I have read your news release and have downloaded your report for reading later tonight. I have to say, you will do whatever it takes to regulate as much as you can, even if there is nothing wrong with the way it is working right now. You have cause an uproar and a bottleneck to the free (and fast) flow of information over the technological wonder called the internet.

You are neither needed nor wanted at this moment in this particular arena. If you don't believe me, read all of the feedback that a recent article is already receiving from ZDNet at http://www.zdnet.com/zdnn/stories/zdnn_smgraph_display/0,3441,2134812,00.html

Please take the advise that everyone has heard but only the smart heed - "If it isn't broken, don't fix it."

You are a commission created by the people to help the people but you have succeeded in hindering many things, including internet telephony used to make inexpensive phone calls over the net, that would help the American public.

Please stop "helping" us in such ways. We don't need or want it. I am not alone if you would only take the time away from your fee collecting to go and find out. It's hard to believe that a body so integrally involved in communication could be so unaware of what the public needs. Let me set you straight - This is not one of those things that we NEED!!! Stay out of it. If we need help, you'll hear about it. Get your fees somewhere else.

Sincerely,
Chris Szlucha
A taxpayer (therefore, your boss, since you are a government agency and the government works for the taxpayers. Thought I should remind someone of that fact. You seem to have forgotten.)

I sincerely hope that the FCC keeps its hand off the net as it did in the past. The internet has experienced explosive, almost exponential growth without the types of regulations imposed on other media. The internet allow the people to express themselves freely unlike TV, Radio and other FCC "empowered" media. I have seen TV and Radio become the mouthpiece of large corporations. . .not of the people. If the FCC starts charging 10,000 liscensing fees for web publishing, the net will become as diluted and corrupt as the current TV and Radio conglomerates. Please keep the FCC out of the Internet. Please do not cave into the lobbying pressures of the telcos, they have had it far too easy for most of the century. Please understand the the net evolved without the benefit of the FCC and should continue to do so.
