I strongly support net neutrality and oppose its repeal. Removing protections on a free internet benefits very few corporations at the expense of all ordinary users and small businesses. A pay-to-play internet is not only an ineffective system, it is also one in which information is controlled by a few wealthy corporations. I don't think a future without net neutrality is one anyone wants.