Hello,

I respectfully submit my opinion on the subject of the proposal of rule change regarding rule 68. Since a significant segment of the taxpaying public has, on each's individual basis, outlaid his/her expense to upgrade to the computer hardware to access the internet (again, at each's personal expense) at the 56Kbps capability, it would prove beneficial to literally millions of computer users who access the internet using 56k-ready hardware (on user and server sides) to be able to actually reach the 56Kbps speed-- which would also prove beneficial to the load placed on the infrastructure itself, with data transmission occurring at a faster rate, relieving the tremendous "lag" that occurs all too often as is the case with the current regulations in place.

I therefore am definitely IN FAVOR of the change of rule 68 for allowing telco's to increase signal strength for reaching 56Kbps over the internet.

Thank you,

Time has come with technology that restrictions be removed. There is not one once of proof that telecommunications cannot provide proper support for telephone, modems, and etc. The bottom line in all of this issue is $$$$$$$$$$. What about the needs of those of us who provide the $$$$$$ to receive service. Don't we have rights. Eliminate all the bureacratic red tape, give consumers the right to receive what they want and eliminate taxes which are not used according to the constitution. Thanks for leting me vent and express an opinion.
