Dear Mr. Caton:

On December 5, members of the Common Carrier Bureau toured MCI metro's facility in Baltimore, Maryland. During the visit, the general discussion and the answers to several questions touched on matters at issue in these proceedings. No new information was added to the record.

In answer to questions on collocation, MCI employees did provide detailed explanations of what constitutes "transmission equipment" and the desirability of allowing remote switching at telco collocation sites.

Sincerely,

Leonard S. Sawicki
