Hello,

My name is Kurt Meyer. I am writing from Seattle, WA 98109. I urge you to oppose the plan to repeal net neutrality regulations.

An open internet is essential for a democratic America, and service providers must not be allowed to tilt the playing field of internet access, and by extension, content, to their whim. This proposal serves only to line the pockets of major internet providers, and to quell access to information, particularly targeting start-ups, small businesses and the economically disadvantaged.

To suggest that current net neutrality regulations impede the ability of service providers to innovate and invest in emerging technologies is disingenuous. Under current rules, countless web-based companies have seen tremendous growth thanks to a level playing field. Their future success depends on an ability to reach their customers without discriminatory interference by the nation's largest broadband providers, who continue to rake in record profits.

Please support equal communication access for ALL Americans by maintaining current net neutrality regulations.

Thank you,
Kurt Meyer
