

Net neutrality provides vital protection to free speech in the United States. Removing the protections of net neutrality is a direct threat to free speech, which is unprecedented and unacceptable.

Rolling back important regulations in place could also have an ill-effect on businesses of all sizes, but perhaps most noticeably, small businesses. If I.S.P.s have the power to regulate and restrict what sites customers can visit or not, based on what they pay, some businesses may thrive, while others suffer.

Ajit Pai, and the F.C.C., I urge you to re-consider what you are doing, and listen to the voices of the people. Do you want to be remembered with disdain, as someone who limited free speech and suppressed the people and businesses you serve, or as an individual who stood up for what is right?
