee. The company I use is Sonic.net and I have been very happy with them since switching over. I now use Roku to watch the channels I like

I do not want to use AT&T. My friends have used them and want to get away from them as they have constant issues with their connection.
