I urge you to leave the current status of the internet as it is. I support net neutrality. The internet is not broken, please don't attempt to fix it. I also find it difficult to believe that a prior lobbyist for the cable companies is now in charge of the FCC. Does that speak of neutrality? Or does it speak of bias? Outrageous. Another example of the 'good old boys' taking care of each other regardless of what the majority of US citizens want. Kindly leave the internet alone.
