To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is addressing the subject of the FCC allowing the public airways to be polluted by the vulgarity and trash that some radio talk show hosts inflict on the general public. The obscenities and lewd comments that spew from their mouths and from the mouths of their hosts and on-air callers are appalling.

Television broadcasting recently imposed ratings on television movies, talk shows and sitcoms that allow parents to better control what their children should view. How much more will it take before the same is done to radio broadcasting. We should also be able to control what our children hear. I'm sure I am not the only one who feels that the hosts of radio talk shows are going to far. If there is such a large demand for airway trash, then let it be limited to late hour broadcasting when children and the majority of adults are not subjected to it.

Sincerely,

Beth Alexander
