

I am extremely concerned with the possible outcomes of stripping the existing tier 2 regulations of net neutrality. The internet is a beautiful place that everyone should be able to freely use as long as they have a pipe to the internet. Taking that a step further and unlocking the freedom to create fast lanes and slow lanes can lead to more issues and backlash once companies cross the line and take advantage of this. If this passes, big companies will go to their drawing board and create income forecasts seeing how much money they can snatch from Americans by sneaky methods such as fast lanes and slow lanes. Pai claims that there is no evidence of this happening and no companies will use this freedom to charge more. If this is true Pai, then please explain why you want this to pass? What is wrong with the current internet? NOTHING. If the public likes the current internet, then why fix something that is not broken. I would understand if the current internet was not working right for many people but that is not the case. Pai is ACTING like this is a harmless move that is for the best of us all and Pai wants to pretend that this move can't somehow cause harm down the road when it's obvious what potential damage could be heading our way with this move. This creates absolutely no benefits. I cannot stress enough how important it is to keep net neutrality and keep the internet a great, equal, fast place that the us Americans love.
