

I would like to file a formal complaint on proceeding 17-108 and state that I am whole-heartedly against Ajit Pai's plan to roll back regulations on Net Neutrality. After careful examination of the issues and counterpoints presented by Mr. Pai, I find that this plan holds no benefit to the public at large and only serves the interest of cable monopolies. The empirical evidence of what happens when net neutrality regulations are rolled back in countries such as Portugal only stand to reinforce my point. Internet Service Providers have had opportunities in the past to prove they are capable of self-regulating and have been found guilty of throttling customers and other illegal practices. Removing even more regulations is not how this bad behavior should be handled; it acts as a reward and incentivizes further corrupt activity. For the above reasons, I am directly and vehemently voicing my opposition to proceeding 17-108 and that I am against the FCC Chair's plan to end net neutrality. I stand for and with Net Neutrality.
