I completely oppose the revoking of net neutrality. Net neutrality is absolutely necessary to protect free speech from the influence of large corporations. I don't believe that internet providers should be able to speed up, slow down, or block specific web content; and giving them the right to do this takes away the freedom of billions of internet users trying to access said content.