Re: In the Matter of Petition of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I want more competition in the ISP marketplace, not collusion and oligopoly (keep net neutrality, outlaw "throttling", protect independent ISPs access to industry resources). Remember whom you serve: the American people, consumers of internet service, not the providers or their investors. Internet has become an essential utility in the digital age, and the opportunity exists for innovative providers to meet those needs, not to exploit those customers in pursuit of almighty profits. The notion that a reduced profit margin will prevent the deployment of greater and newer technologies is untenable: it only discourages those businesses that can only "compete" by stifling true competition through unfair business practices. Every fair opportunity that exists will be taken advantage of in a transparent market, so long as collusion, corruption, and nepotism are eliminated from the process. The writing is on the wall: Americans want fast, cheap, reliable internet, not rich, entitled investors.
