

November 29, 2017

RE: Proceeding 18-108 - Net Neutrality Proposed Rule Changes

Dear FCC Commissioners,

With all due respect, nothing has changed in public opinion over the past several years. The vast majority of American people, whom our government and your Commission is supposed to serve, do not want any changes to the Net Neutrality rules currently in effect. Why? Let's be honest: the only stakeholders who could possibly benefit from your proposed changes are the few, very large corporate ISP's, at the potential expense of the rest of the stakeholders.

Perhaps former FCC Commissioner Michael Copps may have expressed it best in an interview months back:

"There can be no truly open internet without net neutrality. To believe otherwise is to be captive to special interest power brokers or to an old and discredited ideology that thinks monopoly and not government oversight best serves the nation."

Please do the "right thing" for the American people, free speech and democracy:
Keep the playing field level, with strong net neutrality rules and Title II oversight.

Thank you,

Caryn Converse
(No lobbying power - just another concerned citizen)