Re: In the Matter of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I use a small internet service provider that beautifully and affordably meets my residential network needs. I am able to work almost anywhere, thanks to my excellent broadband service, sparing the environment a physical commute burden, and providing services whenever and wherever needed.

My provider uses unbundled copper and inter-city fiber transport elements (UNEs) to compete in the residential marketplace.

I love my provider: it serves exactly my needs without my needing to purchase services I wish not to have.

I want my provider's services to remain competitive in the market. I wish to have the choice to buy what I need at a price I like.

The providers who claim UNEs are gone from the residential marketplace are wrong! They are here, and we depend on them every day.

Do not allow the large companies to crowd out the right-sized providers we have today!
