

The Internet is something that should remain free and fair. ISPs only care about their bottom-line and will throttle the companies who can't afford to pay for faster access. How will you deter that unfair practice if you get rid of Net-Neutrality? Is it only the people who require rules against being unfair to others? Keep the Internet open and free.