

11/21/2017

To whom it may concern,

I strongly support existing Title II protections. Service providers should not be able to control what information people have access to by charging fees for quality access. This will degrade the first amendment right to free speech as well as make it difficult for small businesses and independent content providers like myself to function in a profitable fashion.

Respectfully,

Michael Edwards