

As an educator in New Mexico, I understand the complexity and necessity of net neutrality. Keeping the internet open is vital to the dissemination of information and sharing of ideas. Doing away with net neutrality will be to the detriment of the American people. Even with the limitations we currently have, I find it concerning that giant corporations already have substantial and power over the spread of information. Please do not allow this to expand.