

The idea that removing net neutrality would benefit anyone is the most hare-brained thing I have ever heard. If there is anyone at the FCC with a 3-digit IQ, I beseech them to do the right thing and stop this nonsense now. Removing net neutrality will NEVER benefit the consumer, and corporations do not have the ethics or the integrity to do anything other than use this to increase profits. Anjit Pai, by the very act of proposing this, proves that he also does not have any ethics whatsoever.
