To whom it may concern,

I am writing this letter to protest the repeal of Net Neutrality rules.

A lack of net neutrality would limit the human rights of the citizens of this innovative nation. According to Human Rights Watch, the repeal of net neutrality would restrict our freedom of expression and would lessen our access to information.¹ Thus restricting the creativity of the people. In addition, the New York Times states, “The biggest concern is that the internet will become pay-to-play technology with two tiers: one that has speedy service and one that doesn’t.”² This could drive a wedge between our society with those who are rich enough to pay for fast internet on one side, and those who are not on the other. Our nation was not built on a basis of imbalance but instead on the foundation that all men are created equally.

We should keep the net neutrality rules for the safety and well being of our great nation. Thank you for your consideration of my opinion on this important topic.

Sincerely,

Anna
