

Once again, the American people assert the right to be in control of the internet. ISPs should not be given the opportunity to interfere in a free marketplace of ideas and commerce for the sake of corporate profits. For this reason Title II should remain in place in full support of net neutrality. This is my position towards this matter.