There is absolutely no reason why this pile of nonsense merger should be allowed to take place. If you people are sane, you will be wary of every reason why Comcast does not deserve to get bigger. Corporations should not be able to gain such a broad reach. They have way too much power as it is, giving common people little to no say in political matters, but that's a rant for another web site. People already hate Comcast more than they hate every other fascistic telecom company that wants to kill net neutrality combined. If this merger is allowed to pass, competition in hundreds of areas will be wiped out, Comcast will gain more lobbying power, and the internet will become heavily regulated by arbitrary restrictions. It's clear that Comcast, as it's been said on numerous web sites, "doesn't give a (swear)". They need to be convinced that they should care. The implications of this merger are nothing short of catastrophic. That Comcast could even come with something as morbid as this and expect it to be passed despite numerous anti-monopoly laws being in place and absurd amounts of people being against it is a true testament towards the sheer scorn that they get. Simply put, it is imperative that you people refuse the Comcast-Time Warner Cable merger.
