

Dear FCC,

I am writing to you today as a teacher who believes in net neutrality. America is a beautiful country, and the American Dream is known throughout the world.

Loss of net neutrality threatens this core value of our shared culture. Without net neutrality, people with financial hardships may be unable to obtain the education they need. In a country where education access is limited by location, the internet is a great equalizer. Without open and unfettered access to the internet, people will lose the ability to lift themselves up by their bootstraps and partake in our great American Dream. This could disproportionately affect people in rural areas with less access to institutions of higher education.

Please, do not limit our access to the American Dream. Please maintain net neutrality.

Best Regards,
Maureen Ray
