Net Neutrality is a necessity as it protects the the ability of companies and people to promote themselves, their products, ideas and information without the worry that their services or ability to use the internet will be hindered just because they aren't part of one of the few companies who provide internet access or have enough money to sway favor in their direction.

The only reason anybody would want to remove Net Neutrality is for their own personal profit. They can promote their own products while hindering the ability of others to create their own products, restrict access to information in order to control what information people see and hear in order to more thoroughly control what they think, to protect the place of their company and have complete control over their area of business without fear of competition when someone has a better idea, product, way of doing things, etc.

Removing Net Neutrality is an attempt to grab and more power and control over the people. Do not remove net neutrality, it's irresponsible and only serves to favor the rich, powerful and self interested who do not care for the well being of the nation or those around us that this change will effect.
