

I consider net neutrality one of the most important foundations of democracy in our times. Without it, free speech is less free for some, impossible for others. Our democratic institutions absolutely depend on the free flow of information to all citizens. Net neutrality is not a luxury. It is a bulwark against erosion of the very freedoms that distinguish the United States as a vital democracy.