

Net Neutrality is vital to free speech and communication. Giving Internet providers the power to determine what websites and online services we can see and use is completely unacceptable. It is a recipe for censorship of the worst kind. I unequivocally oppose any proposal that takes away our right to free inquiry, regardless of which website it comes from.